Week of Storms Ends, Temps to Warm BEGINNING NEXT WEEK

RIVERSIDE (CNS) - The last of three storm systems brought more rain and snow to the Riverside County area Thursday.

"The final round of rain, snow, and gusty winds…" was expected last night, "…with the main cold front moving through," said the National Weather Service. "

Heavy snow was expected in the mountains above 5,000 feet, creating hazardous travel conditions through Thursday evening.

The Riverside County Fire Department warned residents earlier this week about the increased risks during a rainstorm.

"Over the next several days, our area is expected to see several inches of rain. This increases the risk of flooded roads, downed power lines, and fast-moving water," the department said Monday afternoon. The fire department advised residents to clear storm drains near homes, avoid driving through standing water, and to slow down and give emergency vehicles space.

KAISER STRIKE HITS FOURTH WEEK AS 31,000 WORKERS DEMAND HIGHER PAY AND BETTER STAFFING

BY KRISTEN HWANG, CalMatters

More than 31,000 Kaiser Permanente health care workers remain on strike this week as the open-ended walkout entered its fourth week, disrupting patient appointments, surgeries and treatments across California and Hawaii.

Bargaining teams for Kaiser and workers resumed negotiations after weeks of stalemate, but no agreement appears imminent. This is the latest of a number of major strikes to have roiled Kaiser in recent years, including a 10-week strike by mental health workers in 2022 and a 2023 dispute mediated by the then-U.S. Secretary of Labor.

The strike, which started Jan. 26, is an effort by one of the organization's largest unions to improve wages and staffing conditions. Members of the United Nurses Associations of California/Union of Health Care Professionals have never before walked off the job. The union, which is an umbrella organization for multiple local chapters, represents nurses, physical therapists, midwives and other health professionals.

Workers accuse Kaiser of violating staffing agreements and worsening patient care — both of which the health care giant denies. They are demanding a 25% raise over four years, arguing the wage increase is needed to retain and recruit employees and account for the steep inflationary pressures of the past few years.

Kaiser contends its employees are on average the highest paid among other health care organizations. It has proposed a 21.5% increase over four years. In a statement, a Kaiser spokesperson said negotiations are happening while health care costs rise and millions of Americans are at risk of losing insurance.

"This underscores our responsibility to deliver fair, competitive pay for employees while protecting access and affordability for our members. We're doing both," the unsigned statement says.

According to the statement, Kaiser leadership believes it can afford the 21.5% wage increase without increasing member premiums, but it cannot make the same guarantee under the union's proposal.

Union leaders have argued that Kaiser can afford across-the-board wage increases given its $66 billion in reserves. Kaiser posted a one-year loss of $4.5 billion in 2022. Since then, the health system has rebounded, posting net income of $12.9 billion in 2024 and $9.3 billion last year.

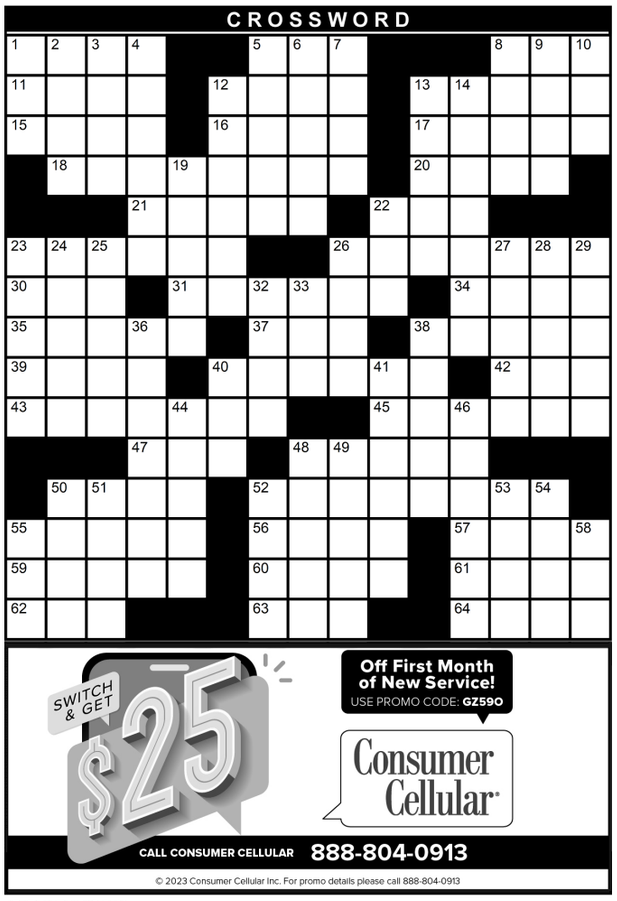

The company argues that it intends its reserves for long-term commitments and emergencies. In a statement the company said using reserves for payroll would be "financially irresponsible." Kaiser's wage proposal would cost about $2 billion, and the union's would cost an additional $1 billion, according to the statement.

Palm Springs Airport Launches Online Portal for Finding Lost and Found Items

PALM SPRINGS (CNS) - Palm Springs International Airport launched an online portal Thursday designed for travelers to view found items in real time.

In partnership with Liff Happens, a digital lost-and-found software platform, PSP is the first airport to implement this service. The company was mainly used at major events and destinations worldwide, including Coachella Valley Music and Art Festival, Stagecoach Festival, Austin City Limits, Bonnaroo and EDC.

"Every touchpoint matter when it comes to our guests' experience, and this is a meaningful improvement," Executive Director of Aviation Harry Barrett, Jr., said in a statement. "By partnering with Liff Happens, we're reducing the stress and uncertainty that comes lost items while making it easier for travelers to recover them."

Officials said the platform catalogs items using photos and key descriptive details and masks personal information for security reasons. Once a guest can verify ownership of an item, the person can securely finish the claim process and have their belongings shipped to a residence or to a preferred address.

"We're excited to partner with Palm Springs Airport as our first airport client," Benji Friedl, Co-Founder of Liff Happens, said in a statement. "Airports present a unique opportunity to improve the lost and found experience at scale, and PSP is leading the way by putting convenience and guest experience first."

The online portal can be found at flyPSP.com/lost.

There Was 'A Bridge Called Jesse Jackson' Across Decades of Civil Rights Advocacy

By AARON MORRISON and SOPHIA TAREEN
Associated Press

CHICAGO (AP) — From the moment the Rev. Jesse Jackson stepped forward as torchbearer to what was then a largely Southern civil rights struggle — a movement with much unfinished business — he created a bridge.

From the South's fight with Jim Crow to the North's battle with systemic racial inequality, from the buttoned-up, conservative generation of King's circle to the dashiki-wearing Black Power leaders and the activists of the hip-hop generation, Jackson forged a link between improbable dreams and political power.

"From Martin Luther King to Barack Obama, there's a bridge called Jesse Jackson," the Rev. Al Sharpton said.

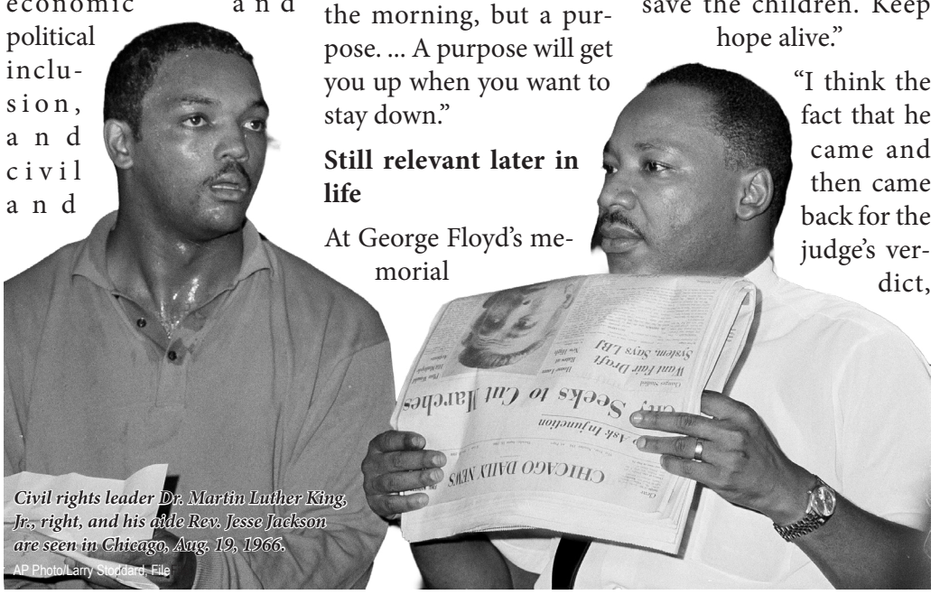

Jackson, a protégé of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. who led the Civil Rights Movement for decades after the revered leader's assassination, died on Tuesday, his family said. He was 84.

Jackson kept up his public advocacy for racial justice, economic and political inclusion, and civil and human rights for more than a half-century, even after a neurological disorder in his later years affected his ability to move and speak.

Weighing in on political events, supporting the families of Black Americans killed by police and participating in COVID-19 vaccination drives to battle hesitancy in Black communities, Jackson built on a career that included running for president, international diplomacy and influencing the lexicon of racial identity in America.

Jackson clearly wasn't the lion he had been toward the end, but his presence at racial justice protests and COVID-19 advocacy events, and his arrest outside the U.S. Capitol while calling on Congress to end the filibuster to protect voting rights displayed the bite left in his bark.

"We've always had a place for him," said the Rev. William Barber II, co-chair of the Poor People's Campaign and one of many activists who have followed in his footsteps. Jackson urged them to "live life so that it's not your alarm clock that awakes you in the morning, but a purpose. ... A purpose will get you up when you want to stay down."

Still relevant later in life

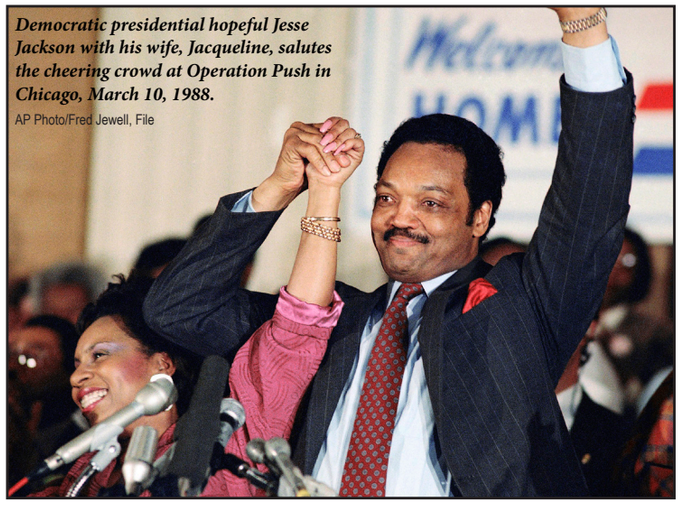

At George Floyd's memorial service, Jackson's plaintive call, "I can't breathe!" pierced the collective silence in a Minneapolis cathedral. He cried out twice more as the minutes ticked by to symbolize how long Floyd had a police officer's knee pressed on his neck.

It was not only Jackson's powerful expression of his own grief over Floyd's death, which sparked global protests against racial injustice. It was a reminder that his voice still carried the singular resonance that for decades made him an international figure for civil and human rights.

Jackson returned to rally demonstrators marching through downtown Minneapolis, and stood with Floyd's family when a jury convicted former Minneapolis police officer Derek Chauvin of murder in Floyd's death. "Even if we win," he told the marchers, "it's relief, not victory. They're still killing our people. Stop the violence, save the children. Keep hope alive."

"I think the fact that he came and then came back for the judge's verdict, suffering with Parkinson's, shows the determination that Jesse Jackson had all the way to the end," Sharpton said about his longtime mentor. "He once said to me, years before he was diagnosed with Parkinson's, 'I'm not going to stop until I drop. I'm going to die on the battlefield.'"

Early in the COVID-19 pandemic, Jackson got vaccinated and urged others to get the shot. He pointed out racial disparities in heath care and partnered with the National Medical Association, which represents Black physicians and patients, on a public health campaign to improve testing and treatment data and to recruit more African Americans to the medical field.

"It's America's unfinished business — we're free, but not equal," Jackson told The Associated Press in a 2020 interview. "There's a reality check that has been brought by the coronavirus, that exposes the weakness and the opportunity."

Seeking the spotlight and redefining what was possible Jackson had his share of critics both within and outside the Black community. Some considered him a grandstander, too eager to seek out the spotlight.

Jackson was widely known for his appearance in photographs taken moments after King was assassinated on the balcony of a Memphis hotel on April 4, 1968. For two days afterward, Jackson wore a turtleneck he said was soaked with the venerated civil rights leader's blood, including at a King memorial service where he told the Chicago City Council: "I come here with a heavy heart because on my chest is the stain of blood from Dr. King's head."

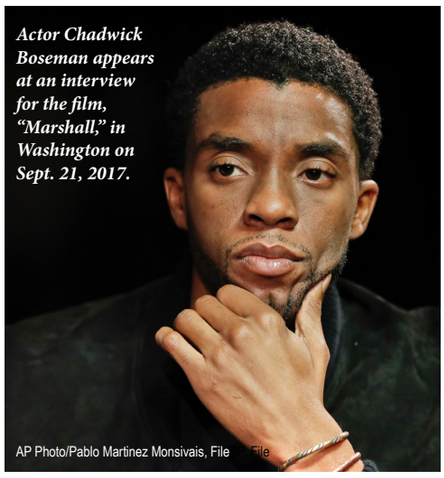

Two decades later, Jackson made history with his runs for the White House. Until Barack Obama's election in 2008, Jackson was the most successful Black candidate for the U.S. presidency,

COLORECTAL CANCER IS RISING IN YOUNGER ADULTS. Here's who is most at risk and symptoms to watch for

By LAURAN NEERGAARD AP Medical Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Colorectal cancer is a threat not just to older adults but increasingly to young men and women, too. It's now the top cancer killer of Americans younger than 50.

Actor Chadwick Boseman appears at an interview for the film, "Marshall," in Washington on Sept. 21, 2017.

The deaths of "Dawson's Creek" actor James Van Der Beek at 48 this week, and a few years ago "Black Panther" star Chadwick Boseman at 43, highlight the risk for younger adults.

"We're now starting to see more and more people in the 20-, 30- and 40-year-old range developing colon cancer. At the beginning of my career, nobody that age had colorectal cancer," said Dr. John Marshall of Georgetown University's Lombardi Comprehensive Cancer Center, who has been a cancer doctor for more than three decades.

That trend "is shaking us all, to be blunt," said Marshall, who is also medical consultant to the Colorectal Cancer Alliance.

Here's what to know about colorectal cancer — at any age — and how to protect yourself.

How common is colorectal cancer?

More than 158,000 cases of colorectal cancer will be diagnosed in the U.S. this year, according to the American Cancer Society. Among all ages, it's the nation's second leading cancer killer, behind lung cancer — expected to claim more than 55,000 lives this year.

For the population overall, cases and deaths have inched down in recent years. That's thanks in part to screening tests that can spot tumors early, when they're easier to treat — or even prevent them if precancerous growths are found and removed.

Who's most at risk?

The vast majority of colorectal cancer cases and deaths still are in people 50 and older. That older age group has seen the most progress, with deaths dropping by about 1.5% a year over the past decade, according to cancer society statistics.

But while it's still relatively rare in the under-50 crowd, their colorectal cancer diagnoses have been rising since the early 2000s.

And last month, cancer society researchers reported that colorectal cancer mortality in Americans under 50 had increased by 1.1% a year since 2005, becoming the deadliest cancer in that age group. This year, the society estimates 3,890 people under age 50 will die of it.

Risk factors at any age include obesity, lack of physical activity, a diet high in red or processed meat and low in fruits and vegetables, smoking, heavy alcohol use, having inflammatory bowel disease or a family history of colorectal cancer.

Marshall advises everyone to eat lots of fruits and vegetables and whole grains. "Meat's not evil" but eat less of it, he said.

And a recent study found that a three-year exercise program improved survival in colon cancer patients and reduced cancer recurrence.

What are the symptoms of colorectal cancer?

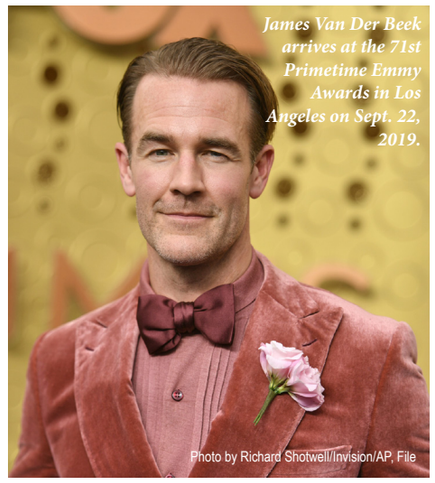

Symptoms include blood in stool or rectal bleeding; changes in bowel habits such as diarrhea, constipation or narrowing of stool that lasts more than a few days; unintended weight loss; and cramps or abdominal pain.

"Don't ignore symptoms. Get it checked," Marshall stressed. Survival is far more likely when colorectal cancer is diagnosed early, before it spreads.

When to get screened for colorectal cancer

Medical guidelines say the average person should start getting screened at age 45 — too late for some young adults.

People known to be at higher risk are supposed to talk with their doctors about whether to start screening even earlier.

James Van Der Beek arrives at the 71st Primetime Emmy Awards in Los Angeles on Sept. 22, 2019.

How often people need to get checked depends on the type of screening they choose. There are a variety of options, including yearly stool-based tests or

Inflation squeezes health workers

Joe Guzynski, executive director for the union, said its members last signed a contract with Kaiser in 2021 before inflation peaked around 8% in 2022. At the same time, some of the organization's local units declined to bargain during the COVID-19 pandemic, believing it would be too disruptive, and refrained from seeking additional raises. The group's latest contract expired in September last year.

Other major unions at Kaiser that signed contracts after 2022 received inflation-adjusted wage increases.

"What we're asking for is the same deal. Everybody else got to deal with inflation," Guzynski said. "It's really about restoring fairness."

Patients report disruptions across the state

Patients on social media and in local news reports have described cancelled chemotherapy treatments, surgeries and other procedures. They've also posted images of pharmacy and laboratory lines snaking down hallways and out the door. Unionized nurses on strike, too, have reported getting recruitment texts from contractors seeking to backfill the staff positions.

Kaiser is the largest health provider in California, serving more than 9 million patients. It is also the largest private employer in the state. In a statement issued before the strike, the company said it had been "preparing contingency plans" for months to maintain access to care.

Cecilia Ochoa, 50, was unable to get a prescription filled at the Downey Medical Center last week. Ochoa, who had been recently hospitalized, said she was at home when she started to feel nauseous and weak several days ago. She went to the emergency room and received medication for nausea. Later, her lab results came back positive for a urinary tract infection.

Ochoa said she was vomiting and shaking when she tried to get antibiotics at the 24-hour pharmacy in Downey. The line was nearly 100 people long, she said, and almost reached the street. Ochoa tried another Kaiser pharmacy around the corner and waited an hour before a staff member came outside to tell everyone that the pharmacy would not fill any more prescriptions for the day. One man complained that he had been waiting in line for three hours just to check in.

"It was bad. It was so bad they were handing out snacks, water. People were there for so long," Ochoa said.

She was born at Kaiser and has been a member her whole life, Ochoa said. Over the years it has gotten harder to see specialists and wait times for appointments are so long she has to schedule them months in advance. She's supportive of the nurses and other workers striking, some of whom she has known for decades.

"I think somewhere they lost the whole thing. It's not about the patient, it's about the money," Ochoa said. "I hope all of this ends as soon as possible for everybody."

colonoscopies that may be done every 10 years as long as no problems were found. There's also a newer blood test for adults 45 or older.

What's causing the colorectal cancer rise in younger adults?

No one knows what's causing the rise in cases in younger adults. But Georgetown's Marshall said many young patients lack common risk factors. He wonders if changes in young people's gut bacteria — the microbiome — might play a role.

Also, where cancer occurs along the question mark-shaped colon — it starts on one side of the abdomen and swoops to the other before ending with the rectum — influences how aggressive it is and how it's treated. Marshall said there's a marked difference in where younger and older people's tumors tend to strike, another clue being explored.

Customizable Wall Art!
Easy and Beautiful Wall Decor

By MIA ROTELL

Do you, or anyone you know, have any old photos or small works of art lying around? Instead of having them collect dust in a drawer, turn them into a cute wall decoration that is sure to catch all your guests' eyes. Get a frame, some fabric, and your piece, and in minutes, you have a beautiful piece to hang on your wall.

What you need:

- 1 picture frame (it doesn't matter if it has a stand on the back)
- 1 half yard of fabric
- 1 picture (must be smaller than the frame)
- 1 pen
- Scissors

How to make it:

Step 1: Take out the stock photo and any other cardboard from the new frame. If there is white matting that can stay in if desired.

Step 2: Lay out the fabric and place the frame on top.

Step 3: Mark the fabric where the frame is — cut! Make sure it fits perfectly flat in the frame.

Step 4: Place the photo or other small illustration face down on the inside glass of the frame — make sure it's straight and exactly in the center.

Step 5: Lay the fabric print side down over what was placed in the previous step.

Step 6: Put the backing back on the frame.

Step 7: It's done!

Tip: Use polaroids or pictures with loved ones to make great gifts! If your fabric has a print, make sure to keep that in mind when cutting and placing! This can be hung on the wall — all you have to do is take off the stand.

winning 13 primaries and caucuses for the Democratic nomination in 1988, four years after his first failed attempt.

"I was able to run for the presidency twice and redefine what was possible; it raised the lid for women and other people of color," he told the AP in 2011. "Part of my job was to sow seeds of the possibilities."

Jackson's cultural impact extended to the American lexicon on race and identity. In 1988, he was among a group of leaders to assert that Black people wanted to be called "African Americans," establishing an identity that honored the population's origins as well as their citizenship.

As the founder and leader of Operation PUSH, which later evolved into the Rainbow/PUSH Coalition, Jackson channeled cries for Black pride and self-determination into corporate boardrooms, pressuring executives to make America a more open and equitable society. His high-profile diplomatic victories included the release of American civilians abroad during conflicts.

Pushing for change at an early age

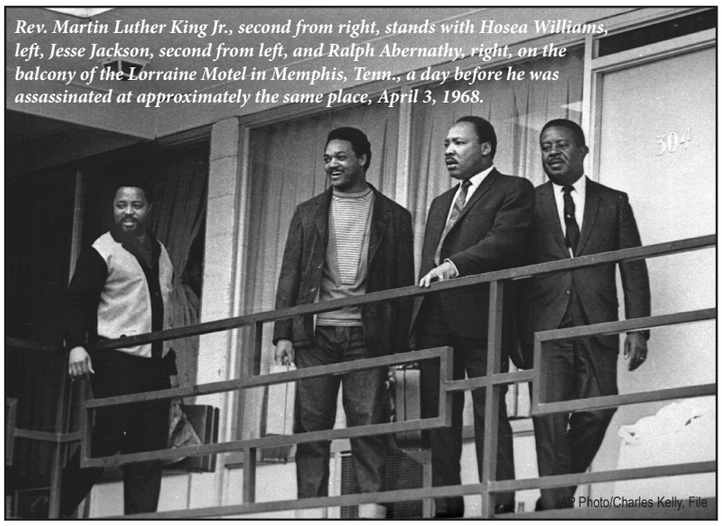

Jesse Louis Jackson Sr. was born Oct. 8, 1941, in Greenville, South Carolina, to Helen Burns, an unmarried high school student, and Noah Louis Robinson, a married man who lived next door. Jackson was later adopted by Charles Henry Jackson, who married his mother.

Jackson played quarterback at Sterling High School in Greenville and accepted a football scholarship from the University of Illinois, but said he was told Black people couldn't play quarterback. So he transferred to North Carolina A&T in Greensboro, arriving just months after students there launched the sit-in movement to desegregate restaurants across the South. He became first-string quarterback, student body president, and an honor student in sociology and economics.

Jackson was soon leading demonstrations, and traveled to Alabama to meet King during the march for voting rights from Selma to Montgomery in 1965. He was moving to Chicago to study theology, so King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference assigned him the task of launching Operation Breadbasket, a campaign to pressure companies to hire more Black workers.

He later called his time with King "a phenomenal four years of work," learning how to agitate within the law for social change.

The constant campaigns often left the college sweetheart he married in 1963, Jacqueline Lavinia Brown, taking the lead in raising their five children: Santita Jackson, Yusef DuBois Jackson, Jacqueline Lavinia Jackson Jr., and two future congressmen, former Rep. Jesse L. Jackson Jr., and Rep. Jonathan Luther Jackson. A frequent houseguest was Santita's friend Michelle Robinson, the future first lady.

Jackson, who was ordained as a Baptist minister in 1968 and earned his Master of Divinity in 2000, also acknowledged fathering a child, Ashley Jackson, with one of his employees at Rainbow/PUSH, Karen L. Stanford. He said he understood what it means to be born out of wedlock and was supporting her emotionally and financially.

When the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and Jackson parted company in 1971, Jackson formed his own sweeping civil rights organization based in Chicago's South Side, with a mission ranging from social services in communities of color to persuading corporate executives to hire more minorities. He formed the Rainbow Coalition after his first presidential run, then merged the political and social justice organizations into the Rainbow PUSH Coalition in 1996.

While Jackson was known for his powerful voice, his words sometimes got him in trouble. In 1984, he apologized for calling New York City "Hymietown," a derogatory reference to the city's large Jewish population, in what he said he believed were private comments to a reporter.

And in July 2008, he made headlines when a hot mike caught him complaining that Obama was "talking down to Black people." Still, tears streamed down his face when he joined the immense crowd in Chicago's Grant Park to celebrate Obama's 2008 election victory.

"I wish for a moment that Dr. King or (assassinated civil rights leader) Medgar Evers ... could've just been there for 30 seconds to see the fruits of their labor," he told the AP years later. "I became overwhelmed. It was the joy and the journey."

SOARING Coffee Prices Rewrite Some Americans' Daily Routines

By MATT SEDENSKY AP National Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — For years, it was a daily McDonald's trip for a cup of coffee with 10 sugars and five creams. Later, it was Starbucks caramel macchiatos with almond milk and two pumps of syrup.

Coffee has been a morning ritual for Chandra Donelson since she was old enough to drink it. But, dismayed by rising prices, the 35-year-old from Washington, D.C., did the unthinkable: She gave it up.

"I did that daily for years. I loved it. That was just my routine," she says. "And now it's not."

Years of steadily climbing coffee prices have some in this country of coffee lovers upending their habits by nixing café visits, switching to cheaper brews or foregoing it altogether.

Coffee prices in the U.S. were up 18.3% in January from a year ago, according to the latest Consumer Price Index released on Friday. Over five years, the government reported, coffee prices rose 47%.

That extraordinary rise has brought some to take extraordinary measures.

"Before, I thought, 'There's no way I could make it through my day without coffee,'" says Liz Sweeney, 50, of Boise, Idaho, a former "coffee addict" who has cut her consumption. "Now my car's not on automatic pilot."

Sweeney used to have three cups of coffee at home each day and stop at a café whenever she left the house. As prices climbed last year, though, she nixed coffee shop visits and cut her intake to a cup a day at home. To make up for the caffeine, she pops open a can of Diet Coke at home or rolls through McDonald's for one.

Dan DeBaun, 34, of Minnetonka, Minnesota, has likewise trimmed back on coffee shop visits, conscious of the increasing expense as he and his wife save up for a house.

"What used to be a $2 coffee, it's now $5, $6," says DeBaun, who now buys ground coffee at Trader Joe's and fills up a travel mug to bring to the office.

Data from Toast, a payment platform used by more than 150,000 restaurants, found the median price of a regular hot coffee in the U.S. had climbed to $3.61 in December, with wide variation by location. The median price of cold brews was $5.55.

Virtually all coffee consumed in the U.S. is imported. Though tariffs affected some imports of coffee in 2025, they ultimately were removed. Climate issues — drought in Vietnam, heavy rain in Indonesia, and hot, dry weather in Brazil — are blamed for reducing yields of coffee crops and driving up global prices.

A Kaleidoscope of Oddball Tomatoes to Try as Seed-Starting Season Nears

By JESSICA DAMIANO Associated Press

Seed-starting time is right around the corner, and that means it's time to think about tomatoes.

I can think of no better summer meal than a thick slice of a homegrown Oxheart between two slices of white bread, adorned only with salt, pepper and maybe a couple of basil leaves.

I'm also partial to Beefsteak, Porterhouse, Brandywine, Big Zac and Big Boy, all delicious — and all red, the way many of us have been conditioned to believe tomatoes should be. But there's a whole kaleidoscope of tomatoes you can grow in your garden.

So this year, as you're dog-earring catalog pages and dreaming of July, look past the usual suspects. One of these oddballs just might be the tomato you love the most.

Cherokee Purple

It was the first other-colored tomato I grew. I didn't particularly find the heirloom's grayish-brown skin or matching flesh appetizing, and my 8-foot-tall (2.5-meter-tall) indeterminate plant didn't produce as prolifically as most other varieties I'd grown. But its sweet, earthy and somewhat smoky flavor and juicy consistency made for a delicious sandwich.

A Voyager Tomato

Black Krim

This old, indeterminate Crimean heirloom introduced to North American home gardeners in 1990 is slightly easier on the eyes. Its sweet, salty, tangy flavor intensifies when allowed to ripen fully on the vine, so resist the urge to harvest prematurely. And if its unusual reddish-gray color turns you off, take a bite and you'll get over it.

Black Beauty

Yellow Pear Tomato
Ian Atkins/Thomas Jefferson's Monticello via AP

A few steps up on the aesthetics trellis, Black Beauty lives up to its name. With skin the color of blackberries and deep red, meaty flesh, it's considered the darkest tomato in the world and has the antioxidant content to prove it. Although it's a hybrid variety, Black Beauty has been stabilized through selective breeding, so its seeds will grow true to type. And it makes an impressive Caprese salad.

Ananas Noire

Also known by its English translation of Black Pineapple, this tomato variety is the happiest-looking of the bunch. Almost tie-dyed in appearance, the green, red and yellow tricolored hybrid popped up naturally in 1990s Belgium when a pineapple tomato crossed with a black tomato growing nearby. Developed further and stabilized by the Belgian horticulturist Pascal Moreau, and made available to home gardeners in 2005, the indeterminate plants are heavy producers of sweet, juicy, citrusy fruits.

Yellow Pear

This indeterminate heirloom plant produces an abundance of small, vibrant yellow, pear-shaped fruits. According to the Monticello historic site, which collects and sells historic seeds, the indeterminate plant was grown in the early 1600s by American settlers, who preserved and pickled its fruit. We can still do that, of course, as well as eat them out of hand or use them in salads.

Voyager

Voyager tomatoes are true weirdos. The heirloom variety is said to have gotten its name because its fruits are comprised of individual segments that can be pulled apart without disturbing the others, making for good travel snacks. They also reveal an interesting shape when sliced horizontally through the whole fruit. In my garden, Voyagers were quick to ripen. And in my kitchen, they were tangy — enjoyed with a drizzle of olive oil and sprinkle of salt and pepper.

Green Zebra

This green-and-yellow striped tomato variety has bright green interior flesh and a sweet, tangy flavor. Its cultivation spanned four decades, as Everett, Washington, plant breeder Tom Wagner worked to cross several heirloom varieties to create a tomato that would remain green when ripe. The indeterminate plants, made available in 1983, produce crack-resistant fruit with exceptional heat and drought tolerance.

Miso Chicken

By CONNOR FORBES

My brother and sister in-laws traveled to Japan at the end of last year and brought me some goodies for the kitchen. And which I utilized for this recipe. The good news is that you can find these in most grocery stores here in California. No need to hop on a plane to Japan. Though, I would recommend it. I studied abroad in Japan nearly 20 years ago, yikes I'm getting old, and it is so special. Food, culture, art, and so much more everywhere you look.

Anyway, this is a simple recipe. If you have time to let the chicken marinate for a couple hours, I highly recommend it. If you don't have the time, it will be delicious nonetheless.

Ingredients

- 2 pounds chicken
- ¼ cup miso paste
- 2 tbsp ponzu sauce

To Make

In a bowl, add the miso and ponzu sauce. Stir until smooth. (If you can't find ponzu sauce, substitute with 2 tbsp soy sauce and a squeeze of lemon). Marinate Chicken. Cook chicken. I used an air fryer set to 380 degrees for 13 minutes. In a traditional oven cook at 425 for 15-20 minutes or until the chicken reaches an internal temperature of 165 degrees. The additional marinade left in the bowl can be placed in a small pot and simmered and used for a finishing sauce. Make sure you simmer it to kill the salmonella from the chicken. Let rest for 5 minutes and serve with rice and a veggie. Garnish with the sauce and basil.

Marcus Samuelsson shares a Comfort-Food Recipe for OXTAIL PEPPERPOT with DUMPLINGS

By MARCUS SAMUELSSON Voracious

Oxtail is one of my favorite meats, and I like it best when it has been slow-cooked for hours, so I recommend cooking it the day before and letting it sit overnight. What makes this dish from my cookbook "The Rise" so homey and delicious is the mix of the oxtail and the dumplings, which everyone can relate to as being an example of comfort food at its finest.

This traditional Caribbean dish — mostly from Guyana — is made by stewing meat in a dark, rich gravy flavored with cinnamon, brown sugar, hot chiles, and cassareep, a special brown sauce made from cassava root. African Americans adapted the recipe using oxtail instead of offal, which are the internal organs of butchered animals. Regardless, this is a dish that only gets better with time in the pot.

OXTAIL PEPPERPOT WITH DUMPLINGS

Servings: 4 to 6

Ingredients

OXTAIL

1 (4-pound) piece oxtail

1 ½ teaspoons kosher salt

1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

½ cup vegetable oil

2 carrots, peeled and diced

1 onion, diced

21 cloves garlic, minced

7 tablespoons minced ginger (3-inch piece)

2 plum tomatoes, diced

2 scallions, sliced

1 Scotch bonnet (or habanero) chile, stemmed and chopped

3 sprigs fresh thyme

7 tablespoons brown sugar

2 tablespoons soy sauce

2 tablespoons ketchup

1 tablespoon whole allspice berries

6 cups chicken stock

DUMPLINGS

2 cups all-purpose flour

2½ tablespoons cornmeal

1 teaspoon kosher salt

½ cup plus 2 tablespoons water

Directions

For the oxtail: Season the oxtail on all sides with salt and pepper. Heat ¼ cup of the oil in a large (8-quart) Dutch oven set over medium-high heat. When the oil shimmers, add the oxtail and brown on both sides, about 15 minutes.

Remove the oxtail to a paper-towel-lined dish. Heat the remaining ¼ cup oil in the Dutch oven and add the carrots, onion, garlic, ginger, tomatoes, scallions, chile, thyme, brown sugar, soy sauce, ketchup, and allspice and stir to combine. Return the oxtail to the pot, add the chicken stock, and bring to a simmer. Reduce the heat to maintain a simmer and cook, covered, for 2½ hours, or until the oxtail is tender and the meat is falling away from the bone.

For the dumplings: Place the flour, cornmeal, and salt in a medium bowl and stir to combine. Add the water and use your hands to work the mixture into a dough ball. Knead the dough in the bowl for 2 to 3 minutes. Divide the dough in half and cover one half with a damp towel.

Continue to knead one dough ball for 5 minutes, or until smooth. Roll the piece of dough into a 21- to 24-inch snakelike piece. Cut the dough into 1-inch pieces, set on a baking sheet, and cover with a damp towel.

Repeat with remaining dough ball.

Stir the dumplings into the oxtail stew for the last 30 minutes of cooking time and cook until dumplings are tender and cooked through.

Serve the stew with rice and peas.

"Wuthering Heights"

By BOB GARVER

"Wuthering Heights" is based on a classic novel by Emily Brontë. I've never read the novel, which is probably for the best. Reports of the movie differing from the novel are actually quite relieving to me. They're relieving in the sense that I do not have to lose respect for people who like the novel, which I would do if this movie were any indication of its quality. I'm fine with not judging a book by its movie, especially when the movie is this terrible.

Young Catherine Earnshaw (Charlotte Mellington) grows up in the Wuthering Heights estate in 18th-century England, under the care of her rich, cruel, drunken father (Martin Clunes). Servants include same-aged companion Nelly (Vy Nguyen) and rescued street urchin Heathcliff (Owen Cooper). Cathy initially sees Heathcliff as her "toy," but eventually comes to see him as a friend. As the two get older and Cathy turns into Margot Robbie and Heathcliff turns into Jacob Elordi, they both begin to think that they might become more than friends. It's hard for me to buy Robbie, who played Leonardo DiCaprio's wife in "The Wolf of Wall Street" back in 2013, as someone who is just now going through a sexual awakening, but sure, Cathy and Heathcliff are in love, but neither of them will admit it or make the first move.

The problem with such a relationship would be the financial aspect. Cathy's father has gambled away the family's fortune, leaving them both "near-poverty," and Heathcliff, as a servant, has practically nothing. Cathy confides in Nelly (now played by Hong Chau), with Heathcliff overhearing, that she needs to marry someone with money, like wealthy neighbor Edgar (Shazad Latif). She goes on to admit that she'd rather marry the broke Heathcliff, but he misses that part. Heathcliff abandons Wuthering Heights the next day and Cathy goes on to marry Edgar.

At first, Cathy loves all the material trappings of her marriage (this portion of the film does some impressive things with the "wealth porn" element, with fine foods and flowers everywhere), but she just can't bring herself to reciprocate Edgar's love. A pregnancy makes her feel even more trapped. Soon after, Heathcliff returns, a wealthy man. He and Cathy could be together if it weren't for that pesky lifetime commitment she made. Their workaround is to have an affair. When Cathy wants to cut things off (due to her pregnancy, not fidelity), Heathcliff gets revenge by marrying Edgar's naïve ward Isabella (Alison Oliver) and treating her horribly. This is supposed to entice Cathy to come back to him… somehow.

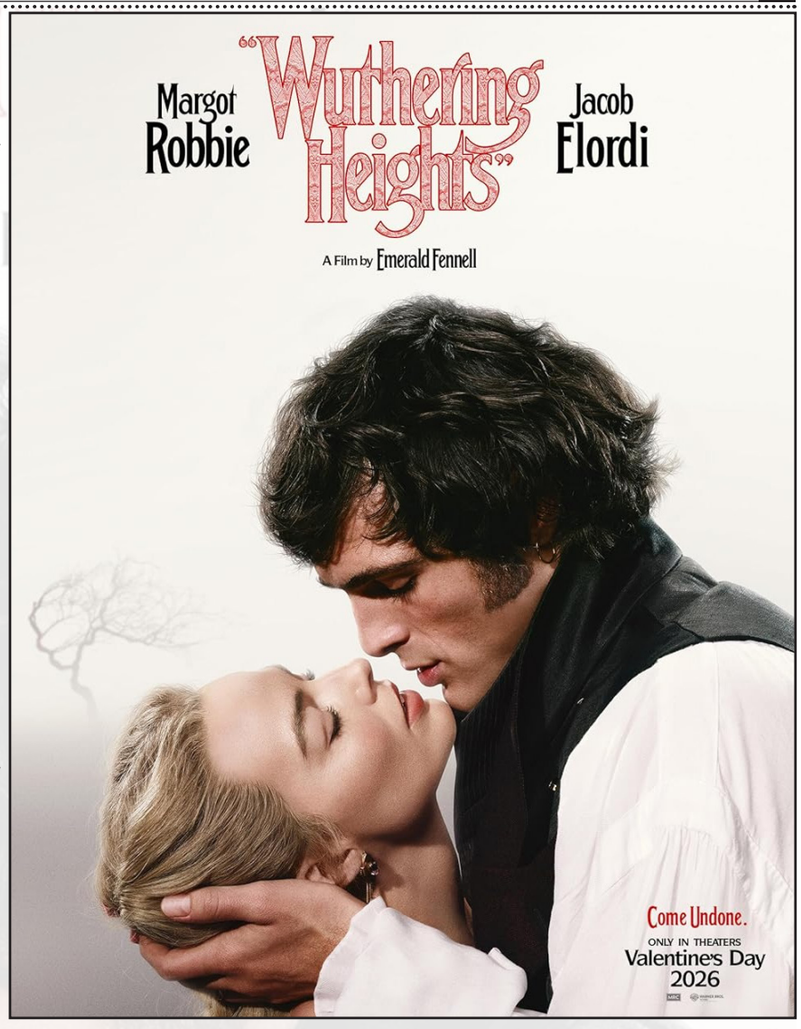

Can Cathy and Heathcliff's game of sexual chess end well for either of them? That's the question I think we're supposed to be asking. I was much more concerned about how things would end for well-meaning pawns Edgar and Isabella. Cathy and Heathcliff turn each other into monsters by the end, and not in a tragic, understandable way – more like they're locked in a contest to see who can be the bigger spoiled brat. Cathy grew up a spoiled brat, but Heathcliff watched her and learned from the best. Speaking of "brat," I liked the snippets of Charli XCX songs that played throughout the film, usually in scenes of heavy fog that seemed to match the singer's breathy voice. Maybe she should have played Cathy.

"Wuthering Heights" is a movie about two people who deserve each other. At first, this can be said with positive connotations that slowly turn to negative. Because there are so many erotic scenes with the main characters in fancy costumes, this movie is supposedly "romantic." I'm worried about what young romantics will take away from this movie, considering how many of them came out of last year's "Nosferatu" with a crush on Count Orlok. I walked away from this film wanting both main characters to fall from a height – Wuthering or otherwise.

Grade: C-

"Wuthering Heights" is rated R for sexual content, some violent content, and language. Its running time is 136 minutes.

'Wuthering Heights' Sees Love at Box Office with $34.8M Opening

LOS ANGELES (CNS) - "Wuthering Heights" opened with $34.8 million over the Valentine's Day weekend to lead all films in North America, according to industry estimates released Sunday.

Director Emerald Fennell's version of Emily Bronte's 1847 romance novel stars Margot Robbie and Jacob Elordi, in the roles played by Merle Oberon and Laurence Olivier in the classic 1939 film.

The animated children's movie "GOAT" opened with $26 million for a strong second place, Comscore reported.

"Crime 101," a heist film starring Chris Hemsworth, Mark Ruffalo, Halle Berry and Barry Keoghan, opened with $15.1 million for third place.

The survival thriller "Send Help" grossed another $8.9 million Friday through Sunday in its third weekend.

Fifth place went to the romantic comedy "Solo Mio," which grossed $6.4 million in its second weekend.

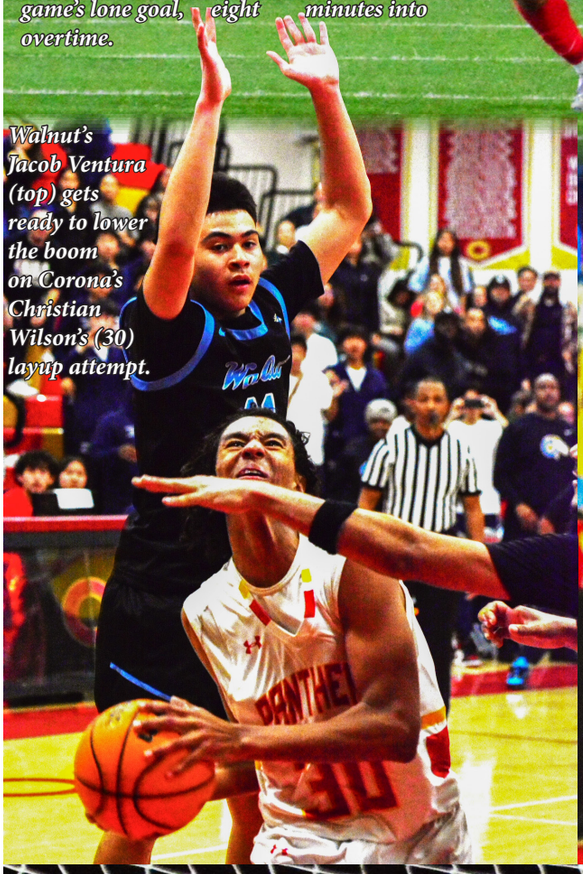

Disney's "Zootopia 2" continued its lengthy and impressive run, grossing $3.7 million in its 12th week in theaters, pushing its cumulative domestic total to over $419 million.

Rounding out the top 10 releases were "Good Luck, Have Fun, Don't Die" ($3.6 million), "Avatar: Fire and Ash" ($3.3 million), "Iron Lung" ($3.1 million) and "Dracula" ($3 million).

This weekend's overall three-day box office haul was estimated at $119.2 million. The year-to-date total is $899.8 million -- up 8.1% from the figure at this time last year, according to Comscore.

How the Rich Pass on Their Wealth. And How You Can Too

NEW YORK (AP) — Death and taxes may be inevitable. A big bill for your heirs is not.

The rich have made an art of avoiding taxes and making sure their wealth passes down effortlessly to the next generation. But the tricks they use – to expedite payouts to heirs and avoid handing money to the government – can also work for people with far more modest estates.

"It's a strategic game of chess played over decades," says Mark Bosler, an estate planning attorney in Troy, Michigan, and legal adviser to Real Estate Bees. "While the average person relies on a simple will, the well-to-do utilize a different playbook."

Consider a trust

First, consider the facts: Despite widespread misconceptions, only estates of the very richest Americans are generally subject to taxes. At the federal level, estates of over $15 million typically trigger taxes. At the state level, 16 states and the District of Columbia do collect estate or inheritance taxes, according to the Tax Foundation, sometimes with lower exemptions than the IRS, but still at thresholds targeting millionaires.

While most people can pass on what they have without worrying about their heirs being caught in a web of taxes, it can require planning to escape a messy process that can hold up estates for years and cost families significantly in court fees and lawyer bills.

The solution at the center of many estate planners' designs is a trust.

Though trusts conjure images of complex arrangements utilized by the uber-rich, they are relatively simple tools that can make sense for many people. They come with expense, often costing thousands of dollars in lawyer fees to set them up. But for a retired couple with a paid-off house, 401(k)s and a portfolio of investments, they can ease the passing of assets to heirs.

Among the reasons: Even if you aren't leaving enough behind to trigger taxes, your estate can get tied up in probate court, which typically assesses fees based on an estate's total value.

"You are leaving what might have gone to your children or other loved ones to attorneys and the courts," says Renee Fry, CEO of Gentreo, an online estate planner based in Quincy, Massachusetts. "Anywhere from 3 to 8% of an estate might be lost."

Trusts can allow an estate to sidestep court altogether and to shield it from public view by keeping details out of public records. Some people also use them to protect their savings if they someday need nursing home care and would prefer to qualify for a government-paid stay under Medicaid instead of paying themselves.

Pass on stocks virtually tax-free

Imagine being an investor in a stock like Nvidia that has soared in recent years. Now imagine being able to reap the profit of selling your shares without paying tax.

It's possible with one caveat: You have to die.

That scenario, known in estate lingo as "step-up," allows many rich families to grow their wealth while ensuring their heirs won't be saddled with the bill.

It works like this: Say your savvy uncle bought 100 shares of Nvidia when it began trading in 1999 at $12 a share. Between splits and a soaring price, that $1,200 investment would be worth more than $9 million today. If he left it all to you, you could sell the shares owing little or no tax because gains are calculated from the day he died, not the day he bought it.

Melissa Phillip/Houston Chronicle via AP

Benjamin Trujillo, a partner with the wealth advisory firm Moneta, based in St. Louis, Missouri, says it all seems "like a magic trick." And it's completely legal.

"Wealth transfer looks like smoke and mirrors," Trujillo says. "Assets like stocks can quietly grow for decades and, when they're inherited, the tax bill often disappears."

Lawmakers have sometimes proposed limits on the "step-up" rule but at least for now, it remains, making it one of the biggest not-so-secret weapons in the arsenals of those looking to create generational wealth. If stocks aren't your forte, "step-up" applies to other types of investments too, including artwork, real estate and collectibles.

Keep up to date on beneficiaries

Ever get a prompt on one of your accounts asking you to name a beneficiary? It's more than a confusing (or annoying) nudge from your brokerage. Estate planners say it is one of the simplest ways to ease the transfer of assets to loved ones after you die.

Regulations vary from place to place, but many banks and brokerages allow you to name a beneficiary to whom the funds will be transferred to upon your death.

"One of the easiest ways to transfer assets hassle-free," says Allison Harrison, an attorney in Columbus, Ohio, who focuses on estate planning.

Beneficiary designations generally override wills, so it's important to make sure yours are up to date to avoid the mess of having, say, an ex-spouse end up with everything you saved.

All of this requires planning, but experts say investing a little time in mapping out your estate is one of the moves that separates the rich from the less well-off.

"Wealthy families plan," says Fry. "They don't leave assets and decisions unprotected."

Coffee

to the National Coffee Association. For many, it is such an indispensable part of their routine, the soaring price has led to nothing more than grumbling.

The coffee association says its surveys show coffee consumption is broadly holding steady despite price hikes. But, squeezed by the cost of everything from rent to beef, others are shaking up their habit.

Sharon Cooksey, 55, of Greensboro, North Carolina, was visiting her local Starbucks most weekday mornings for a caramel latte until scaling back last year. First, she switched to brewing Starbucks at home. Then, she discovered Lavazza coffee was about 40% cheaper and switched to it.

"I can buy a bag of coffee for $6?" she said to herself. "It was like I had just discovered another world. The multiverse opened up to me in the coffee aisle of Publix."

She has noticed her home-brewed costs tick upward, too, but it's nothing compared to her café habit. A bag of beans that lasts weeks costs her about the same as one latte.

Cooksey misses the social aspect of visiting the café, where baristas greeted her by name. But she's been surprised to find she actually prefers the way her homemade coffees taste.

"I'll be damned if it didn't taste so good," she says.

Growing up, Donelson watched enviously as her mother made a daily coffee jaunt (also to McDonald's, also 10 sugars and five creams), and she duplicated the habit. She went from college to the Air Force to a government job as a data and artificial intelligence strategist, but through it all, coffee was there.

She noticed the growing expense of her routine, but kept it up until a government shutdown halted her paychecks last fall and she needed to trim her spending. Looking for a morning substitute, she landed on a Republic of Tea blend with a healthy squeeze of honey.

"Twenty cents a cup compared to $7 or $8 a cup," she says. "The math just makes sense."

Bayer Agrees to $7.25 billion Proposed Settlement Over Thousands of Roundup Cancer Lawsuits

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Agrochemical maker Bayer and attorneys for cancer patients announced a proposed $7.25 billion settlement Tuesday to resolve thousands of U.S. lawsuits alleging the company failed to warn people that its popular weedkiller Roundup could cause cancer.

The proposed settlement comes as the U.S. Supreme Court is preparing to hear arguments in April on Bayer's assertion that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's approval of Roundup without a cancer warning should invalidate claims filed in state courts. That case would not be affected by the proposed settlement.

But the settlement would eliminate some of the risk from an eventual Supreme Court ruling. Patients would be assured of receiving settlement money even if the Supreme Court rules in Bayer's favor. And Bayer would be protected from potentially larger costs if the high court rules against it.

Germany-based Bayer, which acquired Roundup maker Monsanto in 2018, disputes the assertion that Roundup's key ingredient, glyphosate, can cause non-Hodgkin lymphoma. But the company has warned that mounting legal costs are threatening its ability to continue selling the product in U.S. agricultural markets.

"Litigation uncertainly has plagued the company for years, and this settlement gives the company a road to closure," Bayer CEO Bill Anderson said Tuesday.

Containers of Roundup are displayed on a store shelf in San Francisco on Feb. 24, 2019.

The proposed settlement was filed in St. Louis Circuit Court in Missouri, home to Bayer's North America crop science division and the state where many of the lawsuits have been brought. The settlement still needs the court's approval.

Settlement payouts to the sick would vary

About 200,000 Roundup-related claims have been made against Bayer. That includes more than 125,000 plaintiffs who sued since 2015, according to the settlement documents. Few cases have gone to jurors, with 13 verdicts for Bayer and 11 for plaintiffs, including a $2.1 billion award by a Georgia jury last year. Others already have been resolved through separate settlements, including two recent ones that would take care of about 77,000 claims, the court documents said.

The newly proposed nationwide settlement is designed to address most of the remaining lawsuits, as well as any additional cases brought in the coming years by people who were exposed to Roundup before Tuesday. If too many plaintiffs opt out of the proposed settlement, Bayer said it reserves the right to cancel it. But Bayer did not specify how many opt-outs would have to occur.

The deal calls for Bayer to make annual payments into a special fund for up to 21 years, totaling as much as $7.25 billion. The amount of money paid out to individuals would vary depending on how they used Roundup, how old they were when diagnosed and the severity of their non-Hodgkin lymphoma.

An agricultural, industrial or turf worker exposed at length to Roundup would receive an average of $165,000 if they were diagnosed with an aggressive form of the illness while younger than age 60, according to the proposed settlement. Meanwhile, a residential Roundup user diagnosed between the ages of 60-77 with a less aggressive form of the illness would receive an average of $20,000. And those diagnosed at age 78 or older would get an average of $10,000.

"No settlement can erase a diagnosis, but this agreement is designed to ensure that both today's and tomorrow's patients have access to meaningful compensation," said attorney Christopher Seeger, who would represent current claimants under the settlement.

Whether that compensation seems meaningful to patients remains to be seen. Attorney Matt Clement, who represents about 280 Roundup plaintiffs, said he was surprised by the proposed settlement and expects a lot of his clients will opt out.

The proposed payouts "are exceedingly too small," Clement said.

Bayer gets Trump's backing in court

Because of lawsuits, Bayer already has stopped using glyphosate in Roundup sold in the U.S. residential lawn and garden market. But glyphosate remains in agricultural products. It is designed to be used with genetically modified seeds that can resist the weedkiller's deadly effect, thus allowing farmers to produce more while conserving the soil by tilling it less.

Though some studies associate glyphosate with cancer, the EPA has said it is not likely to be carcinogenic to humans when used as directed. The federally approved label for Roundup includes no warning of cancer.

Bayer contends that federal pesticide laws preempt states from adopting additional labeling for products and thus prohibit failure-to-warn lawsuits brought under state laws. Bayer is making that argument to the Supreme Court in an appeal of a Missouri case that awarded $1.25 million to a man who developed non-Hodgkin lymphoma after spraying Roundup on a community garden in St. Louis.

President Donald Trump's administration has weighed in on Bayer's behalf, reversing the position of former President Joe Biden's administration and putting it at odds with some supporters of the Make America Healthy Again agenda who oppose giving the company the legal immunity it seeks.

The company simultaneously has been lobbying state legislatures to shield pesticide manufacturers from state failure-to-warn lawsuits when their products follow federal labeling requirements. North Dakota became the first state to enact such a law last April. Georgia became the second state to do so in May.

Street Address or other common designation of real property: 976 RANDALL RANCH ROAD
CORONA, CALIFORNIA 92881
A.P.N.: 116-290-026 The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address or other common designation, if any, shown above. If no street address or other common designation is shown, directions to the location of the property may be obtained by sending a written request to the beneficiary within 10 days of the date of first publication of this Notice of Sale.
NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. All checks payable to Prestige Default Services, LLC.

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (949) 776-4697 or visit this Internet Website https://prestigepostandpub.com, using the file number assigned to this case 24-11266. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.
NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (949) 776-4697, or visit this internet website https://prestigepostandpub.com, using the file number assigned to this case 24-11266 to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF Frank Felix
Case No. PRRI2600222
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Frank Felix.
A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Roy C. Aparicio in the Superior Court of California, County of Riverside.
THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Roy C. Aparicio be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A HEARING on the petition will be held on 3/13/2026 at 8:30am in Department 8 located at 4050 Main St, Riverside, CA 92501.
IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.
Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.
YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

NOTICE OF HEARING ON RESOLUTION OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CORONA DECLARING INTENTION TO ANNEX TERRITORY TO COMMUNITY FACILITIES DISTRICT NO. 2016-3 (MAINTENANCE SERVICES) OF THE CITY OF CORONA (ANNEXATION NO. 45)

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on January 21, 2026, the City Council of the City of Corona adopted Resolution No. 2026-004 declaring the intention of the City Council to annex territory identified as Assessor's Parcel Number 119-190-002, 119-190-003, 119-190-011 to Community Facilities District No. 2016-3 (Maintenance Services) of the City of Corona, County of Riverside, State of California ("CFD 2016-3"), and fixing the time and place of a public hearing thereon for 6:00 p.m. on March 4, 2026 in the Council Chambers of the City Council, 400 South Vicentia, Corona, California, at which time the City Council will hear the testimony of all interested persons for or against the annexation of said territory to CFD 2016-3 or the levying of special taxes within such territory to pay the costs of providing certain services which are necessary to meet increased demands placed upon the City as a result of the development of said real property.

The text of Resolution No. 2026-004, including exhibits thereto, is on file with the City Clerk of the City of Corona located at 400 South Vicentia Avenue, Corona, California and reference is made thereto for the particular provisions thereof. The text of Resolution No. 2026-004 is summarized as follows:

1. The City Council declared its intention to conduct proceedings for the annexation to CFD 2016-3 of the territory described in Exhibit "A" to Resolution No. 2026-004. The territory proposed to be annexed to CFD 2016-3 is also shown and described on the map thereof entitled "Annexation Map No. 45, Community Facilities District No. 2016-3 (Maintenance Services) of the City of Corona, County of Riverside, State of California," which is on file with the City Clerk.

2. The types of public services to be provided within CFD 2016-3 are as follows:

(a) The annual costs of maintaining, servicing, cleaning, repairing and/or replacing landscaped areas (may include reserves for replacement) in public street rightofway, public landscaping, public open spaces and other similar landscaped areas officially dedicated for public use, including, but not limited to, maintenance and lighting of parks, parkways, streets, roads and open space, maintenance and operation of water quality improvements and storm drainage systems, and public street sweeping, within and in the area of CFD 2016-3, as well as the costs associated with the determination of the amount of and the levy and collection of special taxes which are levied to provide such services and costs otherwise incurred in order to carry out the authorized purposes of CFD 2016-3 (the "Special Tax A Services"); and

(b) The cost of any services permitted under the MelloRoos Community Facilities Act of 1982 including, without limitation, those services authorized to be funded by CFD No. 2016-3 as set forth in the documents adopted by the City Council at the time the CFD was formed to be provided by the City in the event the Administrator makes a determination that a Property Owners' Association fails to adequately provide such services, as well as the costs associated with the determination of the amount of and the levy and collection of special taxes which are levied to provide such services and costs otherwise incurred in order to carry out the authorized purposes of CFD 2016-3 (the "Special Tax B (Contingent) Services").

3. A special tax sufficient to finance the Special Tax A Services and a special tax sufficient to finance the Special Tax B (Contingent) Services (together, the "Special Taxes"), secured by the recordation of a continuing lien against all taxable or nonexempt property in CFD No. 2016-3, shall be annually levied within CFD No. 2016-3. All parcels of taxable property in the territory of CFD No. 2016-3 shall be subject to the annual levy of Special Taxes. The rate and method of apportionment of special taxes to be levied on parcels of taxable property to finance the Special Tax A Services and the Special Tax B (Contingent) Services shall be as set forth in Exhibit "B" to Resolution No. 2026-004. The Special Taxes require the approval of twothirds of the qualified electors of CFD 2016-3 at a special election called for that purpose by the City, with each voter having one vote for each taxable acre, or portion of a taxable acre, owned.

4. The officers of the City who are responsible for providing the Special Tax A Services and the Special Tax B (Contingent) Services are directed to, at or before the time of said hearing, file or cause to be filed a report with the City Council containing a brief description of the services by type and an estimate of the cost of providing those services and the incidental expenses to be incurred in connection therewith. Such report shall be made a part of the record of the public hearing.

5. The voting procedure with respect to the annexation of territory into CFD 2016-3 and the imposition of the Special Taxes shall be by mailed or personally delivered ballot election.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that at the time and place of said hearing, all persons interested for or against the annexation of said territory to CFD 2016-3 or the levying of special taxes within such territory to pay the costs of providing certain services within the territory proposed to be annexed to CFD 2016-3 will be heard. At the hearing, protests against the proposals described in Resolution No. 2026-004 may be made by any interested person. Any protests pertaining to the regularity or sufficiency of the proceedings shall be in writing and shall clearly set forth the irregularities or defects to which objection is made. All written protests shall be filed with the City Clerk prior to the time fixed for the hearing. The City Council may waive any irregularities in the form or content of any written protests and at the hearing may correct minor defects in the proceedings. Written protests may be withdrawn in writing at any time before the conclusion of the hearing.

If the owners of onehalf or more of the area of land in the territory included in CFD 2016-3, or if the owners of onehalf or more of the area of land in the territory proposed to be annexed to CFD 2016-3 file written protests against the proposed annexation of such territory to CFD 2016-3, and protests are not withdrawn so as to reduce the protest to less than a majority, no further proceedings shall be undertaken for a period of one year from the date of decision of the City Council on the issues discussed at the hearing.

The hearing may be continued from time to time, but shall be completed within 30 days. At the conclusion of the hearing, the City Council may abandon the proceedings or may, after passing upon all protests, submit the question of levying the special tax within the area proposed to be annexed to CFD 2016-3 to the qualified electors of the area proposed to be annexed.

DATED: February 11, 2026

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF:
JOSEPH LEON YAGER, JR. AKA JOSEPH L. YAGER, JR.
CASE NO. PRRI2600355
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL or estate, or both of JOSEPH LEON YAGER, JR. AKA JOSEPH L. YAGER, JR..
A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by JANINE L. GASS in the Superior Court of California, County of RIVERSIDE.
THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that JANINE L. GASS be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 03/13/26 at 8:30AM in Dept. 11 located at 4050 MAIN STREET, RIVERSIDE, CA 92501
IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.
YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

A spectacular sunset framed last Thursday's Sage Hill at Norco girls soccer playoff game.

Walnut's Jeremiah Vasquez (12) launches the contested buzzer-beating three-pointer to defeat Corona 71 – 70 in the second round of the CIF playoffs.

Norco's Toni Backus (15) has the header bounce away while Sage Hill's Sydney Patel (9) defends. The Lightning defeated the Cougars 4 – 0 in the first round of the CIF playoffs.

Corona's Rooney Rodriguez (10) gets upended in the penalty box by Canyon of Anaheim's Aidan Moss (bottom) while goalie Colin Bean (left) looks on. The top-ranked D1 Comanches and Panthers battled to a scoreless tie in regulation. Canyon scored the game-winner to advance, eight minutes into overtime. Panther Coach Michael Sutherland said that during the post-game handshake, he heard the Canyon players telling his guys that, ""it was the toughest game Canyon had played all season."

Corona goalie Chris Salazar and five Panther defenders collapsed in anguish following Canyon's game-winning goal, the game's only score, eight minutes into OT.
