Before the Light of Day Corona Began a Solemn Reflection of 9/11

Twenty-five years after one of the darkest days in American history, area residents gathered in the pre-dawn hour to begin an extended reflection on the horror of that day, while remembering the nearly three thousand victims who perished.

Beginning at 5 am, the first of the names were read aloud continuously, only pausing for 25 seconds four times, to observe the moment of impact of each of the four airliners that 19 terrorists commandeered, turning them into lethal weapons that shook the entire world.

On Tuesday, September 8, volunteers began placing commemorative placards and flags for each of the victims. The victims were from 90 additional countries, and they were honored with their national flags.

At 5:46 am, 8:46 am Eastern Daylight Time, silence, in memory of American Airlines Flight 11, a Boeing 767 struck the World Trade Center North Tower in Manhattan. Seventeen minutes later, silence, in memory of United Air Lines Flight 175, also a 767, colliding with the South Tower, confirming this was not an accident but a deliberate attack.

Thirty-three minutes later, silence, in memory of American Airlines Flight 77, a Boeing 757 that crashed into the Pentagon in Arlington, VA. On board: 1956 Corona High graduates and sweethearts US Navy Rear Admiral Wilson Falor (Bud) Flagg and his wife, Darlene Ellen (Dee) Embree.

And twenty-seven minutes later, silence, in observance of United Airlines Flight 93, a Boeing 757 that crashed in Shanksville, PA, following a revolt by the passengers. This prevented the jet from reaching its intended target, believed to be the White House.

BOARD DECLINES TO ADOPT MAJORITY OF GRAND JURY'S RECOMMENDATIONS FOR JAILS

By PAUL J. YOUNG

City News Service

RIVERSIDE (CNS) - Riverside County supervisors Tuesday signed off on an Executive Office report -- and a separate one filed by Sheriff Chad Bianco -- that asserted the county will not implement some recommendations from a grand jury to improve jail operations, but will take others under consideration.

Robert Pressley Detention Center

"The action of the Board of Supervisors today does not create or reject a specific oversight model," county CEO Jeff Van Wagenen said Tuesday. "The county's position is that transparency and accountability matter."

The Executive Office and Sheriff's Department each issued responses to the 19-member civil Grand Jury's findings, published in June, that emphasized the need for a change in how the county's five detention facilities are operated, and what policy measures are overdue to ensure deficiencies that jurors believe contributed to fatalities in previous years are resolved.

"An alarming number of in-custody deaths, combined with questions about internal investigative practices and the absence of independent oversight, has raised ongoing concerns about safety, transparency and accountability of Riverside County jail operations," the grand jury said in its 26-page report. "Failure to implement independent oversight and custodial reforms exposes the county to significant civil liability, particularly in cases involving in-custody deaths."

Jurors determined through their own comprehensive investigation that the county would benefit from an inspector general's office to monitor and report on correctional operations, or a civilian oversight board empowered to conduct independent investigations and make recommendations to the board -- all of which is authorized, but not mandated, legislatively.

The Executive Office said the recommendation for an independent body "requires further analysis." Officials further touted the formation in July of an ad-hoc committee to scrutinize jail policies and practices, saying the panel will likely achieve some of the results that the grand jury advocated.

The sheriff's report replied that the proposal "will not be implemented because the recommendation is not warranted."

Jurors also supported creation of a "five-year strategic plan for jail operations that includes measurable benchmarks, data transparency goals (and) compliance auditing procedures." The sheriff's department called the idea a "blatant disregard for current operating procedures and shows the complete bias of this supposed (grand jury) investigation to develop the report."

The Executive Office's response was tepid, saying that while a long- range plan might be appropriate, the ad-hoc committee would likely have a better answer on how to go about establishing operational objectives when it returns with findings for the board in January.

Costco Raises Price for Kirkland Motor Oil, Sets Purchase Limit

By MICHELLE CHAPMAN AP Business Writer

Costco has raised the price of motor oil sold under its exclusive private-label brand as well as limited how much of its customers can buy weekly as oil prices climb yet again.

Americans looking to try to save some money by purchasing motor oil to do their own oil changes may consider this yet another blow to their wallets, as they are already contending with high grocery prices and inflation worries.

Costco's Kirkland Signature full-synthetic motor oil 5-quart two pack now costs around $58, well above the approximately $30 it had been selling for just last year. Costco is also only allowing customers to purchase two boxes a week.

The wholesale club operator is also limiting purchases of Mobil 1's full-synthetic motor oil 1-quart six pack, which sells for about $44, to five per membership.

Costco did not immediately reply to a request for comment.

Today's synthetic motor oil is heavily dependent on Group III base oils, which are mostly made from refining crude oil. It's estimated that the United States imports more than 40% of these oils from the Middle East, which has been dealing with disruptions to oil supplies since the start of the Iran war earlier this year.

The price for a barrel of Brent crude went above $109 on Monday morning as fighting in the Middle East keeps squeezing the global flow of oil.

An important Saudi oil pipeline will mostly be out of service for weeks following an attack last week, two regional officials told The Associated Press. The pipeline offered a way for Saudi Arabia to shift exports to the Red Sea and avoid the Persian Gulf's Strait of Hormuz, where Iranian attacks have stifled the

American Incomes Finally Top Pre-Pandemic Levels, Fighting Against Inflation All the Way

By CHRISTOPHER RUGABER AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. household income finally topped pre- pandemic levels last year, a stark sign of how the past five years of rising prices have limited Americans' earnings and purchasing power.

Median U.S. household income rose a healthy 2.6% in 2025 from the previous year, after adjusting for inflation, to $87,460, the Census Bureau said Tuesday. That is a record high, topping 2019 household income of $85,320. The median is the level at which half of households had higher earnings and half had less.

The figures show that even after taking into account higher prices, the typical household now earns more than it did before the pandemic. But it's a small gain over a six-year period, which helps explain the generally sour mood Americans have had about the economy since COVID-19 struck in early 2020. Concerns about affordability have taken a leading role in the fast-approaching midterm elections.

Household income has risen 2.5% since 2019, according to Census data. Yet over the previous six-year period, from 2013 to 2019, a period of very low inflation and declining unemployment, it jumped 19%.

The Census report also showed that women's paychecks rose 3.2% last year, while men's declined slightly. The solid gain for women narrowed the gender wage gap, though it remains large, with women earning nearly 84 cents for every dollar earned by men, up from less than 81 cents in 2024.

The Census report also showed that income inequality in the U.S. remained high last year, even as Americans at most levels saw their inflation-adjusted incomes grow.

Americans at the top 10% of incomes reported growth of 1.7% last year to $261,300, the report said, while the poorest one-tenth reported a slight decline to just over $20,000. As a result, the top one-tenth earn a bit more

Jail Reforms

The Executive Office and Bianco jointly rejected jurors' recommendation for dissolving the Sheriff's Advisory Committee, which has been around since the prior decade, because SAC "has not demonstrated measurable advisory output" and has never published meeting minutes, "formal findings or written recommendations" accessible to the public, according to the jury.

It highlighted the National Association for Civilian Oversight of Law Enforcement's components for achieving effective watchdog processes, recommending that NACOLE's best practices be implemented.

The Executive Office answered that adoption of NACOLE's standards is "not warranted or reasonable." While officials acknowledged protocols might be "useful" at times, they don't necessarily justify a new "operational framework," officials said. The sheriff's report went further, saying NACOLE does not "have any influence, control or ability to direct operations within the constitutionally formed office of the sheriff."

The Executive Office was non-committal on jurors' recommendation for hiring an "independent correctional health and custodial operations expert" to audit jail intake operations and procedures, imparting that the proposal might be worth considering. The sheriff's department dismissed the recommendation entirely, insisting the grand jury's effort was "a predetermined attempt to force or intimidate the board and the sheriff to comply with the demands of activists."

Jurors' recommendation for a quarterly online "dashboard" where the public can view data on in-custody deaths, use-of-force incidents, suicide attempts and medical emergencies was not opposed by the Executive Office, and the sheriff signaled acceptance of the proposal, saying it "will be implemented in the future."

Citing "systemic deficiencies" in jail operations, the grand jury pointed to instances where the county had been successfully sued, with multimillion-dollar payouts to families of inmates who died in custody. The county ranks in the top three statewide for correctional system fatalities that occurred over the previous decade, according to published reports. The year 2022 was particularly bad, with around 20 documented deaths in county lockups.

The sheriff's report countered that during that year, 110 inmates were resuscitated by deputies or medical personnel after they had ingested deadly drugs, while 96 suicide attempts were "thwarted," and correctional staff "intercepted drugs on 438 occasions," potentially savings hundreds more lives.

None of the supervisors offered individual responses to the grand jury, Executive Office or sheriff's reports.

Newsom Signs Law to Let These Californians Get out of Jury Duty — for Good

BY LYNN LA, CalMatters

Starting Jan. 1, 2028, Californians ages 80 and older can opt-out of jury service permanently due to a medical condition, without needing a note from a health care provider.

The change comes after Gov. Gavin Newsom signed Assembly Bill 1359 on Monday, which enables seniors to request a permanent exemption by attesting that they have an impairment that renders them incapable of performing jury service. Further medical documentation will not be required. Seniors who still want to serve on a jury can still do so.

Assemblymember Patrick Ahrens, a Cupertino Democrat, said he introduced the bill after a constituent — Dianne McKenna, a former Santa Clara County supervisor — relayed to Ahrens the difficulties she faced helping her elderly husband get an exemption from jury service.

"Seniors are great jurists that can and will continue to serve if they're willing and able to," said Ahrens in an email to CalMatters. "But if they cannot, they will no longer have to jump through hoops to permanently opt out."

Unlike some other states including Florida and Texas, California doesn't have a blanket age of exemption for jury service. It's 70 in Florida and 75 in Texas.

Californians 70 years and older can be excused due to a medical impairment without a doctor's note, but they still must inform the local jury's office that they're unable to serve with a written excuse. But under current law, this is a one-time exemption and residents must repeat this process each time they're selected for service.

Proponents of the measure argue that repeatedly seeking exemption can put significant stress on older individuals — particularly those with mobility issues and chronic health conditions, or those who don't have regular access to a computer or internet. A third of adults over 80 will have difficulties staying home without assistance, and one in five will experience self-care limitations, according to a 2025 report by the Public Policy Institute of California.

The measure would be especially beneficial for people living with Alzheimer's disease and do not have a caretaker who can assist them, said Andrew Mendoza, the director of state affairs for the Alzheimer's Association, during a June hearing.

"This bill can assist vulnerable populations avoid what would otherwise be a stressful process to obtain documents and explain their condition as a disability during a time of great circumstantial change," he said.

New California Law Sets First-in-Nation Standards for Smoke Damage in Homes

BY LEVI SUMAGAYSAY, CalMatters

California will set first-in-the-nation standards for smoke-damage testing and cleanup after the governor on Tuesday signed a package of bills to improve wildfire recovery.

Almost two years after the deadly Los Angeles County fires, many survivors have yet to return to homes that did not burn down but may not be habitable because of smoke damage. They have complained that the delays are due in part to arguments with their insurance companies over who should pay for testing and cleanup. The state Insurance Department estimates that more than 13,000 smoke-damage claims came out of the January 2025 fires.

"These new protections will make insurer obligations clearer and give homeowners more financial flexibility when they need it most," Gov. Gavin Newsom said as he signed the bills in Altadena at a meeting with Eaton Fire survivors. They take effect Jan. 1.

Assembly Bill 1642, authored by Assemblymember John Harabedian, a Democrat representing Pasadena, directs the Department of Toxic Substances Control to create standards for lead and asbestos testing, repair and removal by the end of 2028. It will have to establish similar standards for other toxic materials and contaminants by the end of 2029. Until the new standards are created, existing federal and state standards around lead and asbestos exposure will apply.

AB 1795 creates the legal presumption that smoke damage in a fire zone came from the fire, and requires insurance companies to pay for testing and remediation based on the impending standards.

"For homeowners who have already lost so much in a fire, the last thing a family should have to do is fight for a clear answer about whether it is safe to return home," said Assemblymember Mike Gipson, a Carson Democrat and author of AB 1795, in a statement.

The insurance department, fire survivors and Los Angeles County have filed lawsuits or other legal action against State Farm and the last-resort FAIR Plan over their handling of smoke-damage claims. Last week, the county launched an investigation into Farmers over similar issues.

Other related bills by Harabedian became law after the governor signed them Tuesday, including AB 1842, which creates a statewide mortgage forbearance program for homeowners whose homes are deemed uninhabitable after a major disaster. Under the law, mortgage providers would be prohibited from charging penalties or late fees while homeowners pause payments.

Also Harabedian's is AB 1847, which extends mortgage forbearance to 24 months for survivors of the Los Angeles County fires, and extends the latest possible deadline for a borrower's request for forbearance to Jan. 7, 2029.

than 13 times the poorest households, up from 12.7 times in 2024. The record was 13.5 in 2021.

A household is defined by Census as a family unit or an individual living alone or living with people who aren't relatives.

The agency includes all sources of cash income, including wages, investment income, and payments from government programs such as Social Security and unemployment insurance. It doesn't include non-cash benefits, such as food aid — formerly known as food stamps — or Medicaid.

By demographic group, Asians reported the highest median incomes, at $126,300, a 1.6% increase from 2024. White households saw their incomes rise 2.9% to $96,710 while Hispanic households reported a 1.1% rise to $73,260. Black households saw the biggest increase, of 4.8%, to $59,980.

movement of oil tankers.

Brent has jumped from less than $72 in early July as doubts rise that the United States and Iran can come to an agreement that would allow oil tankers to freely exit the Persian Gulf through the strait again.

The rise in oil prices has helped send the average cost of a gallon of regular gasoline across the country to nearly $4.32 from $4.08 a month ago and $3.18 a year ago, according to AAA.

Meanwhile, diesel prices in the U.S. hit yet another record on Friday, soaring past $6 a gallon on average. On Monday, prices were still climbing, with diesel at $6.23 a gallon on average, according to AAA. A week ago, the average was $5.90 a gallon.

Prices at the pump for diesel and regular gasoline closely follow that of crude oil.

With oil prices continuing to rise due to ongoing tension in the Middle East, oil companies stand to profit more from turning refining crude oil into diesel or gasoline than motor oil. There's considerably more demand for diesel and gasoline worldwide than there is for motor oil, and the daily volume is high. So oil companies are likely to put more of their effort into diesel and gasoline and make less motor oil.

It remains to be seen if other motor oil retailers like Walmart, Amazon and AutoZone will boost their prices or set purchase limits. Walmart, Amazon and AutoZone did not immediately respond to requests for comment.

From a Pediatrician: Why Flu Vaccination Matters for Children This Season

By DR. BRADLEY JACOBY, chief of pediatrics, Kaiser Permanente Riverside County

With children in classrooms and day care, and families preparing for a busy fall and winter season, pediatricians are encouraging parents to make flu vaccination a priority. Influenza (the flu) can spread quickly in schools, child care settings and households, and young children remain at increased risk for serious illness and hospitalization.

Children are particularly vulnerable to serious complications from the flu, making vaccination a critical step families can take to protect their health. The flu vaccine is recommended for everyone age 6 months and older, and it has been shown to reduce the risk of severe flu illness in children.

Reasons for cautious optimism

The Food and Drug Administration has updated all three virus components of the upcoming 2026-27 flu vaccine to better reflect the strains expected to circulate, including changes prompted by viruses that spread widely last season. In addition, evidence cited by the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) indicates that flu vaccination among children does the following:

- It reduces the risk of flu-related death in children and teens by about 80%.
- It prevents thousands of hospitalizations among children each season.

Children are especially vulnerable due to several factors:

The last flu season was severe for children

- The AAP described the 2025-26 season as another high-severity season for children.
- Approximately 190 pediatric deaths were reported, and pediatric hospitalization rates were among the highest seen in many years.

Vaccination rates remain relatively low

- Only about 49% of children aged 6 months to 17 years were vaccinated during the 2025-26 season, according to AAP.
- Historically, roughly 85% of children who die from flu are unvaccinated, making vaccination coverage an important determinant of risk.

Getty via Kaiser Permanente

Young children face a higher risk of serious complications

- The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) identifies children younger than 5, especially those younger than 2, as being at an elevated risk for serious complications.
- Children with asthma, diabetes, heart disease, immune suppression and other chronic conditions are also more vulnerable.

What complications concern pediatric experts?

While many children experience a routine flu illness, complications can lead to:

- Pneumonia
- Dehydration
- Worsening asthma or other chronic diseases
- Encephalopathy (brain dysfunction)
- Death in some cases, according to the CDC

The Bottom Line

The best way to protect children and all family members from serious flu illness is to get vaccinated early. The CDC recommends getting the flu vaccination by the end of October at the latest. The vaccination is recommended for everyone age 6 months and older. Families can visit their doctor or a local pharmacy to get a flu shot. Kaiser Permanente members can visit a local medical office building or make an appointment at KP.org/flu. There is also FluMist, a nasal-spray flu vaccine, which is available for eligible patients; healthy people ages 2 through 49 can receive the nasal-spray vaccine, although certain medical conditions can make someone ineligible.

Talk to your doctor or pediatrician about which flu vaccine is right for you and your family and make plans to get vaccinated soon. When we protect ourselves, we also help protect the loved ones around us who are most vulnerable to serious illness.

REPORT: Changes Made in Public Guardian's Office After Grand Jury Report

RIVERSIDE (CNS) - The Board of Supervisors Tuesday signed off on a report confirming that scheduling changes, training adjustments and other modifications have been, or will be, implemented at the Riverside County Office of the Public Guardian after deficiencies were identified.

The Executive Office's response to the 19-member civil Grand Jury's report, "How Well Do They Protect Riverside County's Most Vulnerable?" was approved as part of the board's policy agenda Tuesday.

Although the county chief executive officer and individual supervisors refrained from direct comment on the EO's rejoinder, one member of the public -- Moreno Valley resident Roy Bleckhert -- did have something to say.

"Part of this stuff is that we're not proactive and not ahead of the curve, despite records amounts of money," Bleckhert said. "We can do reports and consultants, but it doesn't get fixed; it comes back worse. The problem is not that there isn't enough oversight or transparency. It's that we don't put into practice oversight, transparency or accountability. We ignore it, and we look at our phones."

In June, jurors released an 18-page narrative that identified multiple areas where the Office of the Public Guardian, or OPG, needs improvement.

The office has two branches, the Probate Section and the Lanterman- Petris-Short Act Section. The latter focuses exclusively on overseeing the affairs of "gravely disabled" individuals, most of whom have mental disorders and no relatives to take care of them. The Probate Section manages conservatorships for seniors who are cognitively impaired and who also don't have relatives on whom they can depend.

Jurors spoke with about a dozen OPG deputies to ascertain what needs to be addressed to optimize efficiencies.

Despite management's descriptions of improvements that had taken place since a former federal judge had reviewed operations and recommended changes in 2022, the employees pointed to ongoing problems, including excessively high case loads, according to the grand jury.

In the Probate Section, reports indicated that a single deputy at times was handling the fiduciary and habitation needs of 38 to 51 clients, while LPS deputies were each averaging 88 to 118 clients. The judge said the maximum ratio should be 1 to 30.

The specific number of individuals under a county conservatorship wasn't provided.

Jurors said one problem was a mandate that all OPG employees remain office-bound for supplemental training, meetings, data entries and related housekeeping on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Because deputies are on 9/80 work schedules, meaning they're off every other Friday, the two-day-a-week requirement to be at their desks hindered their ability to go out and check on clients.

Under state law, they're required to make at least one conservatee visit every 90 days.

Jurors strongly recommended that the county do away with the in-house mandate on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

"The county recognizes the Grand Jury's concern that deputy schedules must provide sufficient flexibility to complete required in-person conservatee visits," the Executive Office stated. "Field time is essential for effective conservatorship work ... Deputy Public Guardians are now required to remain in the office one day per week, rather than two days per week, to complete mandatory office work."

Jurors also recommended that the OPG improve how "in-person" client visits are logged, to ensure deputies are visiting within a three-month span. The Executive Office agreed, saying "centralized monitoring and supervisory follow-up" should be improved. Officials noted the Panoramic Software Corp. platform had led

In an Age of Instant Answers, Educators Say There's a Case for Letting Kids Struggle a Little

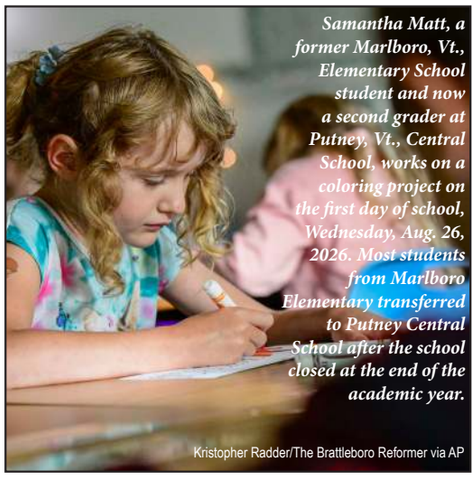
By CHEYANNE MUMPHREY AP Education Writer

When children forget their lunch, can't solve a math problem or don't know how to get somewhere, the instinct for parents can be to step in immediately. But sometimes, the problem is an opportunity.

Developmental experts and educators say children need chances to struggle with everyday problems because figuring them out is a skill that has to be practiced.

The challenge for parents is knowing when to help and when to step back. There is a difference between helping children through difficult situations and removing the problem before they have a chance to try. At a time when an answer or AI-generated help can be seconds away, giving children room to figure things out for themselves can be hard to do.

What independence looks like depends on a child's age, abilities, and circumstances, but experts say it means learning to plan, make decisions, solve problems, recover from mistakes and figure out what to do next. Here's how experts say parents can give children more opportunities to practice those skills.



Samantha Matt, a former Marlboro, Vt., Elementary School student and now a second grader at Putney, Vt., Central School, works on a coloring project on the first day of school, Wednesday, Aug. 26, 2026. Most students from Marlboro Elementary transferred to Putney Central School after the school closed at the end of the academic year.

Pause before stepping in Children have unprecedented access to information, while technology has given parents more ways to monitor their kids' lives. They can track their children's locations, see grades in real time, and email teachers immediately. That means parents can intervene before their children have had a chance to realize there is a problem, let alone figure out a solution.

There is a downside to that convenience, said Dr. Dana Suskind, a professor of surgery and pediatrics at the University of Chicago and author of the book "Human Raised."

"I think the most important thing we can give children is not the answer, but the experience of figuring it out," Suskind said. When parents swoop in, she said, children are deprived of opportunities to practice skills like pausing before acting, remembering what worked previously, and trying new solutions.

If children rarely have to struggle, it can lead to severe anxiety when they have to figure out something on their own, said Dr. Stephanie Carlson, director of the Institute of Child Development at the University of Minnesota.

When there is a real danger, parents should step in, but when stakes are lower, they can slow down and talk through the problem. That could mean asking children open-ended questions: What do you think? What could happen? How could you solve this? What else could you try?

Allow children to experience boredom

Allowing children to be bored, frustrated, impatient or nervous can support their learning and better prepare them for adulthood, experts say.

Boredom can facilitate creativity and play while helping children build confidence and resilience, said Kiryn Hoffman, CEO of the National Children's Museum in Washington, D.C.

In "10 Rules for Raising Kids in a High-Tech World," psychologist Dr. Jean Twenge writes that children and teens have fewer opportunities than previous generations to spend time with friends, get around on their own and make decisions outside the watchful gaze of adults. By their senior year of high school, fewer teens have a driver's license, go on dates or work paid jobs than in previous generations, she writes.

Give children a little more to handle

Parents don't have to manufacture situations for children to navigate. Routine tasks naturally provide children with opportunities to practice agency, experts say.

Nicole Knoth, a mother of two teen girls in Flagstaff, Arizona, started giving her daughters small decisions to make when they were young. At age 5, for example, she would give them $5 at a store and have them calculate what they could afford, including tax and discounts. Now, as teens, they are grocery shopping and her oldest is managing her own credit card.

Jemia Cunningham-Elder, a mother of four daughters in Chicago, learned there isn't a set age for when children should be expected to do something on their own. She looks at what each child can handle, then gives them a little more freedom and watches what happens.

If they manage it, they get more independence. If they struggle, she considers whether it was a useful learning ex-

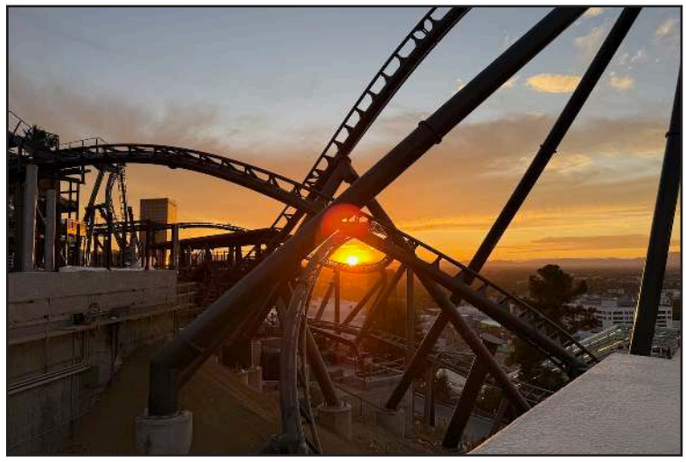
'FAST & FURIOUS' Coaster Opens at Universal Studios Hollywood

UNIVERSAL CITY (CNS) - Universal Studios Hollywood's "Fast & Furious: Hollywood Drift" roller coaster opened Wednesday, weeks after complaints from nearby residents about screams from riders prompted the park to plan additional sound barriers.

The outdoor roller coaster, based on Universal Pictures' "Fast & Furious" film franchise, reaches speeds of up to 72 mph, making it the fastest coaster in the Universal portfolio. Its vehicles rotate 360 degrees to simulate the sensation of cars drifting during a race, park officials said.



"Fast & Furious: Hollywood Drift' is officially open, and we are so excited to be able to put guests in the driver's seat of one of the most celebrated film franchises in history," Scott Strobl, executive vice president and general manager of Universal Studios Hollywood, said. "The debut of this first-of-its-kind roller coaster is a literal game changer for Universal Studios Hollywood, and we look forward to sharing this thrilling experience with fans of the Fast Saga and our guests visiting from around the world."

But enthusiasm for the coaster -- which features four launches along 4,100 feet of track, reaching forces of up to 3.6 Gs -- was met fast and furiously by nearby residents who said they had heard enough.

Universal City Neighbors, a grassroots coalition of residents living near the park, gathered on Toluca Estates Drive in Toluca Lake as the coaster opened Wednesday to hear the riders' screams firsthand and call attention to what members say has become a persistent disruption in surrounding neighborhoods.

"We just want the screams to stop coming into our neighborhood," Judith Angel, a grandmother who has lived in Toluca Lake for more than 30 years, said.

"My two-year-old granddaughter got out of the car at my house and was afraid when she heard the screams. You know, screams aren't the same type of sound as the hum of a freeway. As humans, we're trained to be on alert and respond to screams. It's really, really difficult living with this noise over the last 4 months during the coaster testing. Now that the ride has officially opened, it's even louder and more consistent."

The group said it is seeking additional noise mitigation and communication from the park about efforts to address the problem.

The Greater Toluca Lake Neighborhood Council and the Studio City Neighborhood Council have separately adopted resolutions calling on Universal to address the noise and pursue mitigation measures, according to the coalition.

Universal has scheduled a Sept. 30 community meeting with residents to discuss sound-mitigation plans, the group said.

The ride is located on the park's Upper Lot and travels over and under portions of the multilevel Starway escalator. Universal said the coaster was constructed with sound-reduction technology.

Noise from the attraction became an issue during testing earlier this summer after the park began allowing passengers aboard, with residents in nearby Toluca Lake complaining about persistent screams from riders.

I had never eaten ratatouille before, let alone cooked it. But it has always captured my imagination. I have seen bits and pieces of the Pixar movie of the same name and have also seen this dish in other media as well. Why does a dish made up of seemingly normal vegetables have so much hype around it?

I have zucchini, onions, and tomatoes growing in my garden. And that got me to thinking about ratatouille again. So, I decided to see what it is all about and make it myself. Making up a new recipe as I went.

Oh boy, I'm sure glad I made this. Let's cut up some vegetables and make ratatouille!

Ingredients

- 1 large zucchini
- 1 eggplant
- 2 yellow onion
- 3 roma tomatoes
- 8 garlic cloves
- 3 tbsp olive oil
- 1 sprig or 1.5 tbsp dried rosemary
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 2 tbsp butter

To Make

Make caramelized onion for the base. To do so, cut 1 whole onion into very thin half-moons. In a medium skillet, melt the butter on low heat. Add the onions and salt. Cook on low, stirring occasionally until onions are very soft and jammy. Usually, they take on a brownish hue. About an hour. While the onion is caramelizing, cut the zucchini, eggplant, 1 yellow onion, and roma tomatoes into ¼ inch slices. Salt lightly.

Preheat the oven to 300°. On a baking dish, place the caramelized onion on the bottom and spread evenly. Sprinkle about half the rosemary over the onions. Layer the zucchini, eggplant, onion, and tomato by alternating in a repeating pattern. You can layer them on their side or have them upright like in my photo. (I cut my slices in half to create half-moons to accommodate my shallow pan.) Fill the whole pan. Wedge the garlic cloves into the veggies. Sprinkle the remaining rosemary, salt and pepper to taste. Cover with parchment paper and bake for 3 hours. Pull out of the over, let cool for 10 minutes and eat!

I served my ratatouille over white rice and garnished with fresh rosemary and garlic chives.

Betty Liu's SESAME-CUMIN CHICKEN is Double-Fried for Flavor and Crispiness

By BETTY LIU Voracious

Deep-fry (zhà), a well-known technique where the food is fried in a pool of hot oil, which both cooks it and creates a crispy exterior, is used throughout the "Frying" chapter in my cookbook "The Chinese Way."

When deep-frying, I use a thermometer, aiming for 350°F to 375°F. Another way to gauge the temperature is to stick a wooden chopstick in the oil, and if tiny bubbles float rapidly up around it the heat is adequate.

Deep-frying often involves a double-fry technique. That method has been traditionally used in Shanghai for shrimp and fish steaks, and it works especially well for chicken. An initial fry at a low temperature seals in the juices and sets the exterior, creating a light coating. Then a second fry at a higher temperature cooks the chicken through and amps up the crispiness.

The coating here is seasoned with cumin and gets the texture from crushed sesame seeds.

SESAME-CUMIN CHICKEN

Serves 4

Ingredients

2 scallions, roughly chopped

3 large garlic cloves, peeled and smashed

2 teaspoons grated ginger

1 teaspoon kosher salt

¼ teaspoon ground white pepper

2 tablespoons Shaoxing wine

1 tablespoon light soy sauce

1 ½ to 2 pounds boneless, skinless chicken thighs

¼ cup white sesame seeds

2 tablespoons sugar

¾ cup potato starch

1 teaspoon ground cumin

CUMIN SALT:

½ teaspoon kosher salt

½ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

½ teaspoon ground cumin

¼ teaspoon smoked paprika

LEMON MAYONNAISE:

¼ cup Kewpie mayonnaise

Juice of 1 lemon

1 garlic clove, minced

Neutral oil, for frying

Directions

Marinate the chicken: Cut the chicken into 1½ to 2-inch chunks. Combine the scallions, garlic, ginger, salt, white pepper, Shaoxing wine, sesame oil and soy sauce in a medium bowl. Add the chicken and toss to coat. Cover and marinate in the fridge for at least 4 hours or overnight.

An hour before cooking, remove the chicken from the fridge and bring to room temperature.

Meanwhile, make the breading: Crush the sesame seeds with the sugar with a mortar and pestle, or pulse in a food processor, until a coarse powder forms. Mix the sesame seed mixture with the potato starch and cumin in a shallow bowl. Set aside.

Make the cumin salt: Stir together and set aside.

Make the lemon mayo, if using: Combine the mayo, lemon juice and garlic in a small bowl. Refrigerate until you're ready to serve.

Fry the chicken: Heat 2 inches neutral oil to 335°F in a large, deep, heavy pot. Set a wire cooling rack inside a baking sheet, and line a large plate with a few layers of paper towels. Prepare another one for after frying.

Working in batches, remove chicken from marinade, letting any liquid drip off each piece, and place the chicken in breading mix. Flip to coat thoroughly in the breading, then set on first prepared wire rack.

When oil reaches 335°F, gently coat the chicken with more breading mixture, then carefully slip it into the hot oil. Fry for 90 seconds or until the chicken is pale golden and slightly puffy, then transfer to the second wire rack using a slotted spoon.

Repeat the breading and frying process with the remaining chicken, allowing the oil to reach 335°F between batches and using a slotted spoon to remove any loose breading from the oil.

Once the initial frying is complete, increase the oil temperature to 350°F.

Fry each batch again for 3 to 5 minutes, gently turning occasionally, until the chicken is evenly golden brown and has an internal temperature of at least 165°F. Place the fried chicken on the paper towel-lined plate to drain, then sprinkle with the cumin salt.

Serve with the lemon mayonnaise if desired.

"PRACTICAL MAGIC 2"

By BOB GARVER

Apparently I blinked and the 1998 chick flick "Practical Magic" developed a huge cult following. The film, about witch sisters Sally (Sandra Bullock) and Gillian (Nicole Kidman) Owens, came out 28 years ago, made only $40 million at the domestic box office, scored a mere 31% on Rotten Tomatoes, and I can't recall ever hearing anyone speak affectionately about it. And yet not only was there a call for a sequel in 2026, the resulting film was the first to win a weekend over "Spider-Man: Brand New Day" (okay, only "after" a six-week run of dominance, but still…). What kind of spell has this franchise cast on the moviegoing public?

The Owens sisters, along with their kooky aunts Franny (Stockard Channing) and Jet (Dianne Wiest), come from a long line of witches that love extending their bloodline, but hate… love. Or at least romantic love, as a jilted long-ago relative cursed the women of the family to lose their male partners. As a result, Sally's children, Kylie (Joey King) and Antonia (Maisie Williams), have lost both their father and the stepfather that Sally found for them at the end of the first movie. Sally wiped their memories as children so they would never know the temptations of practicing magic, but the curse still applies. Now Kylie has a boyfriend, Gideon (Xolo Maridueña), and Sally can't figure out a tactful way to tell her daughter that, for his own good, she can't love him.

Sally waits too long and tragedy befalls Gideon, though there's a sliver of hope that he can be saved. Kylie finally learns of her heritage and the curse, falls out with her mother, and storms off to England, home of her ancestors, to see if she can break the curse with the help of local escort Tom (Solly McLeod). Sally tries to track her down, also travelling to England and taking Gillian along, ostensibly because she needs help but really because the movie needs Bullock and Kidman together so they can squabble for comic effect. They enlist the help of a professor (Lee Pace) who may or may not have ulterior motives and who may or may not be a potential third husband for Sally if that pesky curse can be broken for real.

The movie is, in its best moments, agreeable and little more. I'm not saying that the appeal of Bullock and Kidman playing witches who share the ins and outs of sisterhood is completely lost on me. The two have good chemistry and some genuinely funny and touching moments. And when they're sharing the screen with wily veterans Channing and Wiest, those genuine moments are amplified. I get why people like the low-stakes scenes of these four just playing off one another, with magic thrown in for flavor. The problem is that these movies can't "just" be about these women enjoying happy hour.

Like its predecessor, "Practical Magic 2" falters when it tries to deliver more than the laughs and tears that people expect. In other words, it doesn't work as a thriller. The first movie really lost its balance once murder entered the picture, and this one similarly topples with all the mystery surrounding the curse and an evil scheme to burn one of the family at the stake. There's so much lore and so many secrets that have to be uncovered that the film is over two hours long. I was chanting, "Just end already" like an incantation by the time the credits rolled. By taking up so much time, this movie offers up too much of even the stuff that does work, and goes far overboard with the stuff that doesn't.

Grade: C

"Practical Magic 2" is rated PG-13 for some violence, intense thematic elements and sensuality. Its running time is 130 minutes.

'Practical Magic 2' Beats Out 'Spider-Man' with $30M Opening

Eds: ADDS worldwide grosses for "Spider-Man: Brand New Day," "The Odyssey," plus overall 3-day weekend, YTD totals.

LOS ANGELES (CNS) - "Practical Magic 2" knocked "Spider-Man: Brand New Day" out of the top spot at the box office, opening with $30 million this weekend at North American theaters, according to industry estimates released Sunday.

The sequel to 1998's fantasy/romance stars Sandra Bullock and Nicole Kidman, who reprise their roles from the original, along with newer cast members Joey King, Lee Pace and Maisie Williams.

"Spider-Man: Brand New Day," which had led the box office for each of its first six weeks of release, was in second place with $8.4 million, Rentrak reported. It has taken in more than $2.45 billion worldwide, making it the third highest-grossing film of all time behind 2009's "Avatar" and 2019's "Avengers: Endgame."

"The Odyssey" was third with $7.4 million Friday through Sunday in its ninth weekend in theaters. It has grossed over $1.68 billion worldwide.

The action film "Runner" opened with $6.6 million for fourth place, followed by "Coyote vs. Acme" with $6.2 million in its third weekend.

Rounding out the top 10 releases were "Buddy" ($3.5 million), "Insidious: Out of the Further" ($3.35 million), "Hope" ($3.31 million), "The Uprising" ($3.2 million) and "By Any Means" ($2.5 million).

This weekend's overall three-day box office haul was estimated at $83.4 million. The year-to-date total is $7.496 billion -- up 19.2% from the figure at this time last year, according to Rentrak.

perience or a sign they weren't ready yet.

That approach also recognizes something important: independence doesn't mean doing everything alone.

Children who realize they don't know how to solve a math problem and ask the teacher for help are practicing independence, too. So are children who forget their assignments and figure out how to find the information rather than having parents call their teachers.

Know when to step in

The same approach doesn't apply to every situation. Parents have to weigh safety, maturity and circumstances.

Caroline Chirichella, a 37-year-old mother who lives in the Campania region of southern Italy, had been trying to give her 8-year-old daughter, Lucia, more freedom. But she hesitated to let her spend time outside with friends on her own because of concerns about traffic in the street.

There are other situations where the stakes are lower.

Chirichella said she and her husband eventually stopped calling other parents or teachers when Lucia forgot to write down an assignment. She told her daughter: "Your homework is your responsibility."

Adding Mini Clover to Grass Seed Creates a Green, Hardy, Drought-Tolerant Lawn

By JESSICA DAMIANO Associated Press

Would you like a lawn that grows well in full sun or part shade, requires little or no watering, chokes out weeds, never needs fertilizer and stays green all summer, even when exposed to dog urine?

Have I got a lawn for you! Simply mixing clover seeds with your chosen grass seeds will do all of that while keeping pests in check and attracting beneficial insects to pollinate your other plants — things ordinary turfgrasses never do.

If children or allergies have you concerned about attracting bees, mow your hybrid lawn when the clover is in flower to lessen the threat.

Caring for Kentucky bluegrass, tall and fine fescues, St. Augustine, Bermudagrass, zoysia and their grassy cousins risks damaging the ecosystem while providing little benefit — aside, perhaps, from the satisfaction of those who find beauty in a flawless emerald-green carpet outside their door.

The good news is that green is green, and when mowed, your clover will fit right in.

Here are more good reasons for a grass-clover hybrid

Planting straight clover would require removing all the existing grass to allow its seeds to fully contact the soil. And on its own, clover doesn't stand up well to foot traffic. The plant is also short-lived, so it would require reseeding every few years. In addition, straight clover wouldn't fill in as densely as a grass-clover combination lawn would.

When mixed with grass seed, however, clover becomes a rock star, reseeding well enough that you never have to replenish it. And, as it grows, it outcompetes most common weeds.

What kind of clover should you buy?

When shopping for seeds, look for "micro" or "mini" clover, which grows to about 4 inches (10 centimeters) tall after some initial repeated low-mowing to "train" it to remain short and more lawn-like. When mixed with grass, mini clover crowds out weeds more effectively than Dutch white clover does.

Packaged clover seeds are often precoated with inoculant; if they aren't, buy a packet of inoculant separately and apply it to the seeds by following the label directions. Clover, like other legumes, is "nitrogen-fixing," which means it relies on certain bacterial strains to colonize its roots and supply nitrogen; the inoculant feeds the seeds without nourishing weed seeds that may be lurking in the soil.

Inoculant loses its effectiveness over time, so wait until you are ready to sow coated seeds before you buy them, and check dates to ensure they were packaged within the past six months.

How do you switch to a clover-hybrid lawn?

Remove thatch, if present, from your existing lawn before incorporating clover seeds.

Mix seeds with sand or loose soil before spreading to facilitate an even application, then gently rake it in.

Water very lightly every day (unless it rains) to keep the soil slightly moist until the clover fills in.

If planting in part-shade conditions, sow twice as many seeds as indicated for the area.

In temperate areas, sow the seeds in fall. In areas with colder winters, sow them around the beginning of April. Clover isn't recommended for the Deep South because it doesn't withstand extreme heat well.

to efficiencies in the OPG's functions.

Jurors further emphasized the advantage of digitizing training materials so that deputies could access programs via laptop computers or similar devices to get updates and refreshers more freely, without putting pressure on supervisors to set aside specific times.

"The county agrees that appropriate portions of deputy training can be digitized to improve consistency, access and efficiency," the Executive Office responded.

You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled lime and date for the sale of this property, you may call 714-730-2727 or visit this internet website www.ndscorp.com/sales, using the file number assigned to this case 26-30200-BACA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the internet website. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT*: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are a "representative of all eligible tenant buyers" you may be able to purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. Case No. PRRI2602312
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of FRANCINE MUNOZ
A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Dana Roybal in the Superior Court of California, County of RIVERSIDE.
THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Dana Roybal be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A HEARING on the petition will be held on Oct. 9, 2026 at 8:30 AM in Dept. No. 8 located at 4050 Main St., Riverside, CA 92501.
IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.
Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.
YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

CITY OF CORONA
OFFICE OF THE CITY CLERK
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the City Council will conduct a public hearing in the City Council Chambers at 400 S. Vicentia Ave., on Wednesday, October 7, 2026, at 6:00 p.m. or thereafter upon the following:

ZTA2026-0003: An amendment to Title 17, Section 17.98.030, of the Corona Municipal Code to grant one extension up to 180 days within a calendar year for Special Use Permits approved for temporary placement of structures or trailers associated with permitted improvements to existing businesses.

California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) – Per Section 15061(b)(3) of the State Guidelines for Implementing the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) and Section 3.06 of the City's Local CEQA Guidelines, a Notice of Exemption has been prepared for this project. Section 15061(b)(3), commonly referred to as the common sense exemption, provides that CEQA applies only to projects that have the potential for causing a significant effect on the environment. Where it can be seen with certainty that there is no possibility that the activity in question may have a significant effect on the environment, the activity is not subject to CEQA. The proposed amendment involves minor text changes to the Zoning Code that would not in and of themselves result in a physical change to the environment, and accordingly there is no possibility that the amendment will have a significant effect on the environment and therefore qualifies for exemption.

The public is invited to attend the City Council meeting and comment on the application described above. Due to time constraints and the number of persons wishing to give oral testimony, each speaker will be limited to three minutes. You may wish to make your comments in writing and submit them to the City Clerk for inclusion into the public record. If you challenge any portion of these projects in court, you may be limited to raising only those issues you or someone else raised at the public hearing described in this notice, or in written correspondence delivered at, or prior to the public hearing. Any person unable to attend the public hearing may submit written comments to the City Clerk, 400 S. Vicentia Ave., Corona, CA 92882. CITY OF CORONA
NOTICE INVITING BIDS

The City of Corona, Public Works Department, (City) will receive sealed bids for the Citywide Storm Drain Catch Basin Filters Phase II, ST-2023-06, NIB No. 27-012SB, through the City's PlanetBids electronic bidding system, no later than October 14, 2026, 2:00 P.M. Bids submitted after this date and time will not be accepted by the electronic bidding system. At said time, it will be bidder's responsibility to log into the PlanetBids system for the City of Corona to view the apparent low bidder for the project. Bids shall be valid for 90 calendar days after the close of bid. Bids must be submitted on the City's Bid Forms

Prospective Bidders must visit the City's Bids and Requests for Proposals Vendor Portal at https://www.planetbids.com/portal/portal.cfm?CompanyID=39497 and register as a new vendor in PlanetBids in order to download Contract Documents, including Instructions to Bidders, plans and specifications, and to receive addenda and notifications when issued. Bidders will also submit electronic bids through this website. The City will also make the Contract Documents available for review at one or more plan rooms.

All electronic Bids must be accompanied by a bid security in an amount not less than 10% of the submitted Total Bid Price pursuant to Section 12 Bid Guarantee (Bond) of the Instructions to Bidders.

It shall be Bidder's responsibility to allow sufficient time to complete and submit its bid including all required documentation referred to in the Contract Documents prior to the stated deadline. Electronic bid submission cannot be completed unless bidder properly uploads all required documents. Each bid shall be accompanied by the security referred to in the Contract Documents, the NonCollusion Declaration, the list of proposed subcontractors, and all additional documentation required by the Instructions to Bidders.

Bidders are solely responsible for the "on time" submission of their electronic Bid. The City will only consider Bids from "contractors" that have transmitted successfully and have been issued a confirmation number with a time stamp from PlanetBids indicating that the Bid was submitted successfully. Transmission of Bids by any other means will not be accepted. Bidders shall be solely responsible for informing themselves with respect to the proper utilization of the online bid management system, for ensuring the capability of their computer system to upload the required documents, and for the stability of their internet service. Failure of the Bidder to successfully submit an electronic Bid shall be the Bidder's sole risk and no relief will be given for late and/or improperly submitted Bids. Bidders experiencing technical difficulties with the bid submission process may contact PlanetBids Support at 818-992-1771. If you continue to have difficulty, call City of Corona Purchasing Department at 951-736-2274. Neither the City, nor PlanetBids, make any guarantee as to the timely availability of assistance, or assurance that any given problem will be resolved by the bid submission date and/or time.

The successful bidder will be required to furnish the City with a Performance Bond equal to 100% of the successful bid, and a Payment (Labor and Materials) Bond equal to 100% of the successful bid, prior to execution of the Contract. All bonds are to be secured from a surety that meets all of the State of California bonding requirements, as defined in Code of Civil Procedure Section 995.120, and is admitted by the State of California.

Pursuant to Public Contract Code Section 22300, the successful bidder may substitute certain securities for funds withheld by City to ensure performance under the Contract. The Work is subject to the payment of not less than prevailing wages pursuant to Chapter 1 (beginning at Section 1720 et seq.) of Part 7 of Division 2 of the California Labor Code, as well as Title 8, Section 16000 et seq. of the California Code of Regulations ("Prevailing Wage Laws"). The Director of the Department of Industrial Relations ("DIR") has determined the general prevailing rate of per diem wages in the locality in which this work is to be performed for each craft or type of worker needed to execute the Contract which will be awarded to the successful bidder, copies of which are on file and will be made available to any interested party upon request at Owners office or online at http://www.dir.ca.gov/dlsr. A copy of these rates shall be posted by the successful bidder at the Project site.

Pursuant to Labor Code sections 1725.5 and 1771.1, all contractors and subcontractors that wish to bid on, be listed in a bid proposal, or enter into a contract to perform public work must be registered with the Department of Industrial Relations. No bid will be accepted nor any contract entered into without proof of the contractor's and subcontractors' current registration with the Department of Industrial Relations to perform public work. If awarded a Contract, the Bidder and its subcontractors, of any tier, shall maintain active registration with the Department of Industrial Relations for the duration of the Project. The DIR registration number for each contractor and subcontractor must be identified on the bid proposal - failure to identify this number could result in the bid being rejected as nonresponsive. The City will report all necessary contracts to the DIR as required by the Prevailing Wage Laws.

The successful bidder and their subcontractor(s) shall comply with all applicable Prevailing Wage Laws, which include, but are not limited to the payment of not less than the required prevailing rates to all workers employed by them in the execution of the Contract, the employment of apprentices, the hours of labor, the payment of overtime, and the debarment of contractors and subcontractors. The successful bidder and all subcontractor(s) under him shall also be responsible for any and all violations and fines imposed on them pursuant to the Prevailing Wage Laws.

Before the Contract is awarded, the successful bidder shall be a licensed contractor pursuant to the Business and Professions Code and shall be licensed in the following appropriate classification(s) of contractor's license(s), for the work bid upon, and must maintain the license(s) throughout the duration of the Contract: A valid Class "A" General Engineering Contractor license.

The successful bidder must fully comply with all applicable laws, rules and regulations in furnishing or using equipment and/or providing services, including, but not limited to, emissions limits and permitting requirements imposed by the South Coast Air Quality Management District (SCAQMD) and/or California Air Resources Board (CARB). Although the SCAQMD and CARB limits and requirements are broader, the successful bidder shall specifically be aware of their application to "portable equipment", which definition is considered by SCAQMD and CARB to include any item of equipment with a fuelpowered engine. The successful bidder will be required to indemnify City against any fines or penalties imposed by SCAQMD, CARB, or any other governmental or regulatory agency for violations of applicable laws, rules and/or regulations by the successful bidder, its subcontractors, or others for whom the successful bidder is responsible under its indemnity obligations.

CARB implemented amendments to the InUse OffRoad DieselFueled Fleets Regulations ("Regulation") which are effective on January 1, 2024 and apply broadly to all selfpropelled off road diesel vehicles 25 horsepower or greater and other forms of equipment used in California. A copy of the Regulation is available at: https://ww2.arb.ca.gov/sites/default/files/barcu/regact/2022/offroaddiesel/appa-1.pdf. Bidders are required to comply with all CARB and Regulation requirements, including, without limitation, all applicable sections of the Regulation, as codified in Title 13 of the California Code of Regulations section 2449 et seq. throughout the duration of the Project. Bidders must provide, with their Bid, copies of Bidder's and all listed subcontractors' most recent, valid Certificate of Reported Compliance ("CRC") issued by CARB. Failure to provide valid CRCs as required herein may render the Bid nonresponsive.

Award of Contract: The City shall award the Contract for the Project to the lowest responsive, responsible bidder as determined from the base bid alone by the City. The City reserves the right to reject any or all bids or to waive any irregularities or informalities in any bids or in the bidding process.
