Peer into the cougars' eyes. Trinidad Rivera's favorite mural at Norco High School that he painted freehand, building confidence in himself as a complete artist.

From GRAFFITI TO MURALIST

AN ARTIST'S JOURNEY OF REDEMPTION

By Connor Forbes

Trinidad (Mike) Rivera is a bad liar… and a great artist. When he was a kid, his mom, famed singer Jenni Rivera, always knew when he was pulling one over on her. He would start sweating and squirming. Overall panic would set in. And he knew he wouldn't be getting away with it.

AND sometimes, he hadn't even done anything wrong. He just looked guilty.

His love of art started from a young age - reading comic books and drawing pictures. Though he didn't know that art would be his calling in life.

Trinidad moved to Norco from Long Beach as a 10-year-old. Moving from the urban life to the rural was a culture shock, he says. And waking up to the smell of cow manure made him feel worlds away. And let's just say, not his favorite smell. Yet one he now mourns has left with the dairy farms.

Day of the Child

The Day of the Child was celebrated Saturday at Corona City Park with Oliva Morales, 11, center, and Brayan Ibarra Flores, 9, right, being crowned princess and prince by last year's prince Jaiden Cortes, left. The Day of the Child honors children coping with medical challenges. Olivia, a fifth grader at Eisenhower Elementary School in Corona was born six months prematurely at one pound one ounce. She has undergone corrective surgeries for breathing difficulties, vision problems, and a speech impediment. Brayan, a third-grade student at Corona Ranch Elementary was born with spina bifida, a birth defect in which the spine is not fully enclosed.

Cal Fire Conducting Weeklong Wildfire Exercises West of Lake Elsinore

LAKE ELSINORE (CNS) - Cal Fire crews and inmate firefighters will be deploying next week for an extended "Wildfire Preparedness Exercise" near Lake Elsinore intended to prepare personnel for a long summer of battling brush fires.

"THIS measures the skill-set and readiness of Cal Fire engine and inmate firefighting crews to respond to wildland fires throughout the state," according to an agency statement. "Training will consist of tool-up and personnel inspection, hiking, brush clearing and line construction, fire shelter deployment and vehicle safety inspections."

The weeklong drill started Monday morning at the Los Pinos Fire Center, in the area of Long Canyon Drive and Main Divide Truck Trail, just north of the Ortega (74) Highway and roughly two miles west of Lake Elsinore.

"It not only evaluates everyone's physical abilities but also the supervisors' ability to lead and manage a crew of up to 17 personnel," Battalion Chief Cody Wright said. "Completion of this exercise certifies the crew to Type 1 status, which means they can fight fire safely and aggressively without restrictions."

The drills are conducted annually ahead of wildfire season, which generally spans May to November in Southern California.

Inmate hand crews are based at multiple camps in the region.

It was unclear whether U.S. Forest Service firefighters from the surrounding Cleveland National Forest would be participating in the exercise, which is concluding on Friday.

Report: Riverside County's Jobless Rate Edges Lower

RIVERSIDE (CNS) - Riverside County's unemployment rate edged lower last month amid payroll gains across many sectors of the regional economy, according to figures released Friday by the California Employment Development Department.

THE countywide jobless rate in March, based on preliminary EDD estimates, was 5.2%, compared to 5.6% in February.

According to data, the March rate was nearly a percentage point above the year-ago level, when countywide unemployment stood at 4.4%.

Mecca had the highest unemployment rate countywide in March at 12.5%, followed by Cherry Valley at 9.3%, Coachella at 8.7%, Rancho Mirage at 7.3% and Hemet at 7.2%.

The combined unemployment rate for Riverside and San Bernardino counties -- the Inland Empire -- in March was 5.1%, down from 5.5% in February, the EDD reported.

Bi-county data indicated payrolls expanded by the widest margin in the public sector, mainly in the regional education system, with an estimated 2,300 jobs added.

Additional gains were recorded in the construction, health services and professional business services sectors, which altogether grew by 4,800 jobs, according to the EDD.

Miscellaneous unclassified industries also showed payroll growth, totaling about 200 positions.

The warehousing trade sector shed the highest number of jobs at 900, while another 300 positions were lost in manufacturing, with an equal amount gone in financial services.

The agricultural, mining and information technology sectors were unchanged last month, the EDD said.

The statewide non-seasonally adjusted unemployment rate in March was 5.3%.

California Rejects Bill to Crackdown on How Utilities Spend Customers' Money

By ADAM BEAM
Associated Press

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California lawmakers on Monday rejected a proposal aimed at cracking down on how some of the nation's largest utilities spend customers' money.

California's investor-owned utilities can't use money from customers to pay for things like advertising their brand or lobbying for legislation. Instead, they're supposed to use money from private investors to pay for those things.

Consumer groups say utilities are finding ways around those rules. They accuse them of using money from customers to fund trade groups that lobby legislators and for TV ads disguised as public service announcements, including some recent ads by Pacific Gas & Electric.

A bill in the state Legislature would have expanded the definitions of prohibited advertising and political influence to include things like regulators' decisions on rate-setting and franchises for electrical and gas corporations. It would also allow regulators to fine utilities that break the rules.

Monday, the bill failed to pass a legislative committee for the second time in the face of intense opposition from utilities, including Pacific Gas & Electric.

"We've seen too many examples of the blatant misuse of ratepayer funds across the state," said Democratic state Sen. Dave Min, who authored the bill that failed to pass on Monday. "I know that consumers are outraged by this."

PG&E opposed the bill because it said it would take away the power of state regulators to examine utility companies' costs and decide whether it is "just or reasonable" for customers to pay for them.

Plus, PG&E lobbyist Brandon Ebeck said it's appropriate for customers to pay for the company's membership fees that go to various industry associations because they benefit customers. He noted those groups coordinate emergency response and wildfire training. When the war in Ukraine started, the Edison Electric Institute — a national association representing investor-owned utilities — sought to find surplus equipment that could be sent to Ukraine.

"There's a lot of benefits to customers," Ebeck said.

The bill was part of a larger backlash against the rising cost of electricity in California. Power is expensive in California in part because of the work required to maintain and upgrade electrical equipment to reduce the risk of wildfires in a state with long, dry summers.

As rates have continued to climb, utilities like Pacific Gas & Electric, Southern California Edison and San Diego Gas & Electric have faced increasing scrutiny from consumer groups over how they spend the money they collect from customers.

Matt Vespa, senior attorney at the environmental advocacy group Earthjustice, said Monday's vote was "incredibly disappointing." He said the current rules for utilities "incentivizes them to see what they can get away with."

`Animal Walk' Planned in Fairmount Park Saturday

RIVERSIDE (CNS) - Hundreds of pet owners are expected to pour into Fairmount Park near downtown Riverside on Saturday for the annual "Walk with the Animals," which is open to feline and canine owners throughout the Inland Empire, and registration is open today, Friday.

THE 32nd annual event is slated for 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday, April 27.

The general cost of registration is $40, while students of any age are eligible for a $10 discount.

Expectations are that upwards of 1,500 pet owners and their four- legged friends will be participating, forming "walk teams" that circle the park, organizers said.

"Following the walk, attendees can shop from the vendor village, burn off energy at the `Kids Zone,' participate in pet contests, and purchase tickets for the over 40 raffle prizes that include gift cards for restaurants, events and experiences," according to Molly Shannon, the event coordinator.

She said that the Mary S. Roberts Pet Adoption Center relies on proceeds from the walk "for the care of the thousands of homeless animals helped by the Pet Adoption Center and its programs and services each year."

CSUSB Palm Desert Campus to Host Gala for Hospitality Management Program

PALM DESERT (CNS) - Cal State San Bernardino's Palm Desert campus will host a special gala next weekend to celebrate and support its hospitality management program.

The "Spirit of Polynesia" event will get underway at 5 p.m. April 27 at the Renaissance Esmeralda Resort and Spa, 44400 Indian Wells Lane, according to campus spokesman Mike Singer. It will feature Tiki drinks and native dishes influenced by Southeast Asia, Europe and South America.

Cal State San Bernardino

Students in the hospitality management program visit destinations near and far, including New York's September 11 Memorial and Museum.

"The gala is a component of the hospitality management program's curriculum and a learning activity in the Meetings and Event Planning course," CSUSB Palm Desert campus hospitality management director Joe Tormey said in a statement. "Students assist in planning a large-scale event that generates financial support for their education, study abroad opportunities and the marketing of the program."

The evening will showcase the program's developments, introduce its students and recognize sponsors and donors, according to Singer. The hospitality management program caters to the hospitality and tourism industry in the Coachella Valley, where there is a consistent demand for qualified applicants for managerial positions.

All proceeds from the event will benefit the program.

"The gala affords students the opportunity for experiential learning and serves as a platform to celebrate their accomplishments and acknowledge the outstanding support from sponsors, donors and the community," Tormey added.

More information about the event, including about tickets, which start at $150, can be found at csusb.edu/marketing/hospitality-management-program.

Remaining Riverside County Defendants in Capitol Breach Sentenced

RIVERSIDE (CNS) - Four Riverside County men who joined thousands in the unrest that led to the breach of the U.S. Capitol Building on Jan. 6, 2021, were sentenced last Friday to federal prison to serve terms varying from just under two years to nearly three years.

Erik Scott Warner, 48, of Menifee; Felipe Antonio Martinez, 50; and Derek Kinnison, 42 -- both of Lake Elsinore -- along with Ronald Mele, 54, of Temecula were all convicted in November during a trial at U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C., of conspiracy to obstruct an official proceeding and obstruction of an official proceeding.

Warner and Kinnison were additionally convicted of tampering with documents.

All four were also found guilty of misdemeanor charges of entering a restricted building and disruptive conduct in a restricted building.

U.S. District Judge Royce Lamberth sentenced Kinnison and Mele each to 33 months behind bars, while Martinez was ordered to serve a 21-month term, and Warner was sentenced to 27 months.

Felipe Antonio Martinez

The judge also ordered the foursome to each pay $2,000 in restitution to the government and remain on parole for 36 months following their release.

Kinnison's attorney, Nicolai Cocis of Murrieta, in November described his client as "a patriotic citizen who wanted to show his support for President Donald Trump, whom he believed was the rightful winner of the 2020 election."

The attorney told City News Service at the time that Kinnison regretted "his involvement in the events of Jan. 6 at the Capitol."

Federal prosecutors argued the four joined thousands who sought to disrupt proceedings at the Capitol, where Congress was preparing to certify the Electoral College vote recognizing President-elect Joe Biden as the winner of the 2020 presidential election.

They were part of a group called the "Three Percenters," which has been described variously as a militia, political action organization and anti- government movement around since the 2000s. Some members draw parallels between themselves and the rebel forces opposing the British Empire during the War for American Independence.

Norco Muralist

He attended Highland Elementary before moving through the school system to Norco Intermediate, and finally Norco High in 2006.

At Norco High, Trinidad was a bright student. He has fond memories of his time as a pupil there, the teachers, and of the cultural diversity to which he was exposed. Homework though, not so much.

He made quick friends with a group of graffiti artists whose signings were well-known around the school, and with its administration. He was building a name and reputation for himself and his friends, Rivera says. And it worked. But not to his advantage necessarily.

One day he was blown away by professional muralists painting the original "Cougar Pride" mural. He saw himself in them and thought that he was doing something similar with his graffiti. And eventually that could be him, taking his passion for graffiti and making it legit. Well, once he had the confidence and put himself together, he says.

On a fateful day during summer school in 2009, Trinidad went to relieve himself in the restroom. The school cameras caught him in the general vicinity of a truck being tagged, and he was implicated.

Sitting in front of Assistant Principal Robert Ibbetson, sweating and squirming, sounding and looking guilty in a sweatshirt with his graffiti crew's name on it, Trinidad was pinned for the misdeed. One in which he adamantly denies.

Trinidad says he learned the word "prolific" that day from Ibbetson.

Fifteen years later, Ibbetson doesn't remember the specific incident, but says he would keep and study pictures of tagging. And while he appreciated the artistic component of it, he didn't appreciate how tagging defaced the school. And Trinidad and his friend's art was prolific throughout the school.

While Ibbetson always tried to connect with students on their level, Trinidad was sent home from school that day. And that precipitated the end of his career at Norco.

After Norco High, Rivera worked in reality TV. He starred in the show "I Love Jenni" alongside his family. After a couple more Reality TV series he found himself longing for something else.

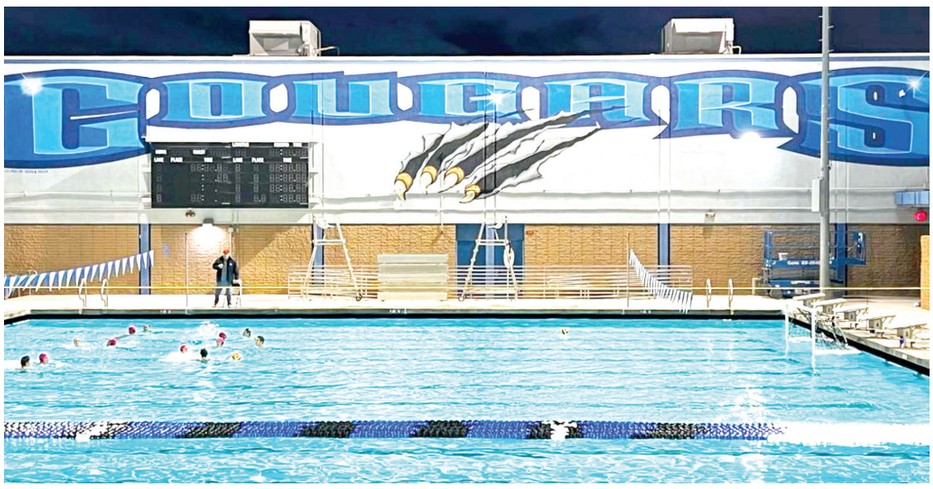

Reality TV just wasn't enough, Trinidad says. He didn't feel proud of his work, and he was wandering around without any goals. Rivera was looking to find work he could be proud of.

During this period, Rivera was brought on to curate a couple of murals of his mom, who tragically passed in a plane crash in 2012.

City of Long Beach @longbeachcity Instagram

Trinidad Rivera was hands-on, contributing to the mural in the Long Beach park named for his famed mother, singer Jenni Rivera. That caught the eye of artist "Downtown" Daniel Antello, who encouraged Trinidad to study under legendary mentor Doc Guthrie at Los Angeles Trade-Technical College. A youthful passion evolved into a career.

@bossgraphicsmurals Instagram

The mural over Norco High's pool was painted by Rivera's company, Boss Graphics.

One of the murals, painted in 2013, is in Corona on 6th Street across from City Hall. And another, painted in 2015, is in Long Beach. For both projects Trinidad was asked to consult on the murals and find artists to execute them. Though he was not the principal artist.

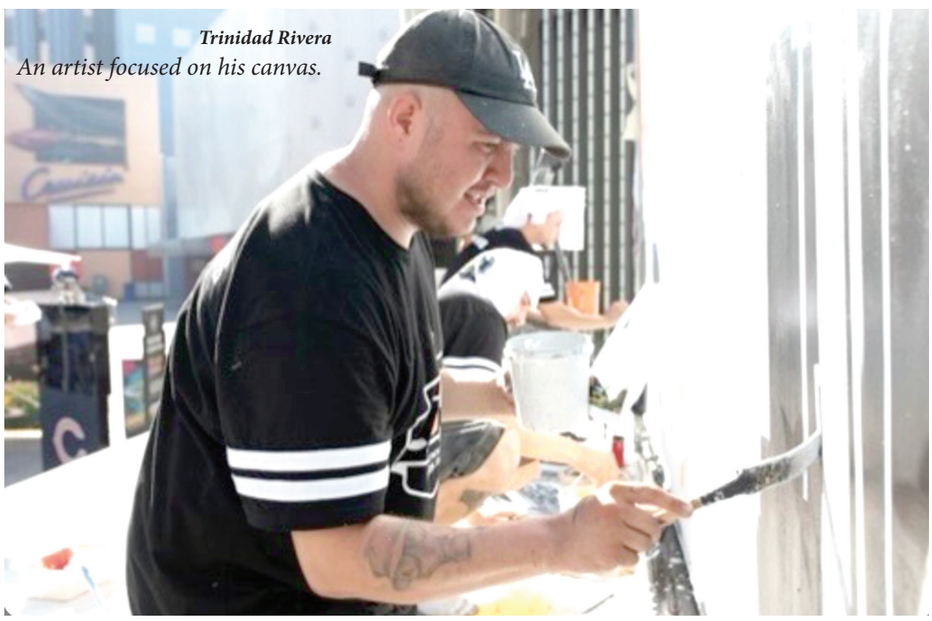

On the Long Beach mural, located at the now named Jenni Rivera Memorial Park, he was hands-on putting paint to the wall. Renowned artist "Downtown" Daniel Antelo who worked on the project told Rivera he was doing a good job. Antelo encouraged Trinidad to attend Los Angeles Trade-Technical College to study under the legendary Doc Guthrie, who was well known for turning taggers and graffiti artists into professional sign painters and muralists.

Growing up without a father in the picture, Trinidad saw Doc as a father figure. And growing up a son of a celebrity, he was coddled and guarded. But Doc gave it to him real and gave him a lot of tough love that he needed, Rivera says.

In an ironic twist of fate, after completing Sign Painting School in 2017, Trinidad's first assignment was to touch up the original Norco High "Cougar Pride" mural that had sparked something inside him while in High School. Of the 5 Norco High murals he's worked on, it's his second favorite.

His favorite? The Cougar eyes that he free-handed on the backside of the school's entrance. And for many reasons. It pushed him past his comfort zone of letters, giving him the confidence to see himself as more than just a sign painter, but rather a full-blown artist. Additionally, it is above the very spot where he met his best friends and fellow graffiti artists when he started Norco High. Eventually spurring his journey into art as a career.

And as for Mr. Ibbetson who would become principal in 2014, "I was so pleased to see Trinidad years later working on our mural at Norco High School. We took some time to talk about his journey. I encouraged him to stay the path because he has a real talent."

"When Trinidad was working on the "Cougar Eyes" mural I remember watching him take the mural from a simple layout and sketch to a beautiful rendering. Being true to real cougars in the wild, Trinidad painted incredible green eyes. I approached him and asked him to make the eyes blue. He thought I was nuts but I explained to him how important Norco Blue was to the school and he understood. He changed the eyes to a stunning blue, with some small flecks of green!"

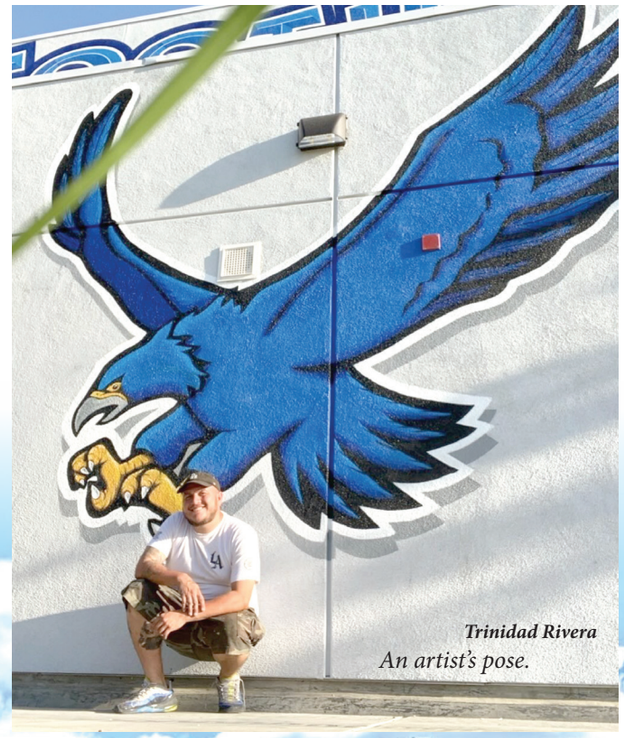

"Hearing now that he is the owner of one of the most respected mural companies in the region does not surprise me. I am proud of him and what he has accomplished. I know he enjoys what he does and really takes to heart the fact that he is a walking example of determination and success for students that may not see themselves as future professionals and leaders in our community."

"Trinidad is, and will always be, a part of the Norco High School Cougar Family. We are proud of him and look forward to seeing more of his incredible work painted at Norco High and other high schools," Ibbetson says.

Bringing his life full circle.

Trinidad Rivera is the owner of Boss Graphics, a mural company that has brought school spirit alive for more than 30 years. Rivera took over the company when the previous owner retired a couple of years ago. Find their work at www.bossgraphics.com or on Instagram www.instagram.com/bossgraphicsmurals.

In 2022 Robert Ibbetson moved to the CNUSD district office to be Director of Career Technical Education.

"ABIGAIL"

By Bob Garver

After last week's heavy, serious, ultraviolent "Civil War," I needed a movie like the lighter, sillier, also ultraviolent "Abigail." Is this film as intelligent and thought-provoking as last week's offering - a film that still rules the box office, by the way? No. Is this film going to leave much of an impact on popular culture? Probably not – it doesn't do much to stand out from similar movies, some from the same people that made this movie. But would I pick "Abigail" over "Civil War" to watch in my free time because it's much more fun? Oh, yes.

THE film starts out as a kidnapping thriller. A team of strangers work together to abduct 12-year-old Abigail (Alisha Weir) from her family's home and take her to a mysterious mansion overseen by Lambert (Giancarlo Esposito). He insists on taking everyone's phones and tells them not to give each other personal details like their real names, though he assigns them nicknames based on the Rat Pack (seems like the kind of detail that should have been worked out ahead of the actual kidnapping, but you'll be asked to suspend disbelief much further by the movie's end). Lambert just needs the team to watch the girl for 24 hours while he does Head Kidnapper stuff, during which time Joey (Melissa Barrera) is the only one allowed to tend to Abigail, so she doesn't see anyone else's face. Assuming nothing goes wrong, they'll soon be able to go their separate ways with their share of a $50 million ransom. Things go wrong.

We spend a few scenes getting to know the team. The aforementioned Joey is a recovering drug addict that just wants to pull this one job and then be a doting mother to her estranged son. Frank (Dan Stevens) is a former cop that has thus far kept his obvious anger issues in check, but looks like he could snap at any moment. Peter (Kevin Durand) is a dumb musclehead that wants people to think of him as more than a dumb musclehead, but is too much of a dumb musclehead to figure out how to change his image. Rickles (William Catlett) is a former soldier clearly harboring many secrets. Sammy (Kathryn Newton) is a spoiled rich kid that turned to a life of crime out of sheer boredom. And Dean (Angus Cloud) is a 99%-useless idiot that happens to have a talent for driving. I mean no disrespect to Cloud, who passed away last year, but this is a movie where characters are expected to be killed off, and I was hoping that Dean would go early. Given how much effort Cloud clearly put into making Dean annoying, I'm sure he'd take me rooting for the character's death as a compliment.

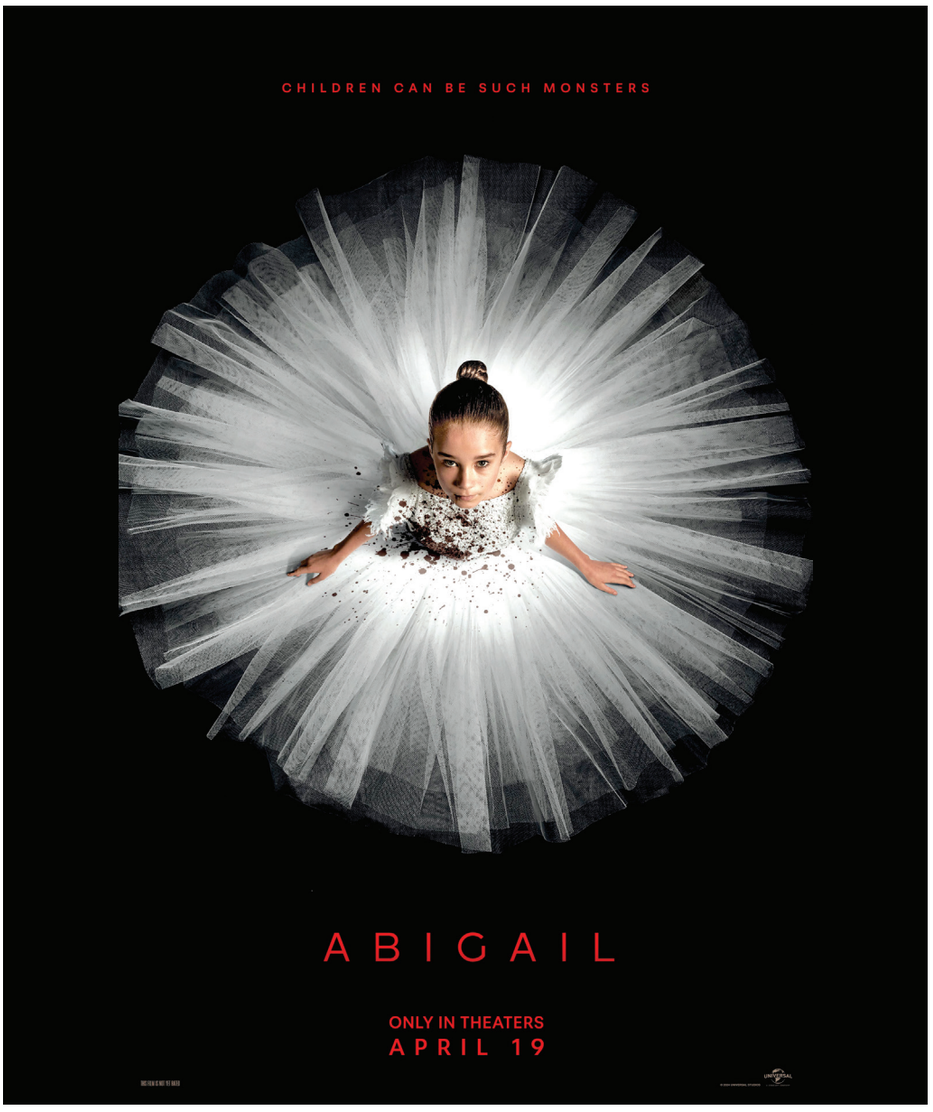

But then there's Abigail herself, and although I don't want to go too far into spoilers, she turns out to be a doozy of a kidnapping victim. In one swift shift, this goes from a movie about a little girl being locked in with six kidnappers to a movie about the kidnappers being locked in with… what they thought was a little girl. She's not happy with the kidnappers or what they've done in the past. Alliances and deals are made and broken to avoid slaughter at Abigail's tiny little hands or huge deadly fangs.

"Abigail" isn't necessarily a great movie by itself, but it works well as something to hold over certain horror fans. Upset that the "Scream" series is in limbo? Here's a movie from Radio Silence, the directors of "Scream VI," plus star Melissa Barrera. Can't wait until next year for "M3GAN 2.0"? Get your dancing little psycho girl fix here. Sorely miss people exploding like bloody water balloons like in Radio Silence's 2019 horror hit "Ready or Not"? This movie just might have you covered. History will probably see "Abigail" as a middling horror movie at best, but here and now it earns bonus points for coming along at the right time.

Grade: B-

"Abigail" is rated R for strong bloody violence and gore throughout, pervasive language and brief drug use. Its running time is 109 minutes.

`CIVIL WAR' EDGES OUT `ABIGAIL' TO KEEP BOX OFFICE LEAD

LOS ANGELES (CNS) - "Civil War" held onto its spot atop the box office on a slow weekend, taking in $11.1 million in its second week in North American theaters, according to industry estimates released Sunday.

Writer/director Alex Garland's drama about a sectarian conflict in the United States beat out the horror film "Abigail," which opened with $10.2 million, Comscore reported.

"Godzilla x Kong: The New Empire" grossed another $9.4 million Friday through Sunday in its fourth week in theaters.

Fourth place went to director Guy Ritchie's "The Ministry of Ungentlemanly Warfare," which opened with $9 million, followed by "Spy x Family Code: White," which opened with $4.8 million.

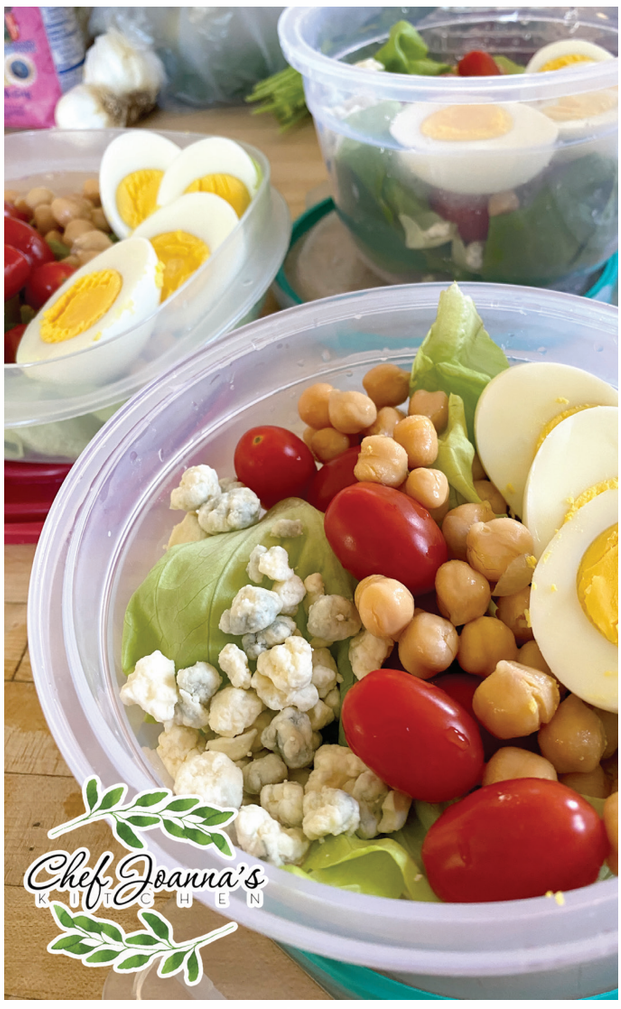

Rounding out the top 10 domestic releases were "Kung Fu Panda 4" ($4.6 million), "Ghostbusters: Frozen Empire" ($4.4 million), "Dune: Part Two" ($2.9 million), "Monkey Man" ($2.2 million) and "The First Omen" ($1.7 million).

This weekend's overall three-day box office haul was estimated at $65.4 million. The year-to-date total is $1.981 billion -- down 19% from the figure at this time last year, according to Comscore.

BRING ME BACK A COBB, BOB!

By Joanna Barajas

I love old Hollywood history. And one of my favorite stories is about the invention of the Cobb salad.

SO, one night at the famous Brown Derby restaurant in Hollywood, the owner got hungry while closing up. But he didn't have enough ingredients to make one dish. So, he threw together what he had in the kitchen and made this salad. And the friends he shared it with loved it.

So, the next day, they came back and asked for a "Cobb Salad."

But why did they call it a Cobb? Because the owner was named Bob Cobb.

And that's how the Cobb Salad was born!

Isn't that cool!

Now it's your turn to create some Hollywood magic in your kitchen!

TURKEY burgers

By Connor Forbes

We love to eat hamburgers around here, but sometimes it is nice to mix it up with a turkey burger.

THE wrap on turkey burgers are that they are dry, or flavorless. But neither of those have to be true. A turkey burger can be as juicy and flavorful as its hamburger cousin. And with less fat and more lean protein.

So let's griddle up a turkey burger!

INGREDIENTS

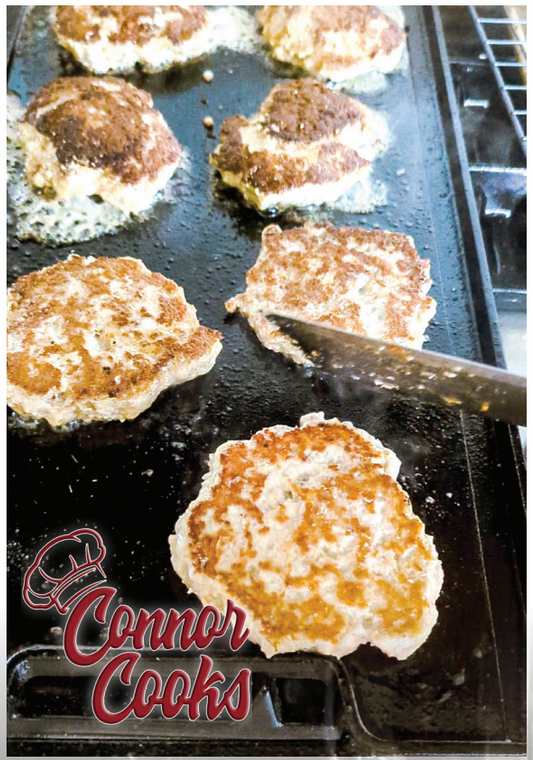

- 1.5 lbs turkey
- 1 egg
- ½ tbsp garlic salt

TO MAKE

Preheat a cast iron griddle or large sauté pan on medium high heat. In a bowl beat the egg for 30 seconds add the garlic salt and mix. Add the turkey and with your hands or a fork, fold in the egg and garlic salt mixture. Form into 4–5-ounce paddies.

Add oil to the preheated pan and place a turkey paddy on top. Sear for 4-5 minutes then flip. Sear for another 4 minutes or until internal temperature reaches 165 degrees. Pull of the pan and let sit for 5 minutes before you EAT!

America's Childcare Crisis is Holding Back Moms Without College Degrees

By MORIAH BALINGIT and SHARON LURYE of The Associated Press and DANIEL BEEKMAN of The Seattle Times

AUBURN, Wash. (AP) — After a series of lower-paying jobs, Nicole Slemp finally landed one she loved.

She was a secretary for Washington's child services department, a job that came with her own cubicle, and she had a knack for working with families in difficult situations.

SLEMP expected to return to work after having her son in August. But then she and her husband started looking for child care – and doing the math. The best option would cost about $2,000 a month, with a long wait list, and even the least expensive option would cost around $1,600, still eating up most of Slemp's salary. Her husband earns about $35 an hour at a hose distribution company. Between them, they earned too much to qualify for government help.

"I really didn't want to quit my job," says Slemp, 33, who lives in a Seattle suburb. But, she says, she felt like she had no choice.

The dilemma is common in the United States, where high-quality child care programs are prohibitively expensive, government assistance is limited, and daycare openings are sometimes hard to find at all. In 2022, more than 1 in 10 young children had a parent who had to quit, turn down or drastically change a job in the previous year because of child care problems. And that burden falls most on mothers, who shoulder more child-rearing responsibilities and are far more likely to leave a job to care for kids.

Even so, women's participation in the workforce has recovered from the pandemic, reaching historic highs in December 2023. But that masks a lingering crisis among women like Slemp who lack a college degree: The gap in employment rates between mothers who have a four-year degree and those who don't has only grown.

For mothers without college degrees, a day without work is often a day without pay. They are less likely to have paid leave. And when they face an interruption in child care arrangements, an adult in the family is far more likely to take unpaid time off or to be forced to leave a job altogether, according to an analysis of Census survey data by The Associated Press in partnership with the Education Reporting Collaborative.

In interviews, mothers across the country shared how the seemingly endless search for child care, and its expense, left them feeling defeated. It pushed them off career tracks, robbed them of a sense of purpose, and put them in financial distress.

Women like Slemp challenge the image of the stay-at-home mom as an affluent woman with a high-earning partner, said Jessica Calarco, a sociologist at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

"The stay-at-home moms in this country are disproportionately mothers who've been pushed out of the workforce because they don't make enough to make it work financially to pay for child care," Calarco said.

Her own research indicates three-quarters of stay-at-home moms live in households with incomes less than $50,000, and half have household incomes of less than $25,000.

Still, the high cost of child care has upended the careers of even those with college degrees.

When Jane Roberts gave birth in November, she and her husband, both teachers, quickly realized sending baby Dennis to day care was out of the question. It was too costly, and they worried about finding a quality provider in their hometown of Pocatello, Idaho.

The school district has no paid medical or parental leave, so Roberts exhausted her sick leave and personal days to stay home with Dennis. In March, she returned to work and husband Mike took leave. By the end of the school year, they'll have missed out on a combined nine weeks of pay. To make ends meet, they've borrowed money against Jane's life insurance policy.

In the fall, Roberts won't return to teaching. The decision was wrenching. "I've devoted my entire adult life to this profession," she said.

For low- and middle-income women who do find child care, the expense can become overwhelming. The Department of Health and Human Services has defined "affordable" child care as an arrangement that costs no more than 7% of a household budget. But a Labor Department study found fewer than 50 American counties where a family earning the median household income could obtain child care at an " affordable " price.

There's also a connection between the cost of child care and the number of mothers working: a 10% increase in the median price of child care was associated with a 1% drop in the maternal workforce, the Labor Department found.

In Birmingham, Alabama, single mother Adriane Burnett takes home about $2,800 a month as a customer service representative for a manufacturing company. She spends more than a third of that on care for her 3-year-old.

In October, that child aged out of a program that qualified the family of three for child care subsidies. So she took on more work, delivering food for DoorDash and Uber Eats. To make the deliveries possible, her 14-year-old has to babysit.

Even so, Burnett had to file for bankruptcy and forfeit her car because she was behind on payments. She is borrowing her father's car to continue her delivery gigs. The financial stress and guilt over missing time with her kids have affected her health, Burnett said. She has had panic attacks and has fainted at work.

"My kids need me," Burnett said, "but I also have to work."

Even for parents who can afford child care, searching for it — and paying for it — consumes reams of time and energy.

When Daizha Rioland was five months pregnant with her first child, she posted in a Facebook group for Dallas moms that she was looking for child care. Several warned she was already behind if she wasn't on any wait lists. Rioland, who has a bachelor's degree and works in communications for a nonprofit, wanted a racially diverse program with a strong curriculum.

While her daughter remained on wait lists, Rioland's parents stepped in to care for her. Finally, her daughter reached the top of a waiting list — at 18 months old. The tuition was so high she could only attend part-time. Rioland got her second daughter on waiting lists long before she was born, and she now attends a center Rioland trusts.

"I've grown up in Dallas. I see what happens when you're not afforded the luxury of high-quality education," said Rioland, who is Black. "For my daughters, that's not going to be the case."

Slemp still sometimes wonders how she ended up staying at home with her son – time she cherishes but also finds disorienting. She thought she was doing well. After stints at a water park and a call center, her state job seemed like a step toward financial stability. How could it be so hard to maintain her career, when everything seemed to be going right?

"Our country is doing nothing to try to help fill that gap," Slemp said. As a parent, "we're supposed to keep the population going, and they're not giving us a chance to provide for our kids to be able to do that."

Riverside County Launches Program for Outdoor Recreation Access

RIVERSIDE (CNS) - The Riverside County Regional Park and Open-Space District, in collaboration with local libraries, has launched the RivCoParks Library Pass program to provide county residents free day-use access to county parks, hiking trails, picnic areas, and nature preserves.

THE program began as an effort to close the "nature gap" in communities that may not have access to outdoor recreational facilities due to economic and racial disparities, officials said last week.

"We are proud to introduce the RivCoParks Library Pass program, which is intended to close the nature gap. The program represents a significant step towards ensuring that all residents, regardless of background or income, have equal access to the recreational opportunities throughout Riverside County," Parks Director Kyla Brown said Wednesday.

To obtain a pass, residents can check one out for the day at a participating library and enjoy numerous amenities including regional parks, lakes, educational programs, historic sites and open-space areas.

"Parks are for everyone. All Riverside County residents should be able to experience all that our RivCo parks system have to offer," Board of Supervisors Chair Chuck Washington said. "These parks passes will allow residents to expand their knowledge of the world around them while exploring many of the natural spaces throughout our diverse county."

The launch of the program coincides with Earth month, which aims for awareness of environmental causes and appreciation for nature in the month of April.

More information about a list of participating libraries can be found at www.Rivcoparks.org/library-park-pass, or by calling the RivCoParks guest services team at 800-834-7275.

California Announces First New State Park in a Decade and Sets Climate Goals for Natural Lands

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — California will open its first new state park in a decade this summer, Gov. Gavin Newsom and state officials announced Monday, as the state sets targets for cutting planet-warming emissions on natural lands.

The 1,600-acre (648-hectare) Dos Rios tract in the state's crop-rich Central Valley is set to open June 12 as California's 281st state park. Located near the confluence of the Tuolumne and San Joaquin rivers, it is surrounded by vast almond orchards and dairy pastures. Californians will be able to use the park for hiking and picnicking, with plans for swimming and boating access in the future.

Ali Manzo, a Central Valley native and California State Parks interpreter, said the new park will help bring people together and allow them to develop a deeper respect for nature.

"Dos Rios is not just a park," Manzo said. "It's a community treasure that offers peace, adventure and a vital connection to nature."

Manzo joined the governor, First Partner Jennifer Siebel Newsom and civil rights icon Dolores Huerta to announce the new park.

The Earth Day announcement comes as Newsom unveiled new targets for cutting greenhouse gas emissions on natural lands. The plan sets out to reduce the risks of wildfires, expand forest cover and restore wetlands. Newsom said the targets would move the state closer toward achieving its mandate of carbon neutrality, meaning it will remove as many carbon emissions from the atmosphere as it emits, by 2045.

"These are stretch goals, unquestionably," the Democratic governor said. "The good news is we're making real progress."

Newsom did not say what success would look like for implementing the targets. His administration did not release an estimate for how much the plan would cost the state, which is facing a massive projected budget deficit.

The targets come out of a law Newsom signed in 2022 requiring the state Natural Resources Agency to work with other agencies to create a plan to reduce emissions from natural lands.

The plan aims to reduce the risks of wildfires across nearly 53,000 square miles (138,000 square kilometers) of land by 2045 through methods that include burning vegetation that can make wildfires more intense. The state also plans to plant 4.2 million trees, manage and restore 1.6 million acres (647,000 hectares) of grasslands, and protect more than 233,000 acres (94,000 hectares) of wetlands and seagrasses along that timeline.

California has spent about $9.6 billion since 2020 on efforts address climate change using the state's natural lands.

Natural Resources Secretary Wade Crowfoot called the plan "a big deal" because the state has focused much of its climate policy on reducing emissions from other areas, such as the energy sector, and less so from natural lands.

"We know we have to reduce pollution significantly, but we also need to improve the health of our landscapes to actually remove carbon dioxide from the air," Crowfoot said.

In recent years, the state has approved the eventual phasing out of the sale of new fossil fuel-powered cars, lawn mowers, large trucks that transport goods through ports and trains powered by diesel.

One particular visitor some years back, a former Soviet fighter pilot, remains riveted in Watts' memory.

Watts recalls being drawn to the gentleman as he spied him sitting alone, staring at the delta-winged plane for 20 minutes without moving. He shares that the former pilot related that he emigrated to the United States after the Iron Curtain fell and traveled to March upon hearing an SR-71 was at the reserve base museum.

On Saturday, nearly 600 visitors were drawn to the museum by that same mystique of the ground-breaking aircraft known as the "Blackbird." Continuing through Sunday, Blackbird fans gathered for a reunion of pilots, reconnaissance officers, and ground crew, who shared their experiences with the mythical jet that was first put into action in 1964.

Retired, Reconnaissance System Officer (RSO) Maj. E. D. McKim recalled his experience from August 1981, while flying over the DMZ above North and South Korea. North Korea fired two Soviet SA-2 surface-to-air missiles (SAMs), which McKim detected on his instruments.

He vividly remembers, naturally, how his anxiety rose as the missile neared, but exploded two to three miles away, causing no damage.

It is the only acknowledged missile firing at a Blackbird.

The sophisticated electronics of the aircraft were able to gather intelligence in seconds from 85,000 feet, surveying 100,000 square miles of Earth's surface per hour.

Watts the docent, reports the former Soviet pilot he met years ago, recalled his futile chase of an SR-71. In his telling, he was on patrol when Soviet authorities told him there was an SR-71 in his vicinity. The pilot said he accelerated his MiG to 50,000 feet in what proved to be a futile attempt to fire an air-to-air missile at the jet he never saw. Not until he stepped in the doors of the March Museum years later.

Not one Blackbird was lost to enemy fire in over 30 years of duty. Part of the Blackbird's aura was its seeming invincibility.

Speaking on a panel discussion at the March Museum Saturday, USAF Lt. Col. Raymond E. (Ed) Yeilding said that invincibility could never be taken for granted.

As the SR-71 was being retired in March 1990, Yielding, along with co-pilot USAF Lt. Col. Joseph T. Vida, set four speed records in the aircraft: Coast to Coast, in 67 minutes 54 seconds; LA to Washington, DC, in 64 minutes 20 seconds; Kansas City to DC, in 25 minutes 59 seconds; and St. Louis to Cincinnati, in 8 minutes 33 seconds.

Following its original retirement, the Blackbirds were twice re-commissioned and finally mothballed in 1999. Its capabilities are now covered by UAV's (drones) and satellites.

The Blackbird on exhibit at the March Museum, was originally delivered to the United States Air Force by the manufacturer, Lockheed in 1967. Designated 61-7975, the 26th of 32 built, it flew 82 sorties during the Vietnam War and "over hot spots throughout the world." It is on loan from the National Museum of the USAF.

Retired Air Force Major E. D. McKim, a reconnaissance specialist, was flying in an SR-71 when it was targeted by a North Korean surface-to-air missile. The warhead exploded away from the aircraft in the only publicly acknowledged attempt to shoot down an SR-71 which was capable of flying at Mach 3+ at 85-thousand feet altitude.

Capitol Guilty

The indictment stated the men coordinated via social media on logistics for their trip to the nation's capital for the "Stop the Steal" rally announced by then-President Trump. Kinnison said in a Telegram post that they would be transporting "lots of gear, from medical kits, radios, multiple cans of bear spray, knives, flags, plates, goggles, helmets."

He later posted a selfie with a bandolier of shotgun ammunition hung over his shoulders, according to court papers.

"It came out in the trial that my client took two handguns with him when he drove across the country," Cocis said. "But those legally owned firearms never left his hotel room after they arrived in Washington."

He said they were only taken for self-defense in case violence erupted after the rally.

The defendants joined streams of people who walked to the Capitol Building after Trump spoke on the Ellipse.

As the four approached the building in the early afternoon of Jan. 6, 2021, Kinnison shouted, "This is the storm of the Capitol," as they moved through the crowd, according to the U.S. Attorney's Office.

Minutes later, Warner joined protesters ascending the northwest stairs to the Upper West Terrace. Then Martinez, Kinnison and Mele advanced on a police line on the northwest lawn, prosecutors said. Warner accessed the Capitol Building via a broken window, at which point Martinez, Kinnison and Mele went to the terrace in an attempt to rendezvous with him, but the defense said the trio ultimately elected not to enter the building.

All of the men were clad in ballistic vests and carrying gas masks and cans of bear spray, though none were accused of dispersing it.

Prosecutors said in the ensuing weeks, Warner and Kinnison deleted chats from their phones to conceal their involvement.

Kinnison, Martinez, Melee and Warner represent the last of the Riverside County residents sentenced for actions on Jan. 6.

In January 2023, 46-year-old Andrew Alan Hernandez of Jurupa Valley was sentenced to 18 months in federal prison after admitting a charge of aiding and abetting in the obstruction of an official proceeding. Security surveillance camera images from inside the halls of Congress showed him carrying an American flag with a Go-Pro camera attached to the pole and snapping selfies, alongside some others who appeared to be peaceful.

In October 2022, Rafael Valadez Jr., 44, of Indio admitted a misdemeanor count of picketing in the Capitol Building and was sentenced to 30 days behind bars. Valadez stood in front of a senator's office, using his camera phone to video people going in and out. He left the building after 25 minutes, according to federal investigators.

In March 2022, Kevin Strong, 47, of Wildomar admitted the same offense and was sentenced to 24 months' probation. Photos submitted to the court showed Strong following a crowd through the Statuary Hall corridor, where he took pictures, spoke to a group of police officers watching protesters, then left.

No other county residents were among the nearly 1,400 people charged nationwide in connection the breach.

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 800-280-2832 for information regarding the trustee's sale or visit this internet website http://www.qualityloan.com, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the Trustee: CA-23-971678-CL. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the internet website. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call 800-280-2832, or visit this internet website http://www.qualityloan.com, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the Trustee: CA-23-971678-CL to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. NOTICE TO PROSPECTIVE OWNEROCCUPANT: Any prospective owneroccupant as defined in Section 2924m of the California Civil Code who is the last and highest bidder at the trustee's sale shall provide the required affidavit or declaration of eligibility to the auctioneer at the trustee's sale or shall have it delivered to QUALITY LOAN SERVICE CORPORATION by 5 p.m. on the next business day following the trustee's sale at the address set forth in the below signature block. The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the property address or other common designation, if any, shown herein. If no street address or other common designation is shown, directions to the location of the property may be obtained by sending a written request to the beneficiary within 10 days of the date of first publication of this Notice of Sale. If the sale is set aside for any reason, including if the Trustee is unable to convey title, the Purchaser at the sale shall be entitled only to a return of the monies paid to the Trustee. This shall be the Purchaser's sole and exclusive remedy. The purchaser shall have no further recourse against the Trustor, the Trustee, the Beneficiary, the Beneficiary's Agent, or the Beneficiary's Attorney. If you have previously been discharged through bankruptcy, you may have been released of personal liability for this loan in which case this letter is intended to exercise the note holders right's against the real property only. NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF:
JOHN RALDON WILES
CASE NO. PRRI2400957
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL or estate, or both of JOHN RALDON WILES.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by JAMES T. WILES in the Superior Court of California, County of RIVERSIDE.
THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that JAMES T. WILES be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 05/20/24 at 8:30AM in Dept. 12 located at 4050 MAIN STREET, RIVERSIDE, CA 92501
IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.
Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.
YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.
