

VOTE CENTERS OPEN COUNTYWIDE SATURDAY FOR GENERAL ELECTION

RIVERSIDE (CNS) - Early voting will be available at locations throughout Riverside County Saturday when 20 vote centers open, offering residents the opportunity to fill out paper ballots or use electronic voting machines, in lieu of mail-in ballots.

Another 130 centers are slated to become available on Nov. 2, according to the Office of the Registrar of Voters.

Inland Empire Schools Propose $3.6 BILLION in Bonds

BY DEBORAH BRENNAN,
CalMatters

As California voters weigh in on $10 billion in state school bonds with Proposition 2, Inland Empire school districts are asking voters to approve 22 local school bond measures totalling $3.6 billion.

That's $1.7 billion for 11 separate school bond measures in Riverside County and $1.9 million for another 11 measures in San Bernardino County. They would greenlight bond sales ranging from $15 million for the tiny Nuvview Union School District, near Lake Perris, to $500 million for Redlands Unified School District.

State and local bonds are written to work together but aren't paid for in the same way. School districts levy new local property taxes to repay their bond measures. California covers its debt service through general tax revenue, so state school bond measures don't directly trigger tax hikes.

Districts can stretch their dollars further by pairing local bond funds with state grants.

"Local school districts may qualify for matching funds from the state for facility construction, improvements and repairs if local voters approve a local bond measure," local government consultant Michael Coleman said. "For this reason, we see a record 267 local school bond measures on this November 2024 ballot. The two go together."

Rainfall in Forecast for Weekend Throughout Inland Empire

RIVERSIDE (CNS) - A storm system rolling out of the Pacific Northwest will slide across the Inland Empire this weekend, likely generating the first appreciable rain for the fall season, according to the National Weather Service.

"The next trough of low pressure is taking a strong inside slider track," the NWS said in a statement. "The associated cold front should arrive Saturday afternoon. There should be widespread frontal precipitation, and then post-frontal instability showers."

How Inflation Concerns Could Doom California's Proposition to Increase Minimum Wage

BY JEANNE KUANG, CalMatters

A year ago, a ballot measure to raise the statewide minimum wage to $18 seemed poised for an easy win in California, where costs have skyrocketed, affordability is a key concern and many of the state's biggest cities already require businesses to pay close to that much.

But weeks before California decides on a measure that would do that, voter support appears to have fallen significantly amid heightened concerns about the economy that opponents are stressing, and a relatively quiet campaign in favor of Proposition 32.

A poll released Wednesday night by the Public Policy Institute of California shows just 44% of likely voters backing the measure, which would raise the minimum wage in January from the scheduled $16.50 to $18, with a delay for small employers. That's a decline from 50% of those polled in September, and more than two-thirds surveyed last November who said they supported raising the minimum wage until it reaches $18.

change in voter sentiment could reflect broader concerns about the state's economy and the jump in costs for housing and food that hammered households over the past three years.

Despite signs of a resilient economy that continues to add jobs and falling inflation, Americans continue to remember lower prices from before the pandemic, and have consistently reported feeling pessimistic about the economy this year in a mismatch experts have dubbed a "vibecession."

Californians are no different: In the new poll, the economy is by far the issue that respondents said is the most important facing the state, with a solid majority of likely voters saying they expect bad economic times in the next year.

Business groups opposed to raising the minimum wage, which include the California Chamber of Commerce, restaurant and grocers' groups, and the agricultural industry, are seizing on the concerns. A digital ad released by opponents this week shows a shopper at a grocery store saying the measure would cause prices to increase, while another says she "can't take it anymore."

The National Federation of Independent Business, another opponent of minimum wage hikes, also is running radio ads saying the measure would worsen inflation, "hurt small businesses and harm their ability to grow and add jobs." In response to questions about inflation falling, spokesperson Anthony Malandra said the group's members still list inflation as a top concern.

Proponents of the wage

dismissed the ads' claims, but acknowledged it's a powerful message this election year. The pro-Prop. 32 campaign, said

Essayli Seeking Second Term Faces Challenger with Deep Union Support

Incumbent Bill Essayli, (R-Norco)

Challenger Christopher Shoults, (D-Menifee)

RIVERSIDE (CNS) - One-term Assemblyman Bill Essayli, R-Norco, will be trying to retain his 63rd District seat in Tuesday's general election up against a Democrat challenger with wide-ranging support from union interests.

Essayli, a former federal and state prosecutor, was first elected in 2022 and has established himself since then as a firebrand on the conservative side. His opponent, Christopher Shoults of Menifee, has cast himself as a moderate Democrat willing to "work with anyone in either party to get things done."

Essayli has stood firm against tax hikes and has been an outspoken advocate for cuts in gasoline taxes, tougher anti-crime measures, controls on illegal immigration and proposals to make lawmakers more accountable, especially when they're caught breaking the law, as in cases of drunken driving.

"Democrats also want to strip away parental rights," he said in a campaign statement. "A high school student under 18 needs their parent's permission to get their ear pierced, but Democrats want them to be able to change their gender without even notifying parents. That is dangerous and wrong. I have led the fight to put parents back in control."

He said putting more Democrats in the state Legislature will only bolster the "one-party rule" that has led to the "tax-and-regulate policies" which have made California an increasingly expensive place to live.

Community College District Seeks Almost $1 Billion Bond for Upgrades

RIVERSIDE (CNS) - Voters throughout the Riverside metropolitan area on Nov. 5 will decide whether to approve a bond sale of nearly $1 billion to cover costs associated with upgrades to facilities within the Riverside Community College District, meaning an increase in property taxes to pay off the debt.

Measure CC will be decided by voters in Riverside, Moreno Valley, Norco, Corona, Jurupa Valley and multiple unincorporated communities.

The measure seeks a $954 million sale of general obligation bonds with a duration, or payoff period, of just over three decades. By the time of full debt amortization, the total cost of principal and interest would come to about $1.9 billion, according to ballot materials distributed to the public.

The cost of paying that debt would fall on property owners, whose annual property tax rates would rise an estimated $19 per $100,000 of assessed valuation on individual houses, condominiums and other dwellings, RCCD officials said.

Supporters noted that older buildings are in need of repairs, with improvements required for labs, water delivery systems, electrical outlets, plumbing, ventilation units, natural gas lines and parking lots.

They also pointed to asbestos and lead paint removal plans, as well as the need to "improve emergency communications systems and accessibility for disabled students."

Only 55% voter approval is required for the bond sale.

"Yes on CC allows the district to continue providing low-cost, high-quality education and job training classes close to home," supporters, including Corona Mayor Tom Richins and Riverside Mayor Patricia Lock Dawson, wrote in campaign literature. "Yes on the measure will keep classrooms safe for learning, addressing urgent, basic and future needs."

Opponents, including local fiscal watchdogs Vivian Moreno and Jason Hunter, complained the measure lacks specificity, leaving open the possibility of the money being spent any number of ways, instead of exclusively on infrastructure and classroom upgrades.

"The only kind of... details for (the supporters') unknown projects deal with what seem like overdue maintenance projects," the opponents wrote. "We question if the district has actually deferred maintenance to the point of putting its students in danger so as to justify these bonds? While the typical resident struggles to make ends meet as their cost-of-living continues to outpace their wages, the district may build free or subsidized housing for its staff that you will pay for either directly or indirectly."

A similar RCCD bond proposal -- Measure A -- put before voters in 2020, then seeking $715 million, was rejected.

Inland Empire Schools,

Inland Empire Districts are seeking money for several kinds of investments. Part of it would go to nuts-and-bolts infrastructure upgrades, including air conditioning, fire safety, security and disability access. Districts also plan to build science and technology labs or vocational classrooms to train students in such fields as robotics, coding, health care or construction trades.

At least one district hopes to ease its growing pains. Victor Valley Union High School District is floating a pair of ballot measures at $180 million each. One aims to improve facilities, while the other would reduce overcrowding from an enrollment boom of 21% in less than a decade.

That contrasts with California's overall student enrollment, which declined for six straight years through 2022-23 and is expected to keep dropping for the next decade, according to the state Department of Finance.

At the same time Proposition 2 would allow the state to borrow $10 billion for school construction and modernization. Most of that — $8.5 billion — would go to K-12 schools. Another $1.5 billion is committed to community colleges. Its priorities are similar to those of local bond measures, such as removing lead, upgrading seismic safety, adding air conditioning and broadband access, and building career technical facilities.

Is all of that too much to ask? Not necessarily, Coleman said. If voters want to make the most of their local bond money by pairing it with state funds, "they would be more likely to vote for both," he said. "If they understand the linkage, they will not likely choose one over the other."

Recent polls show Proposition 2 ahead with 54% of likely voters in favor and 44% opposed. The state bond measure just needs to clear 50% to pass, but local school bond measures must win 55% of the vote.

Riverside County's First District Is Growing in 'Areas That Time Forgot'

(Editor's note: Former Assemblyman Jose Medina and State Senator Richard D. Roth are competing to replace incumbent Supervisor Kevin Jeffries)

BY DEBORAH
BRENNAN, CalMatters

In some corners of the Inland Empire, the region's agricultural legacy collides with its urban and industrial development. One of those places is Riverside County's First District, represented by Supervisor Kevin Jeffries.

The district includes more than half a million people living in the cities of Riverside and Perris or in several unincorporated communities, such as Good Hope, Mead Valley and Highgrove.

Family incomes in the district range widely. The community with the lowest annual household median income is Good Hope at $43,722, and the highest is Highgrove at $80,897, according to a 2022 district profile.

About 7 in 10 residents are Latino in Good lights, paved streets, water lines and sidewalks—just bare essentials necessary

Vote Centers

"Voters are not assigned to a specific location and may cast their ballot at any available vote center," the agency said. "Eligible residents can also register to vote or update their registration at a vote center."

Volunteers and registrar's staff will be on hand to assist at each location.

There are roughly 1.4 million residents currently on county voter rolls. To date, 249,999 mail-in ballots have been received for the Nov. 5 general election, officials said on Friday.

"For voters who wish to return their vote-by-mail ballots at a drop box location, the registrar has 106 official ballot drop-off locations throughout the county," the agency stated.

A complete list of vote centers, their locations and hours of operation, as well as where to find ballot drop boxes, is available at voteinfo.net.

up more than half the population in Highgrove, March Air Reserve Base and Riverside. There are concentrations of Asian residents and Native Hawaiians (12%) in Highgrove and March ARB and Black residents in Perris (8%).

Jeffries, who previously served in the state Assembly, is in his final term on the Riverside County Board of Supervisors. He discussed the diverse geography and character of the First District.

How do the communities in your district differ?

Riverside city is very self-sufficient and compact in the sense that they have strong city council leadership, strong mayoral leadership, and they're very actively engaged in regional political efforts and lobbying efforts. They're doing very well looking

It allows me to focus on our disadvantaged communities. Some of them are areas that time forgot, that infrastructure services didn't come into.

What are the challenges for unincorporated communities such as Mead Valley and Good Hope?

They are truly the last vestiges of rural communities in the western half of the county. The population has exploded in those communities, so now we have over 20,000 people, which is actually bigger than some of our small cities in this county. And they don't have the services, they don't have the amenities, they don't have the infrastructure. So we've been walking this fine line between trying to maintain the rural atmosphere while delivering some modern infrastructure, like street to make the communities a little safer for the kids to walk to and from school and make the roadways a little safer.

What are some objections to modernizing those areas?

The residents who moved there a long time ago love their rural lifestyle, love their horseback riding, love the trails. They're holding onto that lifestyle, and rightly so in many ways. We don't want to overturn that rural lifestyle. But, at the same time, we have to make it safer as the population continues to grow. So that gets back to the competition between sidewalks and trails, the competition of having dark streets and having well lit streets. We want to improve the quality of life while protecting the rural atmosphere, so it's a delicate balance.

Octogenarian Skydiving Legends Jump From DC-9

At the age you'd expect them to be playing bunko at the retirement home, these trail-blazing skydiving pioneers are jumping from a DC-9 jetliner.

On Saturday, October 26, Nancy Gruttman-Tyler (79), Donna Wardean Dann (82), and Kim Emmons Knor (85) did just that from Skydive Perris' unique jet.

The 3 are no stranger to jumping out of airplanes, all with first jumps dating back to the 1960's.

Knor won a gold medal at the Skydiving World Championships in 1962 and is on a mission to hit 1000 jumps before hanging up the parachute. Saturday's jump was her 752nd.

Setting a world record in 1967, Dann was a key developer of formation skydiving.

Tyler, the first woman elected to the U.S. Parachute board, is a 31 year Army veteran and also an innovator in skydiving formations.

"Watching Kim, Donna, and Nancy jump from the jet was a powerful reminder of the spirit and resilience that defines our community," said Melanie Conatser, co-owner of Skydive Perris. "These women have shown us that you don't stop living boldly just because of a number on a calendar."

Kim Emmons Knor, a World Champion Skydiver in 1962, made her 752nd jump last Saturday in Perris, at the still ripe age of 85.

Palm Springs Airport Receives $6M FAA Grant

PALM SPRINGS (CNS) - Palm Springs International Airport was awarded $6 million by the Federal Aviation Administration this week for terminal improvements, part of roughly $970 million in funds awarded to airfields across the nation.

"Investing in America's airport infrastructure isn't just about upgrading runways and terminals -- it's about growing local economies, creating jobs, and ensuring the safety and efficiency of travel," U.S. Transportation Secretary Pete Buttigieg said in a statement. "With the grants we're announcing today -- nearly $1 billion in total -- we're helping modernize 125 airports across the country in order to make their operations safer, more accessible, and more convenient for travelers."

A total of 125 airport-related projects nationwide received funds.

The money awarded to Palm Springs International Airport was designated for "the demolition of existing foundations and exterior building walls, as well as the construction of a new foundation for the expansion of the existing terminal."

Several other Southern California airports also received funds.

Los Angeles International Airport received $30 million that will be used for the Terminal Roadways Project, which includes "construction of roadways, ramps, bridges, pedestrian bridges, intersection improvements, traffic signals/controls, traffic monitoring/management equipment, street lighting, signage and striping, sidewalks."

John Wayne Airport in Santa Ana received $10.6 million for the installation of six replacement escalators that are earthquake-safe, more reliable and will "generate up to 20% energy savings," according to the FAA.

Hollywood Burbank Airport

received $9.3 million for "exterior glass, roofing and dry-wall for a replacement passenger terminal, consisting of 14 gates."

San Diego International Airport received nearly $12.1 million for new terminal construction, including "the installation of two passenger boarding bridges, pilings, foundation concrete, flooring, roofing and structural steel."

"We're working to ensure passengers' safety, comfort, and convenience throughout their airport journey," FAA Associate Administrator for Airports Shannetta R. Griffin said in a statement. "Today's investment also builds communities by providing good-paying jobs and infusing dollars in local economies."

Butternut Squash Soup

By CONNOR FORBES

Blah Blah I have a garden.... I know, I know it is getting old.

Sooooo, this is another recipe inspired by my garden, though you certainly don't have to have your own garden to make this garden-fresh soup to warm your soul. It is starting to be soup season after all. And the orange color of this makes it a fun treat for the spooky season. It's simple to make, and oh so delicious.

The ingredients are pretty flexible too. You can't make this wrong. If you have more carrots, use more carrots. Same goes for butternut squash or potatoes. Don't fret the details here. Just vibe to the Halloween tones.

Ingredients

- 3 lbs butternut squash
- 2 lbs carrots
- 1 lb potatoes
- 1 head garlic
- 1 onion
- 1 bouillon vegetable stock
- 1/2 cup heavy cream or whole milk
- 2 cups water
- 1 Tbsp rosemary
- 1 Tbsp salt
- 1 Tsp pepper
- 1 Tsp Turmeric
- 1 Tsp msg
- 1/2 tsp cayenne pepper
- 2 Bay leaves

With This Salmon Piccata, the Fish SINGS in Lemon Butter, and Capers

By The Associated Press

Here's how to make salmon sing: Pair it with butter, lemon and capers in a move that's genius in its simplicity. Husband-and-wife food bloggers and podcasters Sonja and Alex Overhiser swap fish for chicken in this classic Italian American dish, making it (dare we say?) even more irresistible than the original. With the recipe designed for two cooks, the salmon turns moist and tender in the buttery sauce, and the light breading gives a satisfying texture to each bite. This one never fails to get big wows around their table, and they hope it will do the same for you.

SALMON PICCATA

Serves: 4

Diet: pescatarian, gluten-free option, dairy-free option

Ingredients

Four 6 oz (170 g) salmon fillets, skin on

¾ tsp kosher salt

Freshly ground black pepper

½ cup (70 g) all-purpose flour

3 Tbsp (45 g) unsalted butter

1 Tbsp olive oil

To Make

Deseed and peel butternut squash, chop. Peel carrots, chop. Peel garlic cloves. And you guessed it, chop potatoes too. In a large pot combine everything but the bay leaves and simmer till fork tender.

Blend thoroughly in blender or immersion blender (preferable).

Add bay leaves.

Simmer 30 mins. Plate and enjoy!

For more recipes visit www.zapinin.com/food.

1 medium shallot, minced

½ cup (120 ml) vegetable broth

¼ cup (60 ml) fresh lemon juice

½ Tbsp lemon zest

3 Tbsp (45 g) capers, drained

Lemon wheels, for garnishing

Finely chopped parsley, for garnishing

Directions

(First cook) Allow the salmon to come to room temperature. Season the fillets with the kosher salt and plenty of black pepper. Spread the flour on a plate and dredge each fillet until lightly coated with flour on all sides.

(Second cook) In a large skillet over medium-high heat, heat 1 tablespoon of the butter and the olive oil. When the butter is melted, add the salmon, skin side up. Cook until the bottom is browned, 3 to 4 minutes. Flip and cook skin side down until browned, 1 to 2 minutes — watch to make sure the flour doesn't burn. Transfer the salmon to a plate and turn down the heat to low.

(Both cooks) Add another tablespoon of the butter to the same pan; when it melts, add the shallot and cook, stirring frequently, until transparent and fragrant, about 1 minute. Add the remaining 1 tablespoon of butter and the vegetable broth, lemon juice and zest, and capers, scraping up the browned bits from the bottom of the pan. Add the salmon to the pan, skin side down. Bring to a simmer and cook, occasionally spooning the sauce over the fish, until the fish is fully cooked, about 5 minutes. For a medium salmon, cook until the internal temperature reaches at least 130°F (55°C) when measured with a food thermometer at the thickest point.

(Both cooks) To serve, garnish the salmon with lemon wheels and chopped parsley. Drizzle a few spoonfuls of sauce over each fillet and serve.

Tips

Make chicken piccata using the same method: Use two boneless skinless chicken breasts or 4 cutlets (about 1½ pounds or 680 grams). Pat the chicken dry with a paper towel. If using breasts, slice them in half horizontally (if you bought cutlets, skip this step). Then follow the steps in this recipe, using 1 teaspoon kosher salt to season the chicken.

A food thermometer is the best way to measure the internal temperature of fish.

The temperature of 130°F (55°C) makes for moist, tender salmon. Feel free to cook up to 140°F (60°C) if you prefer a more well-done piece of fish.

Wine pairing: Pair this dish with a pinot noir. This red wine is known for its bright acidity, medium body, and fruity flavors, making it a perfect companion for the rich and flavorful salmon dish. We love the light and bright flavor of a pinot noir from Oregon.

Cooking together: Assign the fish prep to one of you! That person can season and dredge the fish while the other prepares the remaining ingredients.

For gluten-free: Omit the flour or use gluten-free flour.

For dairy-free: Use vegan butter.

Storage: Leftover salmon will keep, refrigerated, for up to 3 days.

REVIEW:

Tom Hardy's DOUBLE ACT can't save 'Venom: The Last Dance'

For three films now, Tom Hardy has smushed Jekyll and Hyde into one strange and slimy double act. In a Marvel universe filled with alter egos that cloak stealthy superpowers, his investigative reporter Eddie Brock doesn't transform. He shares his body with an ink-black alien symbiote (voiced with a baritone growl by Hardy), who sometimes swallows him whole, sometimes shoots a tentacle or two out, and always chipperly punctuates Eddie's inner monologue.

These have been consistently messy, almost willfully bad movies, but Hardy's performance has been a strangely compelling one-body buddy comedy. It's one thing to throw a cape on and jump the sky. It's another to run manically through the desert with an alien voice inside barking, as Eddie's inner-alien does in the new "Venom: The Last Dance," "Engage your core," "Nice horsey" and "Tequila!"

The biggest dichotomy of these movies, though, isn't the Eddie-symbiote split. It's the contrast between Hardy's funny, sometimes oddly touching performance and all of the CGI mess around him. There were moments of fun in the first two movies, but if "The Last Dance," which opens in theaters Thursday, is the swan song for this spun-off, half-formed franchise, it confirms that the "Venom" films never quite figured themselves out.

In "The Last Dance," Kelly Marcel, co-writer of the first two "Venom" films, takes over directing, following Andy Serkis (2021's "Venom: Let There Be Carnage") and Ruben Fleischer (2018's "Venom"). We rejoin Venom (the fusion of Eddie and his alien-entity soulmate) in Mexico where they're on the run from the law. But a new threat is also emerging.

The movie opens with Knull (Serkis), the symbiote creator who, from some icky distant and dark corner of space, dispatches aliens to retrieve a "codex" found within Venom's spine that, if obtained, will lead to the annihilation of both humans and symbiotes.

To me, bringing a typical comic book-style doomsday plot is about the last thing a military division led by Rex Strickland (Chiwetel Ejiofor, lending more gravitas to the movie than it deserves).

times. They can feel a little like tossed-off knockoffs, which is both their appeal and their frustration.

I kept rooting for the surprisingly lifeless "The Last Dance" to pull way back on its save-the-world plot (and its CGI) and lean more into its most potent effect: Hardy's split-personality double act. If this is to be a last hurrah — which, granted is a dubious idea for anything even adjacently connected to "Spider-Man" — it's a shame that we never saw more of Venom in daily life. Eddie is a journalist after all. One can only imagine how he and the symbiote might have debated more pressing concerns than the fate of the universe, like Oxford commas.

"Venom: The Last Dance," a Columbia Pictures release, is rated PG-13 by the Motion Picture Association for intense sequences of violence and action, bloody images and strong language. Running time: 110 minutes. Two stars out of four.

Hardy's performance has been a strangely compelling one-body buddy comedy. It's one thing to throw a cape on and jump the sky. It's another to run manically through the desert with an alien voice inside barking...

"Venom" movie needs. The best sequences in the first two movies are no more complicated than Venom craving lobster or ordering pizza. Smaller stakes better suit its warped comedy. The touchstone for these movies shouldn't be the Marvel playbook but old episodes of "The Odd Couple."

Instead, we're thrown into a pretty immediately boring Area 51 setting where an elaborate lab headed by Dr. Teddy Payne (Juno Temple) studies the symbiotes it has trapped with the help of a

Once the alien insect things arrive seeking the codex, there's plenty of running and fighting, with a UFO-enthusiast family in a VW bus (Rhys Ifans plays the dad) thrown into the mix. The ensuing battle ultimately, as the title promises, threatens to divide Venom for good.

But the promise of the "Venom" series, really, is that the mainline Marvel stuff would intrude less here. This is a B-movie realm of the multiverse with little appetite for solemnity, nobility or two-and-half-hour running

'Venom: The Last Dance' Opens with $51 Million to Lead Box Office

LOS ANGELES (CNS) - "Venom: The Last Dance" opened with $51 million this weekend to lead all films in North America, according to industry estimates released Sunday. The third film in the Marvel-based series starring Tom Hardy as the titular superhero beat out the horror sequel "Smile 2," which slipped to $9.4 million one week after opening in first place, Comscore reported.

"Conclave," a thriller about the selection of a new pope directed by Edward Berger, opened with $6.5 million and shared third place with "The Wild Robot," which continues doing good business in its fifth week in theaters.

The romance "We Live in Time" followed with $4.8 million Friday through Sunday in its third weekend.

Rounding out the top 10 domestic releases were "Terrifier 3" ($4.2 million), "Beetlejuice Beetlejuice" ($3.2 million), "Anora" ($867,142), "Piece by Piece" ($720,000) and "Transformers One" ($720,000).

Movie theaters faced tough competition this weekend from Halloween activities and the first two games of a highly rated World Series between the Los Angeles Dodgers and New York Yankees.

This weekend's overall three-day box office haul was estimated at $92 million. The year-to-date total is $6.758 billion -- down 11.4% from the figure at this time last year, according to Comscore.

Government Spending on BABIES is Falling Short, Say Advocates

Ten percent of all U.S. children did not have enough food to keep them healthy in 2022. In the same year, the infant mortality rate increased for the first time in two decades and the rate of child poverty more than doubled. At a time when children need increased support to prosper, a new analysis of government spending in 2024 indicates that funding for programs benefitting the youngest Americans – those below the age of 3 – is falling short.

“Babies in the Budget 2024” provides a comprehensive analysis of the share of spending allocated to children ages 0–3 across more than 150 government programs in the federal budget. Published by the bipartisan advocacy organization First Focus on Children, the analysis finds that for the third straight year, the share of federal spending on children ages 0–3 declined, from just 1.98% in fiscal year 2021 to 1.52% in 2024. On top of that, the small increase in dollars these programs received failed to keep up with inflation, ensuring that support for the nation’s youngest children lags behind the estimated average rise in the cost of living for families.

According to advocates with First Focus on Children and the National Collaborative for Infants & Toddlers (NCIT), President Biden’s fiscal year 2025 budget presents an opportunity to turn the tide. The president recommends increasing total spending on babies by $36.8 billion and significantly expanding the Child Tax Credit to reach low-income children currently left behind because their parents earn too little. These changes would increase the money available for babies by almost $28 billion in fiscal year 2025 — an inflation-adjusted increase of 630%. The budget proposal would also make vital investments in child care, housing, paid family and medical leave, mental health, nutrition and other areas that impact babies, toddlers and their families.

“Building a healthy, prosperous, and equitable upbringing for our babies translates directly to a healthy, prosperous, and equitable future for our country. Funding choices are just that – choices. And Congress and the Administration have the power to choose to support the well-being of children,” says Bruce Lesley, president of First Focus on Children.

To view the full report and to learn more, visit firstfocus.org.

“Our country can and must do more to make life better for babies, toddlers and families,” said Jennifer Harris, senior health policy advocate for Alabama Arise, a member of the NCIT. “We should strengthen the Child Tax Credit and expand paid leave to help parents make ends meet. We should invest more in affordable housing and child care to ensure security and stability for our children. And we must close the Medicaid coverage gap in every state so families can afford the health care they need to thrive. Strengthening these family supports is the cornerstone to ensuring a brighter future for our children and our nation.” (StatePoint)

Why Americans are Rallying for AFTERSCHOOL PROGRAMS This Fall

Afterschool programs help children and youth thrive in school and in life. They provide homework help, opportunities to get active, and access to healthy snacks and meals. They help children develop friendships, meet mentors, learn about STEM (science, technology, engineering and math), explore college and careers, and engage in community service. Through these activities, and more, afterschool programs help youth build the skills they need to succeed.

A million people across the United States are celebrating afterschool programs this fall, and rallying for more resources for them, as part of Lights On Afterschool 2024. More than 8,000 Lights On Afterschool events are taking place in every part of the country. In California, students are displaying wiggle robots, paintings and block-builds they created. In Colorado, parents are jotting down their dreams for their children and putting them in a Dream Box. In Florida, students are sharing what they learned about the migration of monarch butterflies. In Indiana, students are showing the PSAs they created about how substance use has affected their lives.

As a testament to the importance of afterschool programming, some big names are lending their support. Superstar Usher is serving as honorary chair of Lights On Afterschool this year, organized once again by the Afterschool Alliance.

“Afterschool programs keep kids safe, inspire them to learn, and give working families peace of mind that their children are safe, supervised and learning after school. Lights On Afterschool is a chance to showcase the skills students hone and the talents they develop at these programs,” said Afterschool Alliance executive director, Jodi Grant.

To learn more about afterschool programs and Lights On Afterschool, visit afterschoolalliance.org.

This year, Lights On Afterschool comes as funding for programs across the nation, provided from federal pandemic relief, winds down. These funds have helped afterschool programs meet rising costs and provide support for millions of youth. In recent years, Congress has failed to significantly increase funding for 21st Century Community Learning Centers, the chief federal funding stream for afterschool and summer learning programs.

“There aren’t nearly enough afterschool programs to meet the soaring demand,” Grant added. “For every child in an afterschool program in our country, four more are waiting to get in. We urgently need greater investments from all sectors so all students can benefit from the essential supports afterschool programs provide.” (StatePoint) spokesperson Angelo Greco, is also running digital ads and sending text blasts to turn out voters in big cities that are more likely to reliably support the measure.

Proponents say the measure could give raises to about two million California workers, at a time when costs are so high even single Californians with no children need to earn at least $27 an hour to be self-sufficient, according to researchers at MIT.

"While it's the same argument that we have always heard (from businesses) the last 20 years, it resonates more when people have seen the cost of goods and services go up," said Jane Kim, state director for the Working Families Party, a progressive group supporting the ballot measure. "That's the softening in support that you're seeing. We are concerned, and that's why we are reaching out to voters that we think naturally will support an increase to the minimum wage."

Proponents pointed to recent studies showing the state's $20 fast-food minimum wage, which began in April, had little effect on employment in that industry, and only raised menu prices by about 3.7%.

California did have slower growth than the nation this year, but Jerry Nickelsburg, an economist who directs the UCLA Anderson Forecast, said that's unusual and he's predicted the state's economy will again grow faster next year.

The state's unemployment rate is 5.3%, higher than the nation's 4.1%. Nickelsburg says that's only in small part influenced by recent minimum wage hikes. Unemployment in California, he said, is driven mostly by downsizing in tech and entertainment, higher wages and reduced reliance on delivery drivers since the pandemic-era peak of online ordering and two stormy winters that put many farm laborers out of work.

"All of those (factors) will dissipate over time," he said.

Mark Baldassare, statewide survey director for the Public Policy Institute, said he suspects likely voters who were surveyed are confused by the relative lack of a vocal campaign for the measure.

After pouring $10 million into qualifying the measure for the ballot in 2022, the measure's author Joe Sanberg, a startup investor and anti-poverty advocate, resisted some labor advocates' calls to withdraw the measure this year. But he still appeared to take a step back from formal campaigning, telling CalMatters in August that the message of workers needing higher pay to afford living in California would sell itself naturally.

He closed the proposition's campaign account earlier this year. Aside from money in a campaign account tied to Los Angeles City Councilmember Kevin de León, who supports the proposition along with two other measures, the measure hardly raised any funds this year until Sanberg donated about $100,000 this week. (Groups opposing the measure have raised more than $700,000 this year.)

The ballot, which for the first time this year lists supporters and opponents of propositions, does not include the name of any organizations pushing for Prop. 32. The state Chamber of Commerce, Restaurant Association and Grocers Association are listed as opponents.

"Here's the thing about ballot propositions and initiatives in particular: People are cautious about voting 'yes' on them," Baldassare said. "If it's on the ballot, the question is, why? Who put it there? Who's supporting it?"

A spokesperson for the Secretary of State's office told CalMatters that Sanberg declined to list himself or another group as the supporters. Sanberg did not respond to a request for comment.

Greco called the campaign "more of a grassroots effort." But the quiet campaign drew criticism from a statewide union group. In 2016, unions were instrumental in muscling political support for a series of minimum wage increases that made California the first state in the nation to require $15 an hour.

"We support an increase in the minimum wage," said Lorena Gonzalez, leader of the California Labor Federation, which endorsed the measure. "We still support Prop. 32. But we're disappointed there's been very little activity from the campaign."

The challenger vowed that, if elected, he would prioritize legislation that promotes "good-paying job opportunities, a lower cost of living" and affordable housing.

Four Indicted for Allegedly Filching Federal Relief Funds

RIVERSIDE (CNS) - Two women federally indicted for allegedly ripping off a financial assistance program intended to provide support for businesses suffering amid the COVID lockdowns, joining with others in stealing an estimated $3.5 million, were taken into custody Thursday in Riverside County.

Denise Mata, 34, of Moreno Valley and Vanessa M. Williams, 35, of Corona were arrested without incident on a 23-count indictment alleging wire fraud and other offenses. They were slated to make a joint initial appearance in U.S. District Court in Riverside Thursday afternoon.

Their fellow defendants, 33-year-old Mikhail G. Hoalim and 32-year-old Daryl D. Knighten Jr., are at large, according to the U.S. Attorney's Office.

The indictment alleges the foursome stole from the Paycheck Protection Program, one of several grant and loan facilities established in 2020 when many businesses were forced to shut down or curtail operations because of the lockdowns.

According to the prosecution, between March and August 2021, the defendants conspired to submit fraudulent PPP applications for the direct benefit of themselves, relatives and friends.

"The defendants made false statements to the U.S. Small Business Administration and banks in connection with the fraudulent PPP loan applications," the U.S. Attorney's Office stated. "Each application falsely stated that the PPP loan applicant was self-employed and falsely certified that each loan would be used for permissible business purposes. Each loan application also contained fraudulent tax forms to deceive the SBA and PPP participating lenders into disbursing loan funds."

Ultimately, over 100 individuals joined in the scam that the defendants conceived, prosecutors alleged.

"The lenders disbursed the PPP loan funds into bank accounts belonging to the defendants and their co-schemers," according to the U.S. Attorney's Office. "Co-schemers paid kickbacks to the defendants within days of receiving the fraudulently obtained PPP loan funds."

The agency emphasized that the money was not utilized for legitimate business purposes, under the criteria established by the federal government.

"The defendants also submitted fraudulent documents to the SBA and lenders to obtain loan forgiveness for the illegally obtained PPP loans," the U.S. Attorney's Office said.

If convicted, each defendant could receive up to 20 years in federal prison.

42-Year-Old Romoland Woman Arrested on Suspicion of Mail Thefts

NUEVO (CNS) - A suspect who was allegedly caught with stolen mail belonging to more than 50 people in Nuevo and Menifee remained in custody last Friday.

The Riverside County Sheriff's Department received a citizen report at 2 p.m. last Tuesday concerning a firsthand report of a woman tampering with a community mailbox on Sandy Plains Drive in Nuevo, according to a department statement. The citizen said the person had fled the location but provided deputies with the woman's vehicle description.

Deputies searched the area and performed an enforcement stop on a vehicle that matched the description, according to the statement.

The driver, identified as 42-year-old Romoland resident Kristen Starnes, was discovered to be "in possession of a large quantity of stolen mail," according to the department. Inmate records indicate that she was arrested less than four hours after the initial report at the intersection of Brown Street and Hansen Avenue.

Starnes is currently being held at the Larry D. Smith Correctional Facility in Banning on $250,000 bail on suspicion of charges including vandalism, petty theft and identity theft, according to inmate records. She is scheduled to appear in court on Nov. 4 at the Riverside Hall of Justice.

The department did not disclose whether ballots or other election materials were among the allegedly stolen items.

Anyone with additional information was encouraged to call the Riverside County Sheriff's dispatch at 951-776-1099 or the Perris Station at 951-210-1000.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF
CASE NO. PRR12402430
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of: Susan Rene Forouhar
A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Hamid Forouhar in the Superior Court of California, County of Riverside.
THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Hamid Forouhar be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act with full authority. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.)
The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A HEARING on the petition will be held on 11/14/2024 at 8:30 am in Dept. 12 located at 4050 MAIN STREET RIVERSIDE CA 92501 Riverside Historic Courthouse.
IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.
Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.
YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (714) 730-2727 for information regarding the trustee's sale or visit this Internet Web site - www.servicelinkASAP.com - for information regarding the sale of this property, using the file number assigned to this case: 176079. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (714) 730-2727 for information regarding the trustee's sale, or visit this internet website www.servicelinkASAP.com for information regarding the sale of this property, using the file number assigned to this case 176079 to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Natalia Perez Ruiz.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Fany Ruiz in the Superior Court of California, County of Riverside.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Fany Ruiz be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on 11/18/2024 at 8:30 AM in Department 12 located at 4050 Main St, Riverside, CA 92501.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. PUBLIC NOTICE

This is a public notice that the City of Corona's Planning and Housing Commission will conduct a public hearing in the City Council Chambers at 400 S. Vicentia Ave., on Monday, November 25, 2024, at 6:00 p.m. or thereafter upon the following:

GPA2020-0002: General Plan Amendment to change the land use designation of 5.5 acres located north of Green River Road and west of Dominguez Ranch Road from Mixed Use II (Industrial & Commercial) to General Commercial, and change the land use designations on the south side of Green River Road and west of Dominguez Ranch Road from General Commercial, Mixed Use II (Industrial & Commercial), and Estate Residential to 49.31 acres of Mixed Use II (Industrial & Commercial), 20.39 acres of Estate Residential, and 83.34 acres of Open SpaceGeneral.

SPA2020-0006: Specific Plan Amendment to the Green River Ranch Specific Plan to reorganize General Commercial and Estate Residential zoning districts and planning areas, delete the Mixed Use and Hotel/Mixed/Commercial zoning districts, and add the Business Park Industrial and Open Space General zoning districts.

TTM 37963: Tentative Tract Map application to subdivide 154.50 acres located on the south side of Green River Ranch Road and west of Dominguez Ranch Road into five numbered lots for industrial purposes, one numbered lot for residential purpose, and two lettered lots for street purposes.

PP2020-0004: Precise Plan application to review the site plan, architecture, landscaping and other features associated with the proposed development of five industrial warehouse buildings totaling 746,167 square feet in the proposed Business Park Industrial (BPI) zoning district within the Green River Ranch Specific Plan, located on the south side of Green River Road and west of Dominguez Ranch Road.

California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) – In accordance with Section 15162 of the State Guidelines for Implementing the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), the City of Corona, as the lead agency under CEQA, prepared a Draft Subsequent Environmental Impact Report (SEIR) to the Green River Ranch Specific Plan Final Environmental Impact Port which was approved and certified by the City of Corona on February 7, 2001. The Draft Subsequent EIR was prepared to address the potential environmental impacts of the proposed changes to the Green River Ranch Specific Plan land uses and the development of a 37.82-acre industrial park proposed within the Green River Ranch Specific Plan. The Draft SEIR also addresses the relocation of Proposed Constrained Linkage 1 (PCL-1) of the Riverside County Multiple Species Habitat Conservation Plan as a separate but related project. The Draft SEIR was prepared in accordance with CEQA, and submitted to the State Clearinghouse (SCH # 2022080640) and advertised to the general public on October 11, 2024 for public comment for a period of 45 days. The public comment period on the Draft SEIR closes November 25, 2024. The Draft SEIR is available for download from the City of Corona's website at www. CoronaCa.gov/government/departments/ communitydevelopment/planningdivision. A physical copy of the Draft SEIR is available for viewing at the Planning Division public counter, located at Corona City Hall, 400 S. Vicentia Avenue, Corona.

(Applicant: PSiP WR Green River LLC)

This is a public hearing, and you are invited to attend and comment on the applications described above. NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF JANNETJE OGG
Case No. PRRI2402595
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of JANNETJE OGG.
A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by EVERDINA JEPSON in the Superior Court of California, County of Riverside.
THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that EVERDINA JEPSON be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A HEARING on the petition will be held on 11/25/2024 at 8:30 AM in Department 12 located at 4050 Main St, Riverside, CA 92501.
IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.
Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.
YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.
