California's congressional districts

The state has 52 seats in the House of Representatives

Supreme Court Won't Block California's New Congressional Map

LOS ANGELES (CNS) - The U.S. Supreme Court Wednesday rejected an emergency bid by a group of California Republicans to block the state from using the new voter-approved congressional map during the November midterms.

In a one-sentence order without any dissents, the Supreme Court declined the emergency application.

The decision from the high court paves the way for California to use the newly drawn lines for most of its 52 House districts in this year's congressional elections.

The map was created in response to a mid-decade redistricting by Texas Republicans last year, which aimed to help Republicans maintain their control of the lower chamber in Congress. California officials sought to draw a map that would see Democrats pick up five seats in the House, which would offset the five seats that were crafted in Texas to favor Republicans.

COUNTY AND FORMER FOSTER CONTRACTOR SETTLE WITH ABUSED TURPIN CHILDREN

RIVERSIDE (CNS) - Six siblings whose natural parents abused and imprisoned them for years, only to be situated with a foster family that also engaged in abusive treatment, now have "enough money" to ideally ensure they're secure for the rest of their lives following resolution of the lawsuit they filed against Riverside County and a child placement agency, one of their attorneys said Wednesday.

The Turpin children, most of whom are now emancipated adults, sued the Department of Public Social Services, ChildNet Inc. and others in 2023 based on their experiences in a Perris foster home into which they were placed after they'd escaped the oft-described "house of horrors" created by their father and mother, David Turpin, 63, and Louise Turpin, 56.

When a child is suspended from school emotions run high. A parent may have to miss work, the child is idle at home, and the school is out funding from the state. It is a lose, lose, lose.

Unless you have a program in place to address the underlying issue that resulted in the suspension, one might expect the issue and suspensions to arise again.

Volunteers needed to Advocate for Foster Children

Riverside County expects 6,000 children to spend time in foster care this year. And they need your help.

Across the county foster children have been removed from their homes due to abuse, neglect, or abandonment.

Voices for Children, the nonprofit organisation that provides volunteer Court Appointed Special Advocates (CASAs), has put out an urgent call for volunteers in the Menifee and Perris areas.

CASA volunteers advocate for youth in school, court, and medical settings, ensuring the child's needs are met. Volunteers spend at least 10 hours a month with their foster child, going on fun adventures, attending meetings, and filling out court documents.

"If you are looking for a way to make an immediate impact and give back to your community right now, I cannot think of a better way to do so than by becoming a CASA volunteer," said Voices for Children's President & CEO Jessica Muñoz, Esq., MFS. "Our incredible volunteers have made a major difference for local children right here in our community, just by showing up as they are, listening to them, and being a consistent adult presence in their lives."

Turpin

At the end of last year, the county and ChildNet reached a pretrial settlement with the plaintiffs to end further litigation. The complete terms of the agreement, which was publicly announced Wednesday, haven't been disclosed.

"They have received enough money that it should assist them for the rest of their lives," Elan Zektser, an attorney for two of the siblings, told City News Service.

He fretted that full disclosure of the sum would only lead to complications for his clients, as well as the four represented by fellow litigator Roger Booth. In a joint statement Wednesday, the men expressed hope that the case and its consequences would pave the way for lasting reforms.

"Representing the Turpin children and young adults has been one of the greatest privileges of our careers," the lawyers said. "Their courage, resilience and unwavering commitment to protecting other foster children is extraordinary. We are beyond proud of them for standing up, speaking out and forcing real change in a system that failed them."

Three of the older siblings, James Turpin, 24, Julissa Turpin, 19, and Jolinda Turpin, 20, spoke with ABC's Diane Sawyer in an exclusive interview that aired Tuesday night, recalling what they endured and how it affected them.

"I genuinely just wanted to be safe," Julissa said about her life after leaving her parents' home. She was 11 years old when placed in the residence of Marcelino Camacho Olguin, 66, his wife, Rosa Armida Olguin, 61, and their adult daughter, Lennys Giovanna Olguin, 40.

"I didn't know very much, but I did know that (something) didn't feel right," the young woman said. "And I did feel very uncomfortable. And it made me feel so unsafe in the home."

She specifically referenced Marcelino Olguin making lewd comments.

In 2024, Zektser characterized the abuse inflicted by the Olguins as "greater" than what the victims often experienced from their parents, saying "they were treated worse than animals."

The attorneys' consolidated civil complaint recited the following alleged acts: "making the plaintiffs sit by themselves, sometimes outside, for many hours at a time"; "making plaintiffs recount, in detail, the horrors that they had experienced while living with their parents"; "verbally abusing plaintiffs, cursing at them, and telling them that they were worthless and should commit suicide"; "forcing them to eat until they began to vomit," then compelling them "to eat their own vomit."

The Olguins reached plea deals with the Riverside County District Attorney's Office in 2024. Marcelino Olguin admitted seven counts of lewd acts on a minor and one count of false imprisonment. He received seven years in state prison and was ordered to register as a sex offender for life.

His wife admitted three counts of child abuse and one count each of witness intimidation, grand theft and false imprisonment. She received four years' felony probation.

The couple's daughter admitted three counts of child abuse and one count each of false imprisonment and witness intimidation. She received four years' probation.

Coordinating with placement agency ChildNet, county Child Protective Services put the six victims with the Olguins despite complaints of prior abuse in their home, according to the plaintiffs. When CPS agents were alerted to the endangerment of the Turpin children, they failed to act, according to Zektser and Booth.

Zektser said instead of removing the victims from the house to take statements from them in late 2020 and early 2021, agents interviewed the minors in front of the defendants, causing them to clam up. It was only when the sheriff's detective who had investigated the victims' parents, Tom Salisbury, learned of the abuse by the Olguins that the siblings were interviewed by "professionals," culminating in a criminal investigation and charges, the attorneys said.

They were hopeful reforms to the foster care system proposed by former federal Judge Stephen Larson and the county Grand Jury in 2022 would net consistently positive results.

"The county and Child Protective Services have agreed to increase their social worker staffing levels by more than 25%, revise policies and procedures governing where children are interviewed by CPS, and contact law enforcement earlier and more frequently when concerns of abuse arise," the attorneys said jointly.

ChildNet, with which the county no longer contracts, released a statement in response to the Sawyer interview stating, "The allegations raised in this matter came after the children were no longer in ChildNet's care and after the foster care case had been closed. ChildNet had no oversight authority following the adoption and has no knowledge of what occurred thereafter. It is essential to be clear: There were no substantiated concerns during the period when ChildNet was responsible for the children's care."

The placement agency said it elected to settle rather than battle in court because examination before a jury "would have required deep personal testimony and would have risked re-traumatizing young people who had already endured more than any child should."

The county Executive Office was expected to release a statement Wednesday afternoon.

Only one of the 13 Turpin children, a girl who's now 10, remains in foster care. The others are in college, working and trying to find paths forward, according to Zektser and Booth.

In 2022, Riverside County District Attorney Mike Hestrin and the Larson report acknowledged the Turpin siblings had received some funds from hundreds of thousands of dollars in charitable donations made after they were liberated from their parents' Muir Woods Road home.

David Turpin and Louise Turpin were each sentenced to 25 years to life in state prison in 2019 after admitting child cruelty charges.

They kept some of their children restrained most times of the day, forced them to subsist on peanut butter sandwiches and burritos, made them sleep up to 20 hours daily, and allowed them to shower only once a year. There was also physical abuse that resulted in injuries.

The conditions were revealed after Jordan Turpin, now in her mid-20s, crawled out of a bedroom window with a semi-operable mobile phone and called 911, fearing for the welfare of one of her sisters, then caged.

When a student is suspended from a Val Verde USD school, a conversation is started. The district sends a trained staff member to the students home to meet with the family. The goal is not to shame, but to understand.

How does the student feel at school? Are conditions at school - vaping, bullying, stress - leading to conditions for suspensions?

If the student needs additional support, the district arranges for services ranging from anger management to substance abuse counseling.

Working with families creates a holistic approach to helping the student get back on track to success. Parents are respected, children are supported, and the district benefits from less suspension going forward.

And it is working. The district has seen its suspension rate drop below the state and county average.

For its efforts, the Val Verde Unified School District was recognized with a Golden Bell Award for this innovative program.

The Golden Bell award is run by the California School Board Association and recognizes outstanding programs at districts throughout the state.

RCOE Recognizes Menifee Educator as Administrator of the Year

MUSD

When it comes to a good education, it helps tremendously to show up. For students to show up for school. And for teachers and administrators to show up for the students.

This is easier said than done.

To execute both, you need a leader to focus efforts on both the students and the staff.

Melinda Conde, who serves as the Director of Student Success Services in the Menifee United School District, is that leader.

Conde has been named the 2026 Riverside County Administrator of the year for her work creating equitable systems that serve the most vulnerable populations. She was presented with the award by Riverside County Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Edwin Gomez, in a surprise visit.

"Ms. Conde has created and implemented a district attendance playbook by standardizing attendance teams, implementing strong processes, and early intervention across all schools in the district," Dr. Gomez, said during the visit.

In other words, she ensures all children and their families, especially those from marginalized communities, have the support they need to get students to school.

Conde has innovated systems to drive student engagement by implementing an "attendance playbook" and site based attendance teams, which has caused the school district to reduce chronic absenteeism by 40% and increase the Average Daily Attendance (ADA) by 2%. A higher ADA means more state funding for the district.

Professional Grant Writers to Continue Efforts on Behalf of County Parks

RIVERSIDE (CNS) - The Board of Supervisors Tuesday approved the Riverside County Park & Open Space District's master agreement to retain eight professional grant writing firms to submit requests seeking state and federal funds that will benefit the agency.

In a 5-0 vote without comment, the board signed off on the agency's request as part of its policy agenda Tuesday.

"Grant writing and application assistance will enhance the district's capacity to pursue competitive funding and leverage local dollars for a range of park and facility improvement projects that benefit Riverside County residents," according to a statement posted by district General Manager Kyla

Brown.

Among grant awards sought in the current fiscal year will be Proposition 4 funding from the state, officials said. The Environment, Energy & Water bond measure approved by voters in 2024 makes up to $10 billion available for numerous local projects statewide until 2028.

The firms retained under the master agreement will be part of a "shortlist" of go-to grant writers serving the county for one year, though that length of service can be extended.

The entities listed by the Park & Open Space District are: El Segundo-based California Consulting Inc., Engineering Solutions Services of Laguna Hills, Evan Brooks Associates of Pasadena, FCS International Inc. of Irvine, MNS Engineers Inc. of Riverside, NCB Inc. of Little Elm, Texas, Townsend Public Affairs of Corona and TRC Environmental Corp. of Windsor, Connecticut.

Objectives include submitting grant applications to pay for urban forestry projects, land acquisition, energy conservation technology and overhead costs tied to keeping park rangers on staff.

The county has set aside $2.4 million to pay for the grant writers' services. However, any allocation over $200,000 will require prior board authorization.

Payments will be made in arrears, after the district is invoiced for the grant writers' work.

Sanford and Son Star Demond Wilson Passes in Palm Springs at Age 79

PALM SPRINGS — Combined Sources - Demond Wilson, who found fame in the 1970s playing Lamont on "Sanford and Son" and went on to become a minister, has died in Palm Springs. He was 79.

Mark Goldman, a publicist for Wilson, confirmed to The Associated Press that he died following complications from cancer on Friday.

"A devoted father, actor, author, and minister, Demond lived a life rooted in faith, service, and compassion. Through his work on screen, his writing, and his ministry, he sought to uplift others and leave a meaningful impact on

Wilson was best known as the son of Redd Foxx's comically cantankerous Fred Sanford character in a sitcom that was among the first to feature a mostly Black cast when it began airing in 1972.

The thoughtful Lamont had to put up with his junkyard owner father's schemes, bigotry and insults.

Set in a fictional Watts junkyard, Sanford and Son Salvage, Wilson was a bemused -- at times exasperated -- presence while tolerating his widower father's antics, which included berating his son with the rejoinder "Hey, Dummy" and faking a heart attack by clutching his chest

California voters backed Proposition 50 in November, which enacted the new lines for many of the state's congressional districts through the end of the decade.

But a day after voters approved the map, Assemblyman David Tangipa, R-Fresno, the California Republican Party and a group of Republican voters -- later joined by the U.S. Department of Justice -- filed suit, arguing that the new voting boundaries were unconstitutional because they improperly used voters' race as a factor in drawing districts.

The plaintiffs urged judges to block the new district lines at least temporarily so California's original map would stay in effect for the 2026 midterms. The suit named Gov. Gavin Newsom, state Attorney General Rob Bonta and Secretary of State Shirley Weber as defendants.

Newsom applauded the Supreme Court's decision Wednesday.

"Donald Trump said he was 'entitled' to five more Congressional seats in Texas," Newsom said in a statement. "He started this redistricting war. He lost, and he'll lose again in November."

Bonta said the high court's refusal to block use of the new maps was "good news not only for Californians, but for our democracy."

"Let's remember how we got here," he said Wednesday. "President Trump told Governor Greg Abbott that Republicans were 'entitled' to five more Congressional seats, and Texas Republicans fell in line. In direct response, and for explicitly partisan reasons, Governor Gavin Newsom and our Legislature advanced Proposition 50, presented it to the voters, and Californians overwhelmingly supported it."

"With this latest win, my office has now successfully defended this critical ballot initiative on behalf of Governor Newsom and Secretary of State Weber on seven occasions -- and

Black Men in California Face Higher Risks and Higher Bills for Prostate Cancer

RIVERSIDE'S "THE WALNUT TRIBE" SHEDS LIGHT ON EARLY DETECTION

BY ANISSA DURHAM, CalMatters

James Miller Jr.'s dream of being a homeowner had finally come true, so he went to Home Depot for supplies. As he walked the aisles his phone rang. His doctor had news no one wants to hear: Miller had Stage 4 metastatic prostate cancer.

His first question: "How much time do I have?"

Maybe seven years, the doctor said. He was 57.

Miller's story isn't unique — it's an epidemic hiding in plain sight. Black men face the highest rate of prostate cancer of any racial or ethnic group in America. They're diagnosed at more advanced stages, often when treatment options narrow. They're twice as likely to die from it compared to white men. Yet in California, where Miller lives, no legislation specifically addresses prostate cancer screening or prevention.

Advocates say that's unacceptable — and it's costing Black men their lives.

Most men don't have symptoms until prostate cancer is advanced, said Dr. Brent Rose, associate professor of radiation oncology at UC San Diego.

The most effective screening tool is a prostate-specific antigen test — a simple blood draw, far more accurate than a digital rectal exam. Rose says many men avoid screening because they dread the rectal exam, but that test is no longer the standard recommendation.

The statistics are sobering:

1 in 8 Black men develop prostate cancer, compared to 1 in 12 white men. Black men are diagnosed younger, so the American Cancer Society recommends they start screening at 45 — five years earlier than everyone else.

"Why is it more common in Black men? The answer is, we don't know," Rose said. "There are two separate hypotheses. One is that it's genetic. And the other is related to social determinants of health," such as racism, poverty and disparities in health care access.

Pain crept into Miller's lower back and hips first. Then came frequent trips to the restroom. Just getting older, he thought. When he dropped 20 pounds in a few months he thought his diet was finally working. But then came chest pain.

Finally he went to the emergency room. Miller learned those were symptoms of late-stage prostate cancer. The once sturdy, get-it-done airport security screener was now riddled with cancer in his hips, lymph nodes, thigh bones, ribs and even on his skull.

"It was like a recording in my head. Oh my God, I'm gonna die," the Riverside resident said. "How did I get this? Is this karma? Did I deserve this?"

Miller admitted he left Home Depot that day, went home and got drunk. He started Googling, searching for any hope of surviving more than seven years. Depression set in. After decades of neglecting his health and grinding through stressful jobs, Miller wondered if there was more he could've done.

"Most Black men, you figure, 'I'm still breathing, I'm still walking around, I'm fine.' We're taught from when you're a little boy, you grind it out, suck it up," Miller said. "But we have the highest rates of prostate cancer."

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, between 2003 and 2022, Black men had the highest rate of localized, regional and distant prostate cancer in lymph nodes or other parts of the body.

"Black men are more likely to die from prostate cancer if they get it, on average, but not because the cancer itself is all that different," Rose said. "It's more likely that Black men tend to have more barriers to care. So getting diagnosed a little bit later or maybe not getting the optimal treatment."

Only a handful of states have legislation that removes out-of-pocket costs for prostate cancer screening. California is not one of them. But according to the California Reparations Report, African American men in the Golden State are five times more likely to die from prostate cancer than their white peers.

In 2023, Assemblymember Mike Gipson authored Assembly Bill 632, which would have prohibited health insurance plans from charging deductibles, co-pays or coinsurance for prostate cancer screening for high-risk men.

Gov. Gavin Newsom vetoed it, saying it "would result in increased costs to consumers through higher premiums."

There's not enough conversation about prostate cancer in the Black community, Miller said; he didn't realize how common it was until his diagnosis.

Miller takes daily doses of androgen deprivation therapy and every three months gets a Lupron injection. Both hormone treatments have slowed the cancer's growth.

Now 64, he's outlived the seven-year death sentence. But the side effects of these testosterone blockers include weight gain, muscle loss, fatigue and lowered libido.

"I hope there's someone out there that I can be with, who will accept me for what I am now," he said. "But it does play into your sense of manhood. What kind of man you are now versus what you were."

In 2023, Miller started The Walnut Tribe Support group, a safe space for men navigating prostate cancer. Monthly meetings give men an opportunity to release the pressure to hold their feelings and fears in. And Miller hopes to raise more awareness about early screening.

"You don't want to be like me and learn about it at the last stages. Please don't be like me," Miller said. "Learn about it early. Try to get tested early."

THE PERRIS VALLEY HISTORICAL MUSEUM HONORS THE ARCHIBECK FAMILY AS AN OFFICIAL PIONEER FAMILY FOR THE VALLEY

By Mia Rotell

Families and friends gathered around to tell stories of loved ones who've passed on and to remember the good old days — except this family's good old days played a critical part in Perris' beginning throughout the 20th century.

Last Saturday, the Archibeck family was honored at the Pioneer Family event hosted by the Perris Valley Historical Museum. The Pioneer Family event honors families on Jan. 31, a date the museum dedicated to Frederick Thomas Perris Day — the man who built the railroad in Perris in 1886.

The museum has been honoring founding families who helped build up Perris while highlighting the town's agricultural beginnings since 1984.

Water engineer Ben Archibeck and his wife, Calenderia Lopez, "Momacita," married in 1913 in Los Angeles and moved to Perris shortly thereafter. The Nuevo Water Company was in early developmental stages. The water company Ben Sr. worked for in Los Angeles, Bryon Jackson Co., transferred him out to Nuevo — just east of Lake Perris.

"While they were on their way to Perris, Calenderia said they were moving out to the end of the earth," Adrian Smith said — who compiled and presented the family history at the event.

Ben Sr. farmed alfalfa, but specialized in and supplied potatoes nationwide — which established the Archibeck family name in the farming industry. The family's potato sack adorned a giant red A and read "Packaged by B. Archibeck and Sons." That very same potato sack sits framed on a wall in the museum.

"They came out here and started farming potatoes and supported the community and supported families, and then the families continued to grow and continued to farm," Sienna Archibeck said, who married Keith Jr. and has three young sons — the newest generation of the Archibecks. "My father-in-law had a feed store. It's just grown tremendously over the last 100 years."

As time went on, the Archibeck name also included the Mottes, the Smiths, the Keyes, the Hannafins, and the Bryers. The family spans five generations — some born and buried in Perris.

"Potatoes, alfalfa, and onions were the main crops in this area — the families around here got through the Great Depression together," John and Ann Motte said. "They could all eat, and they made clothes for the children out of potato sacks." The couple recalled the community being very supportive of each other in hard times and the good ones through farming.

"SEND HELP"

By Bob Garver

Did you know that getting stranded on a deserted island has a way of shaking up social hierarchies? I suppose that was a big part of the plot for recent Best Picture Oscar nominee "Triangle of Sadness." As well as the literary classic "Lord of the Flies." And it's represented on television in everything from "Survivor" to "Lost" to "Gilligan's Island." And it was at the center of a play I did in high school called "The Admirable Crichton," where I played a rich snob who gets taken down several pegs. Director Sam Raimi is hoping you've somehow avoided all of these precursors, plus others I'm sure I'm forgetting, because only then can you find originality in "Send Help."

Rachel McAdams stars as Linda Liddle, a doormat of an employee in the strategy and planning department of a financial consulting firm. She does great work, but she doesn't have the best social skills, and her bro-y male colleagues take her work for granted while overlooking her as a person. This is especially true of her boss Bradley (Dylan O'Brien), who gives a college buddy a promotion over her and is ready to boot her from the office over the smell of her tuna-fish sandwich. But he needs her numbers skills for a conference in Bangkok, so he reluctantly lets her tag along on his private plane. Wouldn't you know it, the plane goes down and only Linda and an injured Bradley make it to a nearby island.

Linda is an adept survivalist, having read many books on the subject. She's able to build a makeshift shelter, get a fire going, and round up some food and water for the passed-out Bradley, all before he even wakes up. When he does come around, he's grateful for about ten seconds before chiding Linda for not making more of an effort to get the two of them rescued. She walks off, leaving him to the elements. He soon learns that he can't survive on his own and has to sheepishly ask her to go back to caring for him.

This establishes a pattern that continues for the rest of the movie: he'll think that the power he wields in the office also applies to the island, and she keeps easily proving him wrong. Eventually she becomes the powerful one, and she insists she's a better boss than he ever was, but... is she? Or is she destined to become the tyrant that Bradley was on the mainland? Could she even become something worse? It's hard to imagine Bradley, even at his most piggish, making some of the decisions Linda makes.

Speaking of piggishness, Raimi hopes that audiences are too distracted by select scenes of visual spectacle to notice that there's nothing original about the story. One is a battle between Linda and a supposedly-scary CGI boar. Others include the plane crash, a dream sequence, a physical altercation, and a high-tension confrontation involving a poisonous octopus and a dead rat. I'd chide Raimi for relying too much on his old crutches of extreme violence and body horror, but it's not like he was doing better with the non-gruesome elements of the movie.

Basically, I spent the entirety of "Send Help" doing that "move it along" gesture with my hand because the story was so routine. Bradley was never going to learn his lesson, Linda was only going to get worse, and rescue wouldn't come until much more blood (and possibly other innards) had been spilled. The film isn't devoid of properly-built suspense, but it's nothing that hasn't been seen in other, better cat-and-mouse horror movies ("Misery," from the late Rob Reiner, came to mind). Sometimes people like to debate which movies they wish they could have with them on a deserted island. I wouldn't want "Send Help" even if I didn't have to waste a pick on it.

Grade: C-

"Send Help" is rated R for strong/bloody violence and language. Its running time is 113 minutes.

Send Help' Opens with $20 Million to Lead Box Office

LOS ANGELES (CNS) - Director Sam Raimi's "Send Help" opened with $20 million this weekend to lead all films in North America, eking out a close victory over "Iron Lung" in an interesting battle between old and new Hollywood, according to industry estimates released Sunday.

"Send Help" is a traditional, star-driven thriller starring Rachel McAdams and Dylan O'Brien, while "Iron Lung" is based on a 2022 video game and is directed by YouTube personality Mark Fischbach in his feature directorial debut.

"Iron Lung" opened with $17.8 million, Comscore reported.

The No. 3 spot went to "Melania," director Brett Ratner's documentary about first lady Melania Trump. Its $7 million total was the best opening weekend for a documentary in years, and surpassed expectations for the Amazon MGM release, which has received considerable ridicule in media outlets hostile to President Donald Trump and bears the added baggage of Ratner's 2017 sexual assault allegations, which he denies.

"Zootopia 2" continued its impressive run, making $5.8 million in its 10th weekend in theaters for a cumulative domestic total of $408 million.

Jason Statham's action thriller "Shelter" opened in fifth place with $5.505 million.

"Avatar: Fire and Ash" was sixth with $5.5 million Friday through Sunday in its seventh week.

Rounding out the top 10 releases were "Mercy" ($4.7 million), "The Housemaid" ($3.5 million), "Marty Supreme" ($2.9 million) and "28 Years Later: The Bone Temple" ($1.6 million).

This weekend's overall three-day box office haul was estimated at $82.2 million. The year-to-date total is $660.6 million -- up 12% from the figure at this time last year, according to Comscore.

SNACK LIKE A PRO ON SUPER BOWL SUNDAY WITH PANKO-CRUSTED CHICKEN STRIPS AND GAME-CHANGING SAUCE

By
KATIE WORKMAN
Associated Press

Sometimes a chicken nugget is just a chicken nugget. Sometimes it's a crisp, panko-crusted strip of chicken breast with a sweet and tangy sauce. This is the latter.

Super Bowl Sunday is snack time at its finest. No one is looking for fancy footwork (at least not in the food realm; we do want to see that on the field). I have hosted more Super Bowl parties than I can (want to) count, and what I can tell you is that the delicate little canapes aren't going to fly off the buffet as fast as the nachos.

The best Super Bowl food lives in the same realm as the best bar food. And that includes chicken tenders.

If you tend to think of chicken strips as a guilty, kid-die-centric pleasure, give yourself permission to relax and enjoy them. They're basically fried chicken sans bone.

But these chicken strips bake on a wire rack for maximum crispiness without frying. A little olive oil in the panko makes all the difference. For a spicy kick, add Sriracha to the egg wash.

Now the sauce, simple but game-changing: Melt apricot or orange preserves, stir in Dijon mustard and fresh thyme, and dip away. It's sweet, tangy and herby, perfect for dunking each golden strip.

Bake, sauce, serve. The platter disappears fast, so consider making a double batch for a larger crowd. Easy enough for a week-night, special enough for the big game, and guaranteed to impress both kids and adults.

Crispy Chicken Strips with Apricot Mustard Dipping Sauce

Serves 4 to 6

Ingredients:

1/2 cup all-purpose flour
Kosher salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
2 large eggs
1/2 teaspoon Sriracha or other hot sauce, or to taste

1 1/2 cups Panko bread-crumbs
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 1/2 pounds boneless, skinless chicken breasts, cut crosswise into 1-inch thick strips (or use chicken tenders)
1 cup apricot or orange preserves
3 tablespoons Dijon mustard
1/2 teaspoon minced fresh thyme leaves

Directions:

1. Preheat the oven to 400°F. Place a wire cooling rack into a rimmed baking sheet.
2. Place the flour, salt and pepper in a shallow bowl. Whisk together the eggs and Sriracha in a second shallow bowl. Combine the Panko and olive oil in a third bowl.
3. Working in small batches, toss the chicken strips in the flour, shake off any excess, dip them in the egg mixture, allow extra egg to drip back into the bowl, and roll them in the panko. Shake off any excess, then place the strips at least 1 inch apart on the wire rack. (It's possible you may need to bake these in two batches.)
4. Bake until the chicken strips are golden brown and cooked through, 15 to 18 minutes.
5. While the chicken is cooking, place the preserves in a small saucepan or skillet. Heat over low heat until melted, stirring occasionally, then stir in the mustard and thyme. Transfer the sauce to a small bowl, transfer the chicken strips to a serving platter and serve hot.

BIRRIA CHICKEN WINGS

To Make

Blend the chilis and cinnamon stick in a food processor or blender until it is a powder. Dowse the chicken wings in the birria seasoning and then add the salt. Mix thoroughly so that the chicken is coated evenly. Let marinate for an hour at room temperature. Preheat the grill to as hot as you can get it. Place chicken on the grill at hottest temperature and cook for about 5 minutes before flipping. Cook for another 5 minutes. If you don't have a meat thermometer look for the juices to run clear when poking the chicken. If the juice is still pink, the chicken is not fully cooked yet. If you have a thermometer, you are looking for 165 degrees or hotter internal temperature. Let cool for 5 minutes and EAT!

The Seasoning

- 2 guajillo chilis
- 3 chili negro
- 10 morita chilis
- 1 inch cinnamon stick

The Chicken

- 6-7 chicken wings
- 1 teaspoon Lawry's Salt

CANDY HEART FLOWERS — A SPRINKLE OF VALENTINE’S DAY

By Mia Rotell

Finding Valentine’s Day decorations that aren’t tacky or way out of budget is a pain. Especially since Christmas was a few months ago — and who wants to go through all the effort in transforming the house again? Definitely not me. Candy heart flowers are a fun, colorful way to give a nod to Cupid’s big day without being over the top. Get your favorite flowers and the retro hearts from the store to make a little bit of love brighten your home.

What you need:

- A vase — can be any size
- A smaller vase — must be able to comfortably fit in the big vase.
- A bouquet — any size

- Conversation hearts — three and a half bags are used for the picture.

How to make it:

Step 1: Put the smaller vase inside the bigger vase. You should be able to comfortably stick one finger between the two vases and move it all the way around on the inside, and not have to shift the inside vase from one side to the other.

Step 2: Fill in between the two vases with conversation hearts. Gaps can form, so make sure to carefully give the vase a shimmy before continuing!

Step 3: After the conversation hearts have filled between the vases, arrange the flowers inside the smaller vase.

Step 4: Get a small cup and very carefully pour water into the inside vase, little by little. Make sure no water is on the outside of the cup — it will dissolve the candy, or make the bright red words bleed down!

Step 5: Done!

Tip: Make sure the conversation hearts cover the top of the inside vase to keep the illusion, but make sure no candy goes in the water! The hearts can be hard to work with because of how big they are. If only small vases are available, or you don’t want to deal with the hassle, substitute Red Hots for the candy hearts!

'We're Basically Pushers:' Two California Courtrooms Hear How Companies May Have Hooked Kids on Social Media

BY COLIN LECHER

The Meta researcher's tone was alarmed.

"oh my gosh yall IG is a drug," the user experience specialist allegedly wrote to a colleague, referring to the social media platform Instagram. "We're basically pushers... We are causing Reward Deficit Disorder bc people are binging on IG so much they can't feel reward anymore."

The researcher concluded that users' addiction was "biological and psychological" and that company management was keen to exploit the dynamic. "The top down directives drive it all towards making sure people keep coming back for more," the researcher added.

The conversation was included recently as part of a long-simmering lawsuit in a California-based federal court. Condensing complaints from hundreds of school districts and state attorneys general, including California's, the suit alleges that social media companies knew about risks to children and teens but pushed ahead with marketing their products to them, putting profits above kids' mental health. The suit seeks monetary damages and changes to companies' business practices.

The suit, and a similar one filed in Los Angeles Superior Court, targets Facebook, Instagram, YouTube, TikTok, and Snap. The cases are exposing embarrassing internal conversations and findings at the companies, particularly Facebook and Instagram owner Meta, further tarnishing their brands in the public eye. They are also testing a particular vector of attack against the platforms, one that targets not so much alarming content as design and marketing decisions that accelerated harms. The upshot, some believe, could be new forms of regulation, including at the federal level.

One document discussed during a hearing this week included a 2016 email from Mark Zuckerberg about Facebook's live videos feature. In the email, the Meta chief wrote, "we'll need to be very good about not notifying parents / teachers" about teens' videos.

"If we tell teens' parents about their live videos, that will probably ruin the product from the start," he wrote, according to the email.

In slides summarizing internal tech company documents, released this week as part of the litigation, an internal YouTube discussion suggested that accounts from minors in violation of YouTube policies were actively on the platform for years, producing content an average of "938 days before detection – giving them plenty of time to create content and continue putting themselves and the platform at risk."

A spokesperson for Meta didn't immediately respond to requests for comment.

A YouTube spokesperson, José Castañeda, described the slide released this week as "a cherry-picked view of a much larger safety framework" and said the company uses more than one tool to detect underage accounts, while taking action every time it finds an underage account.

In court, the companies have argued that they are making editorial decisions permitted by the First Amendment. That trial is set for June.

The state court litigation moved into jury selection this week, increasing the pressure on social media companies.

While the state and federal cases differ slightly, the core argument is the same: that social media companies deliberately designed their products to hook young people, leading to disastrous but foreseeable consequences.

"It's led to mental health issues, serious anxiety, depression, for many. For some, eating disorders, suicidality," said Previn Warren, co-lead counsel on the case in federal court. "For the schools, it's been lost control over the educational environment, inability of teachers to really control their classrooms and teach."

A federal suit

Meta and other companies have faced backlash for years over their treatment of kids on their platforms, including Facebook and Instagram. Parents, lawmakers and privacy advocates have argued that social media contributed to a mental health crisis among young people and that tech companies failed to act when health, and pointed to past instances where it has worked with parents and families with features to protect kids.

The federal case faced a key hearing this week, as the defendants argued that a judge should summarily dismiss the case. A decision on that motion is likely coming in the next few weeks, Warren said.

Social media companies, like other web-based services, receive protection from some legal claims under a part of federal law. Section 230 of the Communications Decency Act gives legal immunity to website operators for potentially illegal content on their platforms.

Mary Anne Franks, a legal scholar in First Amendment issues at George Washington University who has long studied Section 230, said rather than online content in and of itself, the recent social media cases are focusing on the design of the platforms and their marketing.

"The litigation strategy is saying it's the way that you're providing that space and you're pushing this toward individuals that are vulnerable that is really an issue here," she said. "It's your own conduct, not somebody else's."

The companies are making key decisions behind the scenes, she said, and could be held responsible for them.

"You were manipulating things," she said the plaintiffs are arguing. "You were deliberately making choices about what comes to the top or what is directly accessible or may be tempting to vulnerable users."

A California state trial begins

Meanwhile, the related state lawsuit went to jury selection this week.

that fact became clear.

Those allegations gained new scrutiny last month when a brief citing still-sealed documents in the federal suit became public.

While the suit also names TikTok, Snap, and Google as defendants, the filing includes allegations against Meta that are especially detailed.

In the more than 200-page filing, for example, the plaintiffs argue that Meta deliberately misled the public about how damaging their platforms were.

Warren pointed to claims in the brief that Meta researchers found that 55% of Facebook users had "mild" problematic use of the platform, while 3.1 percent had "severe" problems. Zuckerberg, according to the brief, pointed out that 3% of billions would still be millions of people.

But the brief claims the company published research noting only that "we estimate (as an upper bound) that 3.1% of Facebook users in the US experience problematic use."

"That's a lie," Warren said.

In response to recent interest in the suits, Meta published a blog post this month arguing that the litigation "oversimplifies" the issue of youth mental with some variation of the quip “This is the big one! I’m coming to join you, Elizabeth.”

The show was a hit for its six seasons on NBC but ended when ABC offered Foxx a variety show. Wilson was born in Valdosta, Georgia, and grew up in the Harlem section of Manhattan, according to the biography on his website. He served in the U.S. Army in Vietnam and was wounded there, and he returned to New York and acted on stage before heading to Hollywood.

A guest appearance on “All in the Family” in 1971 led to his best-known role. Norman Lear produced both shows. Wilson told AP in 2022 that he got the role over comedian Richard Pryor. “I said, ‘C’mon, you can’t put a comedian with a comedian. You’ve got to have a straight man,’” he said he told the producers.

After “Sanford and Son” ended, Wilson starred in the shorter-lived comedies “Baby I’m Back” and “The New Odd Couple.” He later appeared in four episodes of the show “Girlfriends” in the 2000s, along with a handful of movie roles.

He also appeared in a handful of movies including “The Organization” in 1971 with Sidney Poitier and 1993’s “Me and the Kid” with Danny Aiello.

Though he returned to the screen at times, he told the Los Angeles Times in 1986 that the acting life was not for him: “It wasn’t challenging. And it was emotionally exhausting because I had to make it appear that I was excited about what I was doing.”

Wilson became an ordained interdenominational minister in 1984 and quit acting to provide spiritual guidance and vocational training to former inmates with his organization, Restoration House of America, which he founded in 1994.

He is survived by his wife of more than 51 years, stewardess turned model Cicely Loise Johnston, and their six children.

Social Media

The case, which makes similar claims about personal injury caused by the social media companies, has also drawn nationwide attention, and major industry figures like Zuckerberg are expected to appear on the stand.

The personal injury case focuses on an unnamed plaintiff who claims to have had her mental health damaged by an addiction to social media.

In a last-minute development this week, TikTok and Snap reportedly reached undisclosed settlements in the case. Meta and Google are continuing as defendants.

Franks said these trials could be a tipping point in regulating how tech companies design and market their products. While the companies have faced scrutiny in the past, she said, the glare of examination at trial could be especially bright.

“There’s always been talk of it and the members of Congress have kind of said, ‘maybe we’ll regulate you,’” she said. “I think now the platforms are really getting nervous about what this is going to mean if they look really bad on the stand.”

have been made with the trustee prior to the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 800-280-2832 for information regarding the trustee's sale or visit this internet website

http://www.qualityloan.com, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the Trustee: CA-25-1019362-NJ. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the internet website. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction.
If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call 619-645-7711, or visit this internet website
http://www.qualityloan.com, using the file
number assigned to this foreclosure by the Trustee: CA-25-1019362-NJ to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. NOTICE TO PROSPECTIVE OWNEROCCUPANT: Any prospective owneroccupant as defined in Section 2924m of the California Civil Code who is the last and highest bidder at the trustee's sale shall provide the required affidavit or declaration of eligibility to the auctioneer at the trustee's sale or shall have it delivered to QUALITY LOAN SERVICE CORPORATION by 5 p.m. on the next business day following the trustee's sale at the address set forth in the below signature block. NOTICE TO PROSPECTIVE POSTSALE OVER BIDDERS: For postsale information in accordance with Section 2924m(e) of the California Civil Code, use file number CA-25-1019362-NJ and call (866) 645-7711 or login to: <http://www.qualityloan.com>. The above statutorily mandated notices to Tenant, Prospective OwnerOccupant, and Prospective PostSale Over Bidders are brief summaries of what may be required under Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. Compliance with all relevant provisions will be required. The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the property address or other common designation, if any, shown herein. If no street address or other common designation is shown, directions to the location of the property may be obtained by sending a written request to the beneficiary within 10 days of the date of first publication of this Notice of Sale. If the sale is set aside for any reason, including if the Trustee is unable to convey title, the Purchaser at the sale shall be entitled only to a return of the monies paid to the Trustee. This shall be the Purchaser's sole and exclusive remedy. The purchaser shall have no further recourse against the Trustor, the Trustee, the Beneficiary, the Beneficiary's Agent, or the Beneficiary's Attorney. If you have previously been discharged through bankruptcy, you may have been released of personal liability for this loan in which case this letter is intended to exercise the note holders right's against the real property only. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgage, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (855) 313-3319 or visit this Internet website www.clearreconcorp.com, using the file number assigned to this case 138033-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: Effective January 1, 2021, you may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (855) 313-3319, or visit this internet website www.clearreconcorp.com, using the file number assigned to this case 138033-CA to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF Judy May Quattlebaum Case No. PRRI2600229

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Judy May Quattlebaum. A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Christine Farrar in the Superior Court of California, County of Riverside.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Christine Farrar be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on 3/13/2026 at 8:30am in Department 8 located at 4050 Main St, Riverside, CA 92501.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.
