UNVEILING OF RENEWED BICENTENNIAL DISPLAY IN PRADO DAM SPILLWAY TODAY

CORONA – (CNS) The official unveiling and dedication of a recreation of the iconic patriotic mural that stretched across the crest of Prado Dam for almost 47 years will be held today, (Friday), with numerous people slated to celebrate the occasion.

"The ribbon-cutting event will include elected officials and community members, whose vision and dedication ensured the iconic mural is present for the next generation of Inland Empire residents," according to the Riverside County Flood Control & Water Conservation District.

The ceremony is set for 4 p.m. within the dam, off of Pomona Rincon Road.

The Prado Dam Bicentennial Mural Restoration Painting Project began in early April and concluded last week.

"The restoration project is a testament to our commitment to preserving our heritage and ensuring that future generations can appreciate the beauty and significance of this landmark," county Supervisor Karen Spiegel said last month.

According to flood control officials, a fundraising effort by the Bicentennial Freedom Mural Conservancy and the Friends of the Prado Dam Mural generated $140,000 in donations for the

3 Healthy Kittens Born to Mountain Lion Tracked by Biologists in Wilderness Near Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A mountain lion studied by biologists in wilderness areas near Los Angeles has given birth to three healthy kittens, the National Park Service said Thursday.

THE three females estimated to be a month old were found May 18 nestled in a patch of poison oak in the Simi Hills area about 40 miles (65 km) northwest of downtown LA, the park service said in a statement.

They were born to a 5-year-old cougar dubbed P-77 that has been tracked since November 2019. Scientists are calling the babies P-113, P-114 and P-115.

The father isn't immediately known. Biologists aren't currently following any male cougars in P-77's habitat, so they suspect the father might have come from nearby mountains and then went back.

P-77 makes her home in an area between the 101 and 118 freeways overlapping the Santa Monica and Santa Susana mountain ranges.

It's the third mountain lion litter found in the Simi Hills in recent years. P- 62 gave birth in 2018 and P-67 delivered a litter in 2020, officials said.

The park service has been studying mountain lions since 2002 in and around the Santa Monica Mountains to determine how they survive in a fragmented and urbanized environment.

An analysis for determining a preferred way of adding an additional eastbound lane on the 91 Freeway between Anaheim Hills in Orange County and the intersection with the 71 Freeway in Riverside County, will begin this summer.

Analyses of Options for Adding New Lane to Eastbound 91 to Start Soon

CORONA - Analyses of how to go about adding one more general-purpose lanes to the eastbound Riverside (91) Freeway along the boundary separating Riverside and Orange counties will begin this summer.

EARLIER this month, the Riverside County Transportation Commission approved an engineering contract to start the process of comparing different design plans for the "91 Eastbound Corridor Operations Project," which would entail constructing a new lane between state Route 241 in Anaheim Hills and the Corona (71) Expressway.

The project is a combined enterprise of RCTC, the Orange County Transportation Authority, Caltrans and the city of Corona.

"Economic opportunities and population growth in Riverside County create commuting challenges across our region, including on the 91," RCTC Board of Directors Chair Robert Magee said. "The 91 Eastbound Corridor Operations Project study provides a path towards improving traffic flow and safety that will help keep our region moving."

RCTC has applied for $3 million in federal transportation funds to cover the engineering and environmental analyses, which will likely take two years to complete. A future groundbreaking date for the project cannot be set until the studies are finished.

There are currently seven lanes available on the 91 eastbound, between the 241 and 71, but two of those are toll lanes.

According to RCTC, adding another general purpose lane will facilitate higher traffic volumes on the heavily used corridor and will complement the 71/91 Interchange now under construction on the west end of Corona.

That $137 million project entails reconfiguring the existing single- lane loop connector between the 71 and 91 by constructing two lanes and adding an auxiliary lane to the eastbound 91 between Green River Road and the redesigned interchange.

The 71/91 Interchange Project is slated for completion in 2025.

Corona Seventh-Grader Ties for 12th in National Spelling Bee

CORONA - A seventh grader from Corona was eliminated in the eighth round of the Scripps National Spelling Bee on Wednesday finishing among nine spellers that tied for 12th place.

Avijeet S. Randhawa misspelled "pridian," an adjective meaning "of or relating to a previous day or to yesterday," according to the Merriam-Webster Dictionary. He spelled it predian.

The 11 spellers who correctly spelled their eighth-round word correctly, advanced to the finals.

The original field of 231 spellers from all 50 states, and the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, Canada, the Bahamas, Germany and Ghana was reduced to 121 at the start of Wednesday's quarterfinals.

The 12-year-old began Wednesday's competition at the Gaylord National Resort & Convention Center in National Harbor, Maryland, by correctly spelling "chumble," a verb meaning to "gnaw or chew," to be among 73 spellers to advance to the fifth round. There were 48 spellers eliminated. In the second round of each segment, the spellers answer a multiple- choice question which requires identifying a word's meaning. Avijeet's question was ``A gourmand is someone who enjoys…" and he correctly selected ``a fine dining experience." That advanced him to be among the 56 spellers advancing to the semifinals, while 17 spellers were eliminated.

The Auburndale Intermediate School student correctly spelled "constatation," a noun meaning "basic assumption," in the sixth round before correctly answering his seventh-round word meaning question, "If something is described as Jovian, it relates to…" correctly selecting "Jupiter," to be among 20 advancing to the eighth, and his final, round.

With the bee limited to students in eighth grade or below, Avijeet will be eligible for the 2024 national bee.

Avijeet's sister Aisha competed in the national bee from 2016-19, tying for seventh in 2018. His sister Lara was among 10 spellers tying for 13th in 2022 and reached the quarterfinals in 2021.

No speller from Riverside County has never won the bee.

Avijeet Randhawa, a 7thgrade student from Auburndale Intermediate School in the Corona-Norco Unified School District, holding his Riverside County spelling bee championship trophy earlier this spring. He tied for 12th place in the national bee, having been eliminated in the 12th round.

Millennial Money: 3 Signs You May Need a Credit Card Hiatus

By Melissa Lambarena, NerdWallet

When your finances start to spiral and it becomes increasingly difficult to keep up with credit card payments or build toward financial goals, switching your payment method temporarily to cash or debit could help.

SPENDING with credit cards can stimulate the brain's reward center and drive you to make more purchases, according to a recent study by MIT Sloan School of Management. The 2021 study had a small sample size of 28 participants, but other research also finds that people are likely to spend more with credit cards. However, it is possible to avoid overspending and the costs of interest charges on outstanding debt by using cash instead.

A vacation from credit card spending isn't for everyone, though. If you want to preserve your credit scores, you'll still need to keep zero-balance credit cards open and active with small recurring purchases such as paying for streaming service subscriptions or other similar transactions. Issuers may close inactive accounts, which can cause credit scores to drop.

By not piling new purchases on your credit cards, making more progress on debt or savings is possible. If you need a sign to determine if this course is right for you, here are some instances when shifting your spending to cash or debit can make sense.

1. YOU FREQUENTLY OVERSPEND IN CERTAIN CATEGORIES

You might not need to go cold turkey on your credit card spending. If you tend to overspend only in specific categories, consider setting aside a fixed amount of cash or funds on your debit card to cover those expenses. For those purchases that don't lead your budget astray, continue using a credit card and paying it off in full every month to avoid interest charges.

If, however, you usually overspend across multiple categories, using only cash may help you stay on track.

2. YOU'RE AN EMOTIONAL OR IMPULSIVE SPENDER

You may not be aware that you're an emotional or impulsive spender. However, it's possible to get an idea by reviewing credit card statements and reflecting on the reasons behind the purchases, says LaQueshia Clemons, a financial therapist at Freedom Life Therapy and Wellness in Connecticut.

"When you get upset or whenever you're emotional, this may be when you find yourself on Amazon or going to the mall," Clemons says. "As a way to avoid negative feelings, you may find yourself buying items because this can give you a euphoric feeling to replace the negative emotions."

If you realize you might be in this category after reviewing your purchases, stop spending with credit cards and analyze your financial habits, she says.

You might also consider meeting with a financial therapist if it's difficult to accomplish financial goals or you're in a continuous cycle of debt. The Financial Therapy Association has a directory to help you find a professional.

3. YOU CAN'T SEE A WAY OUT OF DEBT

If your credit cards are maxed out or you're struggling to keep up with minimum payments, it's time to come up with a strategy to pay off the debt.

After several layoffs early in her career, Aileen Luib, a digital content creator based in California , says she had to rely on credit cards to get by. Her combined balances grew to $10,000 by 2015, putting a wrench in her plans, so she came up with a new one.

"I was doing a lot of different things to rack in the money and chip away at that debt as quickly as I could," Luib says. "I was kind of tapping into my skill sets to start scraping up money in little corners of my life, and it all added up."

Luib says she also used a balance transfer to consolidate debt from several credit cards onto one with a lower interest rate, and she didn't add new purchases to the card. With these tactics, she says she paid off her balance in 2017.

Balance transfers typically require a good credit score of 690 or higher. The ideal balance transfer card will have an interest-free window long enough to pay off debt, no annual fee, and a balance transfer fee of 3% or lower. To determine if a transfer is worth it, consider whether the balance transfer fee costs less than what you're projected to pay in interest charges on the current credit card. (An online interest calculator can help.) You'll also make more progress on the debt if you stop putting new purchases on credit cards.

With less-than-ideal credit, you still have options if it's becoming increasingly difficult to meet payments. Consider meeting with a counselor from a nonprofit credit counseling agency. They aren't mental health professionals, but they can offer financial guidance and help you determine whether you qualify for a debt management plan that consolidates debt into a single payment with a lower interest rate. Your credit cards may be closed if you enroll in this plan, so expect to shift to cash or debit to cover expenses.

Shelter Opening

As a full-service shelter and navigation center, clients will receive lodging in tandem with on-site case management, streamlined access to social services and permanent housing resources.

"You started it," Corona Planning and Housing Commissioner Karen Alexander, exclaimed to former Corona Councilwoman Yolanda Carillo. Carrillo, along with Corona Councilman Jim Steiner began investigating the possibility of the shelter several years ago.

This past December, Corona's City Council approved a partnership with Mercy House Living Centers to operate the City's homeless system of services, while investing $3 million in the renovation of the Harrison Shelter.

The center is pet friendly with an onsite clinic that will provide medical care, mental health and substance use treatment, oral care, post hospital recuperative care, as well as meals, emergency shelter, wrap-around services, and permanent housing resources.

Mercy House will also operate the City's 12 units of supportive housing, a tenant-based rental assistance program, and a transportation/meal services program for day services.

In 2019, the annual homeless count identified 164 unsheltered homeless in the City of Corona. Since the Homeless Plan was launched in June of 2020, 99 homeless residents have been connected to shelter, services, and housing. Accounting for a 60% reduction. The city says there are still 65 unsheltered homeless residents on the street.

Corona celebrated the opening of the $3 million renovated Harrison Shelter/Navigation Center on Wednesday. City councilman Jim Steiner and former councilwoman Yolanda Carrillo who were instrumental in starting the shelter, are in the center cutting the ribbon.

Following this year's annual countywide Point-In-Time (PIT) homeless survey conducted in late January, the subsequent report determined, ``Increases in homelessness can be attributed to multiple economic and social factors, such as poverty, lack of affordable housing, increasing rental costs and low vacancy rates, community and family breakdown and physical and mental health challenges,"

Corona's stated goal is "Functional Zero," in which all are placed in housing and the system is nimble enough to quickly respond as others fall into homelessness.

Riverside Art Museum to Receive Nation's Highest Honor for Community Service

RIVERSIDE (CNS) - The Riverside Art Museum is one of two Southern California institutions that will be honored this summer with a 2023 National Medal for Museum and Library Service.

Cheech Marin exults as he holds up the key to the City of Riverside presented to him in June 2022, at the opening of the Riverside Art Museum's Cheech Center for Arts & Culture.

IT will join the Los Angeles County Library system among the eight recipients of the nation's highest honor for museum and library services.

The medals have been presented for the past 29 years by the Washington, D.C. based Institute of Museum and Library Services to celebrate institutions that are making a difference for individuals, families and communities.

This year's recipients were selected from among 30 national finalists "that provide dynamic programming and services that exceed expected levels of service," Institute Director Crosby Kemper said. "Through their community outreach, these institutions bring about change that touches the lives of individuals and helps communities thrive.

"Riverside Art Museum integrates art into the lives of people in a way that engages, inspires, and builds community through thought-provoking exhibits and art classes that instill a lifelong love of the arts. The museum values art education as well as exhibitions and collections and aims to uplift untold stories."

The museum was formed in the early 1950s by a loose-knit group of artists and formally opened in 1967 in a building designed by award winning architect Julia Morgan.

A second outlet, The Cheech Marin Center for Chicano Art & Culture, which is also known as The Cheech, opened June 18, 2022 in partnership with actor-comedian Cheech Marin.

Congressman Mark Takano (D-Riverside) nominated the museum for the award.

"I am thrilled to extend my heartfelt congratulations to the Riverside Art Museum on receiving the esteemed 2023 National Medal for Museum and Library Service," he said in a statement. "This well-deserved recognition is a testament to their groundbreaking work establishing The Cheech and in showcasing Chicano art and culture, bridging gaps in representation, and fostering inclusivity within our community.

"The Riverside Art Museum has truly set a new standard of excellence, and we celebrate their dedication to preserving and celebrating the vibrant heritage of the Inland Empire. This award is a proud moment for the 39th Congressional District and a shining example of the transformative power of art."

The museum's executive director, Drew Oberjuerge, said the award is an affirmation of its mission in the community.

"This award is a tribute to how inspiring transformation can occur when a group of people come together with the goal to uplift and celebrate the human experience through art," Oberjuerge said. "Our Trustees and staff have prioritized community voices and community collaboration, which resulted in the establishment of The Cheech and the ongoing innovation of our organization and programs."

The awards are usually presented in August, but no date was announced for this year's ceremony.

Dam Mural

In March, the Board of Supervisors authorized the district to enter into a four-month compact with the conservancy, establishing that the nonprofit should have unfettered access to Prado Dam and that all rights and licenses stemming from its work on the spillway will be reserved to the district.

Prado Dam is the property of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, but the Flood Control & Water Conservation District operates within the space to control Santa Ana River water flows.

The original Bicentennial Mural was painted in celebration of America's 200th birthday in 1976. The recreated mural is said to be virtually identical to the previous one.

The Corps granted the district a license to repaint the mural, which will be permitted to remain in place for at least five years, though that period could be extended.

The Corps was impervious to requests for the original mural to remain, citing lead paint hazards and related reasons. Preservation advocates sued in federal court seeking to prevent the Corps from proceeding with dismantling the display, but the litigation ended in 2021 in favor of the Corps.

Efforts to have the National Park Service declare the former spillway display a national landmark did not gain traction. Keeper of the National Register of Historic Places Joy Beasley said in 2019 that it did not qualify for special protected status because there had been "massive over-painting, loss of original paint through normal wear, and the addition of other non-historic graffiti."

In 2017, the Corps received over 200 letters and a petition containing 30,000 signatures, urging the government to find exceptions that would permit the Bicentennial Mural to be maintained. According to the Corps, the first criterion for preservation was that the structure be at least 50 years old, and the old mural fell short of that.

Officials further stated the commemorative aspects of the original mural, which was 106 feet tall and stretched 2,280 feet across, were insufficient for federal recognition because it was created to honor one thing -- the nation's 200th birthday -- and that was done with celebratory intent, not because the people behind the artwork were endeavoring to make something permanent.

In July 2015, the Mural Conservancy of Los Angeles federally sued the Corps to halt moves toward removing the mural. A U.S. District Court judge in Riverside issued an injunction barring any work at the site until all options for the mural's future were explored. The injunction was lifted in 2021.

The original mural, which was completely removed in February, had been painted in May 1976, when more than 30 Corona High School students spent several weekends voluntarily working on the project.

Upon completion, it read "200 Years of Freedom," with a space depicting the Liberty Bell, followed by "1776-1976" painted in red, white and blue.

The spillway is visible from portions of the Corona (71) Expressway and the Riverside (91) Freeway.

SHRIMP Pasta

in a Creamy Basil and Spinach Sauce

Connor Forbes

By Connor Forbes

Some nights you just want a meal that is going to warm you from the inside. And fill your belly up right. This meal checks both those boxes.

I made this for my family, and it got rave reviews from my wife and my 6-year-old. When that happens, I know it is a good one to share with you. So, let's just get right into the recipe!

Ingredients

- 1 lb shrimp, peeled and deveined
- 1 yellow bell pepper, diced
- 1 brown onion, diced
- ¼ cup basil, finely chopped
- ¼ spinach, finely chopped
- 4 cloves garlic, diced
- 4 tbsp olive oil, split in half
- 2 tbsp butter
- ½ cup heavy cream
- ½ cup whole milk
- ½ cup pasta water
- 2 big tbsp sour cream
- ½ squeezed lemon
- 1 lb Farfalle pasta
- Salt to taste

To Make

Boil water and cook the pasta. In a bowl mix basil, spinach, garlic and 2 tbsp olive oil together and set aside. You can mash these ingredients together in a mortar with a pestle if you have one. In a large saucepan on medium low heat, add the butter and 2 tbsp of olive oil. Add the onion and bell pepper and stir. If you have the time, caramelize the onion and bell pepper down for a richer flavor, about 45 minutes. If you don't have the time cook the onion and bell pepper until the onion is translucent and soft, about 8-10 minutes. Push to the side of the pan. Add the shrimp. I cut mine into ¼'s but you can leave whole, whichever your preference. Cook shrimp for 2 minutes and flip. Squeeze lemon over shrimp, onions, and peppers. Add ½ cup of pasta water from the pasta boiling on the other burner. Mix shrimp, onions, and bell pepper together. Add cooked pasta to the pan and mix all together. Add the basil, spinach and garlic sauce. Mix in thoroughly. Add the heavy cream, sour cream and whole milk and mix thoroughly. Cover and simmer on low for 2 minutes. Add salt to taste. Mix again before serving! You can garnish with additional basil. EAT!

LOS ANGELES - A California appeals court said Tuesday that Leslie Van Houten, who participated in two killings at the direction of cult leader Charles Manson in 1969, should be let out of prison on parole.

The appellate court's ruling reverses an earlier decision by Gov. Gavin Newsom, who rejected parole for Van Houten in 2020. She has been recommended for parole five times since 2016. All of those recommendations were rejected by either Newsom or former California Gov. Jerry Brown.

California Attorney General Rob Bonta could ask the California Supreme Court to stop her release. Neither his office nor Newsom's immediately responded to requests for comment on whether they would do so.

Van Houten, now in her 70s, is serving a life sentence for helping Manson and other followers kill Leno LaBianca, a grocer in Los Angeles, and his wife Rosemary. Van Houten was 19 at the time.

Newsom has said that Van Houten still poses a danger to society. In rejecting her parole, he said she offered an inconsistent and inadequate explanation for her involvement with Manson at the time of the killings.

The Second District Court of Appeal in Los Angeles ruled 2-1 to reverse Newsom's decision, writing there is "no evidence to support the Governor's conclusions" about Van Houten's fitness for parole.

"Van Houten has shown extraordinary rehabilitative efforts, insight, remorse, realistic parole plans, support from family and friends, favorable institutional reports, and, at the time of the Governor's decision, had received four successive grants of parole," the judges wrote. "Although the Governor states Van Houten's historical factors 'remain salient,' he identifies nothing in the record indicating Van Houten has not successfully addressed those factors through many years of therapy, substance abuse programming, and other efforts."

Nancy Tetreault, Van Houten's attorney, said she expects Bonta to ask the state Supreme Court to review the lower court's decision, a process that could take years.

In addition, Bonta will likely request a stay of the appellate court's ruling, Tetreault said. The high court could order Van Houten's release while it decides on whether to grant the stay.

"I will, of course, vigorously oppose any stay," Tetreault said. "And they could let her out during that process."

Van Houten was 19 when she and other cult members stabbed to death the LaBiancas in August 1969. She said they carved up Leno LaBianca's body and smeared the couple's blood on the walls.

The slayings came the day after other Manson followers, not including Van Houten, killed pregnant actress Sharon Tate and four others in violence that spread fear across Los Angeles and captivated the nation.

California Becomes the First State to Phase Out Toxic Hexavalent Chromium

"Chromium 6" Made Famous in Erin Brockovitch Film

There's a toxic history to the shiny decorative finishes so ubiquitous on the wheels and bumpers of classic cars.

Chrome plating on a vehicle.

CHROME plating is important to a variety of consumer products from vintage automobiles to aerospace components to plumbing fixtures.

But hexavalent chromium—a highly hazardous substance emitted by chrome-plating businesses—is 500 times more carcinogenic than diesel exhaust, putting it in the cross hair of regulators for decades.

The California Air Resources Board today approved a landmark ban on use of the substance by the chrome plating industry. The ban requires companies, who opposed the action, to use alternative materials.

The ban came after more than two hours of debate and public comment. Board members, while signaling their empathy for the potentially impacted vintage car platers, said public health was paramount.

Air board member Hector De La Torre compared the ban to a 1976 rule phasing out lead in gasoline.

"There is no mass produced leaded gasoline, not just in California, in the United States, so that changed as a result of an action that was taken here," De La Torre said. "So there is precedent for taking a leap like that—for the health and safety of the public."

The new rule will make California the first state to ban the substance more commonly known as chromium 6. Decorative plating businesses will have until 2027 to discontinue their use. Larger chrome plating plants, which use the toxin for industrial durability purposes, will have until 2039.

The ban comes after years of activists' efforts to limit use of the chemical, which the state identified as a toxic air pollutant in 1986. Jane Williams, executive director of California Communities Against Toxics, said the ruling is significant because Los Angeles County has a large concentration of chrome platers.

The air board said 113 chrome plating facilities operate with hexavalent chromium in California, and over 70% of them are in overburdened and disadvantaged communities, many near homes and schools, though industry representatives said in public comments that the board's numbers were inaccurate.

"They can be tiny, they can be small, or they can be nestled inside larger industrial facilities, and so it's not something that strikes you, like a generator or a refinery," said Williams. "But the problem is what they're doing there: They're boiling vats of toxic metal-water solution."

> The problem is what they're doing there: They're boiling vats of toxic metal-water solution.
> Jane Williams, Executive Director of California Communities Against Toxics

Industrial components are plated by being submerged in baths containing chromium 6 though decorative and functional plating deploy different processes. Emissions occur in the form of bubbles that rise to the top of the tanks and can be released in mists, drops and spills that can settle on floors, equipment and other surfaces. Once dry dust can be released by open doors and vents.

Bryan Leiker, executive director of the Metal Finishing Association of California, said the air board's rule amounts to an unfair ban on an industry that has proven it can use the toxic substance safely.

He pointed to state data indicating that the state's larger chrome platers produce less than 1% of emissions, with the majority coming from burning fossil fuels, cement production and other industries.

"The issue we have here is that our industry of course is in agreement with fair regulation, but what we have here is a ban," Leiker said. "This is just a universal ban across the whole industry."

Less-toxic trivalent chromium is available as an alternative, and the air board hopes decorative chrome platers will widely adopt it following the ban. The problem, decorative chrome-platers say, is that trivalent chromium lacks the ornamental shine of chromium 6 — that glow ubiquitous among the lustrous lowriders synonymous with the likes of Art Leboe or the gleaming hot rods featured in "American Graffiti."

Trivalent chromium is not "period correct," wrote Art Holman, a managing partner of Sherm's Plating in Sacramento, in recent public commentary to the air board. Holman wrote that he fears customers will ship their products to other states to be plated, "adding more chrome emissions due to transportation."

THE LITTLE MERMAID

By Bob Garver

Back in 1989, the animated version of "The Little Mermaid" ushered in what came to be known as the "Disney Renaissance," an era of creative and commercial prosperity where the company reclaimed its position as the king of animated family entertainment. Now in 2023, the company is looking to a live-action version of "The Little Mermaid" to put it back on top of that mountain, minus the animation.

SURE, the MCU is doing well, but the studio hasn't really been connecting with younger audiences lately, at least not at the box office. The pandemic forced "Soul," "Luca," and "Turning Red" to go directly to streaming, "Raya and the Last Dragon" opened too soon after theaters reopened to be a blockbuster, "Encanto" didn't perform as well as its legacy would suggest, and "Strange World" simply did not find an audience. The best performer since 2019 was last year's critical flop "Lightyear" with $118 million domestic, a number "The Little Mermaid" is projected to nearly match or even beat by the end of the four-day Memorial Day weekend.

The story, as before, is that mermaid princess Ariel (Halle Bailey) wants to leave underwater life behind and live on the surface with humans, especially the hunky Prince Eric (Jonah Hauer-King). Her father, King Triton (Javier Bardem), forbids her from so much as visiting the surface, and enlists his crab servant Sebastian (Daveed Diggs) to keep an eye on her. A falling-out between father and daughter sends Ariel right into the tentacles of opportunistic sea witch Ursula (Melissa McCarthy), who offers Ariel a chance to be human for three days. If she can get a true-love's kiss from Eric in that time without using her voice, she can stay human forever. If she fails, she becomes Ursula's slave. She sets out on the adventure of a lifetime on land, aided by Sebastian and her friends, fish Flounder (Jacob Trembley) and stork Scuttle (Awkwafina). Can she get the kiss despite Ursula's scheming?

The good news is that the musical numbers fans love are well-translated here with excellent vocals from Bailey and Diggs and some gorgeous choreography. I was mimicking bits of "Part of Your World," "Under the Sea," "Poor Unfortunate Souls," "Kiss the Girl," and Ariel's non-lyrical siren song for days after I saw this movie, much to the annoyance of people around me. Also, the cinematography is beautiful with luscious blues and greens (sadly not red though, I miss Ariel's vibrant red hair) and Bailey and Hauer-King have delightful chemistry as they fall in love.

The bad news is that the film goes for some additions that don't work. The new songs range from well-meaning-but-unmemorable (Eric's "Wild Uncharted Waters") to downright painful (Scuttle's "The Scuttlebutt," which may mark the single lowest point in composer Lin-Manuel Miranda's career). Eric is given a parallel storyline similar to Ariel's, which does add some much-needed depth to his character, but also results in some eye-rolling redundancy. The CGI-heavy climax pales in comparison to the genuinely tense animated version. And I really hate to say it, because her singing and mute scenes are terrific, but Bailey is often wooden when speaking her lines.

It all balances out to a pretty good movie, perhaps the best of Disney's live-action remakes of their animated classics. The kids at my screening loved it, though I may have just been hearing particularly high-pitched adults. The animated version is still superior, but this new "Little Mermaid" is a decent successor and a great way to introduce the iconic story and characters to a new generation.

Grade: B-

"The Little Mermaid" is rated PG for action/peril and some scary images. Its running time is 135 minutes.

The Little Mermaid' Opens Atop Box Office with $95.5 Million

LOS ANGELES (CNS) - ``The Little Mermaid'' opened with $95.5 million this weekend to lead all films at the North American box office, according to industry estimates released today.

Disney's live-action musical remake of its 1989 animated hit, starring Halle Bailey in the title role, beat out ``Fast X,'' which took in $23 million Friday through Sunday, one week after opening in first place, Comscore reported.

Third place went to ``Guardians Of The Galaxy Vol. 3,'' which grossed $19.9 million in its fourth week of release.

``The Super Mario Bros. Movie'' was fourth with $6.2 million in its eighth week, followed by ``The Machine,'' which opened with $4.9 million.

Rounding out the top 10 domestic releases, as estimated by Comscore, were ``About My Father'' ($4.2 million), ``Kandahar'' ($2.4 million), ``You Hurt My Feelings'' ($1.3 million), ``Evil Dead Rise'' ($1 million) and ``Book Club: The Next Chapter'' ($920,000).

This weekend's overall three-day box office haul was estimated at $161.5 million. The year-to-date total is $3.364 billion -- an increase of 28% over the figure at this time last year, according to Comscore.

Toxic Ban

Meanwhile trivalent chromium does not meet U.S. Department of Defense requirements. Leiker said that the air board is hoping the military will adopt new materials. But the uncertainty is a big risk for an industry that often relies on long lead times and multiyear contracts.

"It is going to put our industry out of business, with a loss of jobs and a large exodus of manufacturing," he said. "Our industry could be a ghost town in the state, long gone; there is a lot at stake here."

The Legislature has set aside $10 million to assist the industry make the change but some board members said the money was likely not enough.

The air board in 1988 adopted its first emissions standards for chromium 6 use in the plating industry, requiring facilities to equip their tanks with fume suppressants, filters or other pollution control devices. Over the intervening decades, those rules have been revised to further restrict and regulate hexavalent chromium.

The toxin has some presence in popular culture.

Anaplex, a metal-plating company In Paramount, Los Angeles County, was shut down by air-quality officials in 2017 and 2018 because of hexavalent chromium emissions. Small amounts of hexavalent chromium, which comes from nearby metal-plating plants, were found in the air inside Lincoln Elementary classrooms in 2017 tests.

The court battle over the presence of the chemical in drinking water in the San Bernardino County town of Hinkley was dramatized in the movie "Erin Brockovich."

But environmental advocates and residents of Los Angeles' low-income, industrial neighborhoods and cities have long raised concerns. Residents of the southeast industrial city of Bell Gardens sued a chrome plating company, Chrome Crankshaft, in 1999, accusing it of producing emissions that had resulted in diseases including cancer, according to The Los Angeles Times.

More recently, air monitoring in the southeast industrial city of Paramount was expanded after chromium 6 was discovered in much higher levels than other parts of Los Angeles County in 2016. The Paramount Unified School District detected chromium 6 in air samples inside two classrooms there. The South Coast Air Quality Management District said that air quality has improved significantly since then.

Christopher Callard, a spokesman for Paramount, said the city had not detected significant samples of chromium 6, including at the schools, since it took over monitoring of the substance in 2021.

If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (866) 539-4173, or visit this internet website https://www.servicelinkauction.com, using the file number assigned to this case 23-8473 to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. The street address and other common designation, if any, of the real property described above is purported to be: 27305 BUFFALO TRAIL, CORONA, CA 92883 The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address and other common designation, if any, shown herein. Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to pay the remaining principal sum of the Note(s) secured by said Deed of Trust, with interest thereon, as provided in said Note(s), advances if any, under the terms of the Deed of Trust, estimated fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust. The total amount of the unpaid balance of the obligations secured by the property to be sold and reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of this Notice of Trustee's Sale is estimated to be $107,901.85 (Estimated). The property offered for sale excludes all funds held on account by the property receiver, if applicable. If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. Notice to Potential Bidders If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a Trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a Trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same Lender may hold more than one mortgage or Deed of Trust on the property. Notice to Property Owner The sale date shown on this Notice of Sale may be postponed one or more times by the Mortgagee, Beneficiary, Trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about Trustee Sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call Nationwide Posting & Publication at 916.939.0772 for information regarding the Trustee's Sale or visit the Internet Website www.nationwideposting.com for information regarding the sale of this property, using the file number assigned to this case, CA08000305-22-2. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Website. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. Notice to Tenant NOTICE TO TENANT FOR FORECLOSURES AFTER JANUARY 1, 2021 You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property

You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of the outstanding lien that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. For sales conducted after January 1, 2021: NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (844) 477-7869, or visit this internet website www.STOXPOSTING.com, using the file number assigned to this case 86299 to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid; by remitting the funds and affidavit described in Section 2924m(c) of the Civil Code; so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase.

Santiago's Blade Capture's State 3200-Meter Title

ROOSEVELT'S ROBERSON IN DEAD HEAT IN 300-METER HURDLES

By Jerry Soifer

Clovis -- Corona Santiago sophomore Rylee Blade secured more than a first-place medal when she won the 3200-meter run at the CIF state track and field championships at Buchanan High School in Clovis Saturday. Blade etched her name in the lore of memorable figures who litter the rolls of the 100-plus year event.

Corona Santiago's Rylee Blade nears the finish of the 3200-meter run which she won in 10 minutes 2.19 seconds. Oaks Christian's Payton Godsey was second in 10:02.63.

SHE joins Olympic champions Gale Devers and Tommie Smith; Super Bowl winners Randy Cross and Reggie Bush; political figures Bob Mathias, humanitarian Rafer Johnson and World War II hero Louis Zamperini whose final steps as a high school athletes were at the state meet.

Blade bent from the top step of the victory stand to receive her medal from Mike West, the newly elected Commissioner of Athletics of the CIF Southern Section. After presenting the medal, he extended his right hand to shake hers.

It was a tough race for Blade who ran in the lead pack. As the runners reached the final laps, that pack thinned. In the home stetch, it was Blade holding off Oaks Christian's Payton Godsey. Blade won in 10 minutes 2.19 seconds. Godsey was second in 10:02.63.

Godsey had the lead at 1600 meters with a time of 5:05:27. Blade was timed in 5:06.25. Each ran the second half of the grueling race faster than the first half. Godsey had the lead with one lap to go. Blade ran her last lap in 68.34 seconds to Godsey's 68.90.

Eastvale Roosevelt's Cayden Roberson was involved in a blanket finish of the leading three finalists in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles. Roberson was timed in 37.44 seconds but was assigned third place by the reading of the photo finish camera. Winner Darryll Stevens, of Long Beach Jordan, was given the time of 37.44. The runner-up was Devin Paton, of Monrovia.

Kailah McKenzie, of Perris' Orange Vista High, ran to third place in the 100-meter hurdle finals in 13.89 seconds. Kori Fields, of St. Mary's, won in 13.79. Giselle Kirchner, of Rocklin, was second in 13.85. She also took fifth in the long jump 19-feet 9 1/2 inches and eighth in the high jump at 5-4.

Orange Vista's Mercy Ehiemere, took fifth in the 400 meters in 55.12.
