BUGGING OUT! RIVERSIDE INSECT FAIR DRAWS 20,000 CURIOUS CRAWLERS

By Mia Rotell

INSECTS! Gross! You may think them creepy and cringe-worthy — and wonder about why they even exist. Well, they are invaluable, contributing countless appendages of import. And our local university is a global leader in the research, education, and discovery of entomology.

“Entomo” is Greek for “insect,” and “ology” means “the study of.” Entomologists are to thank for protecting crops, contributing to what we know of wildlife biodiversity, and the buggy part of pest control. UC Riverside is at the forefront of the worldwide study of the discipline.

This past Saturday, according to City of Riverside arts and cultural affairs division employee Tiffany Wheeler, 20-thousand attendees swarmed the Riverside Main Library parking lot with anticipation and fascination of all the crawly and complex critters the Riverside Insect Fair had in store.

Julian Lantze, and his wife Heather are loyal attendees to the fair, this being their sixth year attending “Look at all the community,” Julian observed, while enjoying the families and different groups of people coming together to learn more about the unsung heroes of the animal kingdom. Invertebrates make up more than half of the Kingdom Animalia.

Fleas, ticks, and mites were all featured at the urban entomology section of the fair.

MilVet — Helping One Service Member, and Military Family, at a Time

When Raven Hilden’s husband, Michael “Mike” Hilden’s Humvee — a high mobility multipurpose wheeled vehicle used in the military — was blown up, he lost a finger and has suffered from severe PTSD ever since. “My husband is a 100% disabled Marine Corps veteran,” Hilden said.

For the last decade, Raven has made it her mission to help people in situations similar to those of her loved ones.

“I have other family members who served out of March (Air Force Base) and (Camp) Pendleton in the Marines.” Raven started MilVet in 2016 to help families of service members and veterans find the help and care they need. “I know the struggle. It’s hard to find resources and get the service member to come in and be able to access those services.”

GOP INITIATIVE TO STRENGTHEN VOTER ID REQUIREMENTS QUALIFIES FOR NOVEMBER BALLOT

BY NADIA LATHAN, CalMatters

Californians this fall will decide whether to require voters to show proof of citizenship before casting ballots.

A GOP-backed voter ID ballot initiative on Friday qualified for the Nov. 3 ballot, marking a significant win for San Diego Assemblymember Carl DeMaio, who led the signature-gathering campaign. DeMaio and other Republican operatives have pushed for tighter voter restrictions in deep-blue California for years.

Deputies to Step Up Patrols to Catch DUI Suspects on Cinco de Mayo

RIVERSIDE (CNS) - Riverside County sheriff's deputies and officers from other law enforcement agencies throughout the region will be boosting patrols next week to catch Cinco de Mayo celebrants who risk drinking, or drugging, and driving.

Anti-DUI deployments will be conducted all day on Tuesday, May 5, mostly involving saturation patrols in multiple locations.

"Don't put yourself and others on the road at risk by driving impaired," according to a statement released by the sheriff's department. "If you're planning to celebrate with a drink or two, leave your keys at home and designate a sober driver."

Targeted patrols, as of now, are scheduled in Eastvale, Jurupa Valley, Norco and Palm Desert.

In other locations throughout the county, police officers will be closely monitoring traffic activity, enforcing a "zero tolerance" policy toward impaired driving, according to public safety officials.

They emphasized that partygoers have the option of calling a cab, using public transit or hailing a ride service like Lyft or Uber.

A misdemeanor DUI conviction in California can result in fines up to $10,000, jail time and revocation of a driver's license.

Cinco de Mayo -- or the 5th of May -- officially commemorates a Mexican military victory in the struggle to maintain independence during the 19th century. However, it has been adopted as a general cultural festival in the United States.

The City of Perris Upholds Urban Forestry as a Priority this Arbor's Day

By Mia Rotell

On Saturday, April 25, the City of Perris and the Youth Advisory Committee (YAC) celebrated Arbor day by planting six fruitless pear trees in Paragon Park.

Perris earned the 2025 Tree City USA recognition due to maintaining over 6,200 trees city wide and for the city's overall dedication to urban forestry.

Along with the trees planted in Paragon Park, the Public Works Committee planted over 30 trees along Placentia Ave and on the corner of the Redlands and Placentia Ave intersection as part of the city's tree planting initiative.

The species of trees include 13 Chinese Flames, six Acacia Stenophylla, 12 Indian Rosewood, six Redwood Ash, seven Japanese Blueberry, plus the six Bradford Pear trees in Paragon Park.

YAC liaison, Kimberley Hernandez, says that the YAC will continue to Report: County Gradually Netting Success in Reducing Animal Euthanasia

RIVERSIDE (CNS) - Efforts to slash the number of impounded dogs and cats who are euthanized in Riverside County animal shelters are gradually paying off, according to a report released Thursday by the Department of Animal Services.

"With targeted investments, passionate staff and impressive partner and community support, we have much to be proud of, with even more work ahead of us in 2026," agency Director Mary Martin said Thursday. "I'm focused on enhancing and adding to our lifesaving programs, strengthening our national and local partnerships and providing real resources for pet owners when they need our help."

Martin pointed to programs and campaigns implemented in 2025 that have put the county on track to achieve a 90% pet life preservation rate in the county's four shelters. The Department of Animal Services published what specific strategies have been embraced in the agency's 2025 Annual Report, which can be found at rcdas.org/rivcorise.

Some of the programs have included elimination of most adoption fees -- with the exception of dog licenses, which generally run $25 or less -- "life flights" of large numbers of canines that nonprofit organizations pay to transport to shelters across the United States for adoption, pet fostering, expanded hours at most shelters and expedited "trap-neuter-return-to-field" programs for cats.

The county is among the nation's largest pet intake centers. Last year, more than 29,000 dogs and cats were impounded, in addition to 5,000 other animals, including livestock and wildlife, according to the report.

Officials said 17,349 spay/neuter surgeries were carried out in 2025. Adoptions went up 13%, and roughly 3,200 pets were successfully reclaimed by their owners after being impounded.

The gains resulted in an 82% "live release rate" for canines, and a 73% rate for cats last year, according to the agency.

"We're making real progress toward a 90% release rate and a 'No-Kill County,'" Supervisor Manuel Perez said. "With ongoing community support -- through adoption, fostering, volunteering and responsible pet ownership -- we can save even more lives together."

Housing Affordability Improves in 2025; Riverside County Outpaces State

RIVERSIDE (CNS) - Housing affordability in California improved slightly in 2025, with Riverside County remaining more attainable than coastal markets, although disparities among demographic groups persisted, according to a report released Friday by the California Association of Realtors.

According to CAR, 19% of California households earned enough income to purchase a median-priced home in 2025, up from 18% the previous year, the association reported.

In Riverside County, 28% of all households could afford a median-priced home, well above the statewide average. Among demographic groups, 33% of Asian households and 29% of white non-Hispanic households could afford a home, compared to 25% of Hispanic/Latino households and 23% of Black households, according to the report.

Statewide, affordability varied widely by demographic group. Twenty-nine percent of Asian households and 23% of white non-Hispanic households could afford a median-priced home, compared to 11% each for Black and Hispanic/Latino households.

The statewide median price for a detached home was $875,550 in 2025. A minimum annual income of $221,200 was required to afford monthly payments of about $5,530, including taxes and insurance, assuming a 20% down payment and a 30-year fixed-rate mortgage at 6.71%, according to the association.

The gap between Black households and the overall population widened to 8.7 percentage points in 2025, while the gap for Hispanic/Latino households narrowed slightly to 7.9 percentage points, the report found.

Statewide homeownership rates also varied widely, with 64.4% for white households, 61.6% for Asian households, 45.9% for Hispanic/Latino households, and 36.5% for Black households, according to U.S. Census data cited in the report.

The association said affordability gaps are expected to remain wide in 2026 even if mortgage rates decline, as home prices are projected to continue rising.

Last May, the Board of Supervisors approved the "no kill" policy, resolving that the county will make it an objective to preserve the lives of a minimum of 90% of all cats and dogs impounded at its shelters.

The no-kill effort dovetails with a reformation initiated by the board after one organization alleged that the county had the highest pet kill rate in the nation.

In 2024, the board hired Austin, Texas-based Outcomes for Pets LLC Principal Adviser Kristen Hassen to rectify problems within the agency, and in February 2025, the supervisors approved the Executive Office's selection of Martin to head the department following a nationwide executive recruitment drive.

How Tariffs and War Are Hurting California Small Businesses

By Levi Sumagaysay,
CalMatters

Small businesses already navigating the costs and chaos of tariffs must now also contend with the effects of the war in Iran.

"It just feels like things keep getting piled on top," said Nichole MacDonald, owner of a San Diego business that sells women's bags. "Not just for businesses, but for consumers. And what is a business without consumers?"

Since her customers are feeling financial pain just like her, they're spending less money on discretionary items, she said. If they are still buying, they're choosing denim bags over leather because they're cheaper.

"Each level of pressure, economic uncertainty and tightening of the purse strings impacts people's decisions on spending," the Sash Bag owner said.

Other small retailers in the area tell similar stories of increased costs and having to adjust to continued tariff uncertainty in the wake of the Supreme Court decision that invalidated the bulk of President Donald Trump's wide-ranging tariffs. In some cases, such as if they imported their own goods, they might be able to apply for tariff refunds, though the timeline for receiving refunds is unclear. The president also imposed new tariffs based on a different law, against which California and other states have filed a lawsuit.

Meanwhile, everyone has been hit with higher shipping costs because fuel prices have gone up. The average price for regular unleaded gas in the state is $5.55, up from $4.79 a year ago, according to AAA. The national average is $4.11 vs. $3.15 a year ago. The spikes in gas prices caused inflation to rise in March. Consumer confidence is at a record low.

Higher prices hit small businesses — defined as those with fewer than 500 employees — harder than big ones, and some wonder how long they can survive. That's bad news for the state, whose small businesses create millions of new jobs a year and lately have been responsible for 99% of net new jobs, according to the California Office of the Small Business Advocate.

Lost sales, staff and more

MacDonald, whose business brings in six figures a month, said she saw her 2025 sales drop by up to 50% compared with the previous year. Because of tariffs, she stopped manufacturing products in China and has shifted entirely to India. She went from 11 staff members to three. And because she spent tens of thousands of dollars on tariffs, she said she didn't have money to bring in inventory for the holidays.

She uses brokers to import her offerings, so she's waiting to hear from them about possible tariff refunds. But even if she does eventually receive refunds, she said the damage has been done: "That money could've gone to personnel or to growth, instead of going to a tax."

longtime manufacturing partner in India informed her that costs for raw material have gone up 25%, so that will mean higher costs for new production. After increasing prices about 10% last year, she will probably have to raise them again because she is working on thin margins, she said.

he top executive at the Port of Long Beach, one of the nation's biggest ports, recently talked about higher costs being passed on to small businesses and consumers.

"For a while, shippers absorbed rising costs from fuel spikes to last year's 'Liberation Day' tariffs," said Noel Hacegaba, chief executive of the Port of Long Beach, during a media briefing earlier this month. "That's no longer the case. Today, those costs are being passed along across the board. We're seeing new surcharges and higher rates."

He said major shippers are instituting fuel surcharges, and adjusting how they move cargo. Amazon is adding a 3.5% third-party seller surcharge for fuel and logistics. The U.S. Postal Service is planning a temporary 8% surcharge, and UPS and FedEx also have raised their surcharges.

Hacegaba was joined by Jonathan Gold, vice president at National Retail Federation, who said the nation's small retailers are seeing a disproportionate impact. "Small businesses in particular don't have the ability to absorb cost increases and typically have to pass those along to the end consumer," Gold said.

"We can only charge so much"

But small retailers don't want to drive their loyal customers away.

Rema Abedkader is feeling the squeeze all around, with higher shipping costs being the latest pain point, but she hesitates to pass along the costs to her shoppers. The designer of women's clothing said she does not want to raise prices because it will just deter those who are still spending.

"We can only charge so much, so we're having to eat that cost again," she said.

Abedkader, who makes her eponymous REMA clothing brand in the San Diego area but buys imported fabric from Los Angeles-based companies, said she had to cut back on production by about 30% last year, which meant fewer sales. This year, she has had to reduce production by about 50%.

Her decreased business has had a widespread effect on her local ecosystem, all of whom are small business owners themselves.

"When I'm not producing, there's no work for my sewer, pattern maker and cutter," she said. That causes a vicious cycle: "My manufacturer had to get a second job, so our business had to be put on the back burner."

Abedkader said she's working four times harder and is having to get creative with marketing and by doing wholesale locally.

"If the government doesn't do something for small business, a lot of us are going to be going out of business very soon," she said.

Like Abedkader, women's apparel designer and maker Jennafer Grace Carter knows fabric brokers and importers in the Los Angeles area who have shut down because of tariff costs.

The Trump administration's immigration policies have also affected her business. Carter, who uses imported materials but makes her clothing domestically, said a lot of people were afraid to come to work. One shop that had 25 people sewing now sees less than half of them coming to work, she said, adding that the workers are "here legally but look a certain way" so they are scared.

Today in History:

Today is the 121st day of 2026.
There are 244 days left in the year.

By The Associated Press

Today in history:

On May 1, 2011, President Barack Obama announced the death of Osama bin Laden during a U.S. commando operation, which took place in Abbottabad, Pakistan in the early morning hours of May 2 local time.

Also on this date:

In 1866, three days of race-related rioting erupted in Memphis, Tennessee, as white mobs targeted Black people, 46 of whom were killed, along with two whites.

In 1931, the Empire State Building was dedicated in New York City; it would be the world's tallest building for four decades.

In 1960, the Soviet Union shot down an American U-2 reconnaissance plane and captured its pilot, Francis Gary Powers.

In 1963, Jim Whittaker, joined by Sherpa mountaineer Nawang Gombu, became the first American to summit Mount Everest.

In 1964, the computer programming language BASIC (Beginner's All-Purpose Symbolic Instruction Code) was first run by its inventors, Dartmouth College professors John G. Kemeny and Thomas E. Kurtz.

In 1971, the national passenger rail service Amtrak went into operation to bolster the declining privately-run intercity rail market.

In 2003, President George W. Bush declared that "major combat operations in Iraq have ended" in a speech aboard the aircraft carrier USS Abraham Lincoln, which bore a banner reading "Mission Accomplished." (The last U.S. combat troops would not withdraw from Iraq until December 2011.)

In 2011, Pope Benedict XVI beatified Pope John Paul II, moving his predecessor a step closer to sainthood in a Vatican Mass attended by some 1.5 million pilgrims. (John Paul II would be declared a saint by Pope Francis at a canonization ceremony in 2014.)

In 2015, six Baltimore police officers were charged with felonies ranging from assault to murder in connection with the death of Freddie Gray, a Black man who'd suffered a spinal injury while riding in a police van. (None of the officers would ultimately be convicted.)

In 2020, U.S. regulators allowed emergency use of remdesivir, the first drug that appeared to help some COVID-19 patients recover faster.

back on styles to adjust to that shift, she said.

The bottom line is that Carter is dealing with "less labor force, (fewer) materials and higher costs," she said. She has raised her prices only incrementally, because people won't buy if a business changes prices too drastically, she said.

Carter recently returned to California from direct-to-consumer events in Las Vegas and Scottsdale, Ariz. The U.S.-Israeli war in Iran has not only affected her shipping costs, it has also raised her travel costs. Her customers were in the same boat. She heard some attendees talking about how "it was so expensive to get here... I wanted to shop more."

Higher costs' long-term impact

The pain of higher costs seems unlikely to go away anytime soon. For one thing, the uncertainty continues.

"Whether it be on shores around the world or right here at home with erratic policy, it makes it very difficult for business people to plan," said Gene Seroka, executive director of the Port of Los Angeles, during a media briefing this month.

Even those whose businesses have an opportunity to benefit from what's going on are expressing pessimism.

"It's going to be harder and harder for small businesses," said Ellie Rose, owner of Calibaja Manufacturing, which contracts with U.S. businesses to make their products in Mexico. Those businesses avoid import tariffs because most products made in Mexico are still governed by the United States-Mexico-Canada Agreement — although the free trade deal is being reconsidered.

Rose said the small business owners she speaks with are seeing growing challenges. It's taking a lot longer than before to get their products to the United States, she said — 100 to 165 days on a ship vs. the 30 to 60 days it used to take.

"That's components, finished goods, whatever you need coming from Asia," she said. "It's going to slow everything down and cost more."

And if or when fuel prices come back down, she doubts businesses will lower their prices because they've had to bear increased costs for the past couple of years. That's going to affect innovation, Rose said: "Down the line this is going to be more of a problem for everybody."

Burnout Is Real: Understanding the Stress Facing Working Women

By Dr. Evita Limon Rocha, Psychiatrist, Kaiser Permanente Riverside County

With Mental Health Awareness Month and Women's Health Month in May, this is an ideal time to reflect on the challenges many working women face as they carry an extraordinary load at home and at work. As a physician and working mom, I see this reality every day in clinical practice and in my own life. The stress we experience is widespread and reflects structural pressures and the realities of daily life.

Sources of Stress for Working Women

Competing demands: Many women face demanding work responsibilities, while also managing childcare, household duties and caring for aging parents. This combination leaves many feeling stretched thin and pulled in different directions.

Mental load: Beyond everyday tasks, women often carry the cognitive burden of planning, organizing, and anticipating family needs and keeping everything running smoothly. This can quietly build into chronic stress and eventual burnout.

Societal and cultural expectations: Many women feel pressure to excel in career and caregiving roles, often without enough support. These expectations can lead to guilt, especially when work duties interfere with family moments or personal time.

How Stress Shows Up

Burnout and exhaustion: Research shows that most working parents report significant burnout as they try to manage everything on their plate. It's not just feeling tired; it's a deeper sense of depletion.

Impact on mental and physical health: Women are more likely to experience stress-related health issues, including anxiety, sleep disruption and chronic conditions that can affect daily life.

Guilt and emotional strain: Many working moms describe guilt about not being present enough at home or not giving enough at work which can be draining.

Why it Matters

Impact on family: When parents are overwhelmed, it can affect home life. Conversely, when women achieve a healthier balance, kids benefit from increased stability, engagement and emotional well-being.

Impact on career: Chronic stress can make it harder to focus, grow, and take advantage of opportunities. Over time, it can impact long-term professional goals and reduce opportunities for advancement.

Impact on overall life satisfaction: Research suggests that shifting away from the idea of a "perfect balance" and toward a more flexible, realistic integration of work and life can lead to greater satisfaction in work, family and personal time.

Why This Is So Common Today

Workplaces blur boundaries: With devices always within reach, it's harder than ever to disconnect from work. That constant accessibility can make it feel like the workday never truly ends.

Childcare challenges: Reliable and affordable childcare remains a significant hurdle, often forcing women to navigate unpredictable schedules and last-minute changes.

Persistent gender norms: Despite progress, women still perform a disproportionate share of household responsibilities, even while working full-time.

Rather than striving for a perfect balance, it may be more useful to think in terms of flexibility. Priorities shift and being intentional about where to direct time and energy can help reduce stress. Letting go of perfection is part of that, but so is recognizing that no one is meant to manage everything alone. Asking for help, sharing responsibilities at home and setting boundaries at work can ease the mental load. As a community, checking in on each other and offering support can also make a meaningful difference in reducing burnout and improving overall well-being. Supporting women is not just helpful, it's critical to the health of families, workplaces and communities.

County Fire Suspends Open Burn Permits and Closes Access to Recreation Areas

RIVERSIDE - Open burning of material will be banned in Riverside County as of Friday, the fire chief announced Wednesday.

"Warming temperatures and strong winds are rapidly drying out the annual grasses and vegetation throughout Riverside County, which creates a dense layer of dry fuel, significantly increasing the risk of wildfires," according to a statement from the Riverside County Fire Department.

As a result, all permits for outdoor residential burning in areas of the county controlled by Cal Fire will be suspended effective Friday, according to the news release.

"This suspension is a necessary step to help prevent wildfires and protect lives," the department said.

The suspension effectively bans all residential outdoor burning of landscape debris, but agricultural burning in the Palo Verde and Coachella valleys will be allowed "as required for agricultural rehabilitation."

Authorities said the length of the suspension will be at the discretion of the fire chief and will depend on meteorological and other considerations.

The announcement comes one day after the Riverside County Board of Supervisors authorized Fire Chief Geoff Pemberton to close access to multiple outdoor recreational locations for the duration of Southern California's wildfire season to minimize public safety risks.

Sites falling under the closure order are:

- Bautista Canyon, southeast of Hemet;
- Eagle Canyon, between Lake Mathews and the county landfill, just north of Cajalco Road;
- Indian Canyon and North Mountain, around San Jacinto;
- the Ramona Bowl, south of Hemet; and
- Steel Peek, northwest of Meadowbrook, due west of Good Hope and south of Gavilan Hills.

SPA TOWELS — SETTING THE STAGE FOR RELAXATION

By Mia Rotell

Light the candles and turn on classical music to set the stage for a spa-like relaxation staycation this Mother's Day. Little details, like what kind of candles are lit and how the towels are folded, are what drive home making mom feel special. A freshly laundered and beautifully folded towel is the perfect way to show mom you care.

What you need:

- A bath or hand towel

How to do it:

Step 1: Lay the towel completely flat.

Step 2: Pinch the bottom right corner and fold it diagonally to the left until that corner reaches the top center of the towel. You will have just made a triangle on the right side of the towel.

Step 3: With one hand, pinch the bottom left corner of the towel. With the other hand pinch the base of the triangle on the right — fold upward to line up with the top.

Step 4: Flip the towel over and adjust as needed.

Step 5: Starting on the straight edge, roll the towel down towards the triangle.

Step 6: Continue rolling until you reach the beginning of the triangle.

Step 7: Pinch the tail closest to the outer edge of the rolled towel, pull it, and tuck it underneath the first layer of the roll.

Step 8: It's done!

Tip: Having three matching towels folded this way on the bathroom counter created a spa-like feel year-round!

STILL UNSURE ABOUT COMPOSTING? Here's Why and How to Make 'Black Gold' for the Garden

By JESSICA DAMIANO
Associated Press

I love the idea of transforming garbage into free mulch and fertilizer. Composting is a win-win: I save money and keep my eggshells, coffee grounds and weeds out of a landfill.

Compost is the single best additive available for improving any soil type. Is your soil too sandy? Add compost. Too dense? Add compost. Lacking nutrients? Say it with me now: Add compost! That's why we gardeners call it "black gold."

It's as close to a cure-all as we can get, increasing the water-holding capacity of sand and the drainage of clay, while introducing billions of beneficial organisms that will nourish your plants for a long time.

Location, location, location

Before starting, decide whether you want an open or contained pile. From what I've seen, compost bins and tumblers could set you back anywhere from $50 to $300. This might be worth it to you if you're concerned about aesthetics.

But an open pile in a back corner of the yard would work just as well. Or, you could compromise and make your own receptacle by bending a length of chicken wire into a round or oval shape, fastening its ends with strong twine or zip ties, then anchoring it into the ground with stakes.

Your pile or bin should be close enough to avoid an out-of-sight-out-of-mind situation, but maybe not right next to where you're grilling dinner. And despite what you might think, a properly constructed pile of rotting garbage won't create unpleasant odors.

Proportions matter

There are two ingredient categories in compost, "browns" and "greens," and they should be added in almost equal parts.

Browns, which are usually but not always brown, include spent perennials, dry leaves, cut-up (undyed) leather, twigs, paper and straw. They should make up 50% or slightly more of your pile's ingredients. Browns are full of carbon and will keep things from smelling badly.

Green materials are rich in nitrogen and, likewise, are mostly green, or at least fresher than browns. They include grass clippings, fruit and vegetable scraps, and freshly picked weeds that have not gone to seed. Cornstarch packing peanuts and coffee grounds also are rich in nitrogen, so even though they defy this color-coding principle, they are considered greens, which help speed the decomposition of all the ingredients in the pile. Greens should make up 50% or slightly less of your pile.

Cutting up large or coarse ingredients like banana peels will speed up their decomposition.

Never add meat, fish, dairy, fat or oils to compost. Avoid diseased plants or weeds that have gone to seed, and skip plastic, glass or anything that won't break down. Manure from animals that don't consume meat (rabbits, cows, horses) is fine, but do not use waste from carnivores. That means leave dog poop and kitty litter out.

Caring for your compost

Keep your pile moist but not soggy. Monitor its moisture and sprinkle a little water on it if it begins to dry out. Give it another sprinkle every time you add a new layer of materials.

As it decomposes, the bacteria in the pile will cause its center to heat up and "cook" your compost. Turn the pile with a pitchfork or spade (or spin your tumbler) about twice a week to keep the heat evenly distributed.

The process can take anywhere from a couple of months (if your pile is small and you toss and moisten it regularly) to a couple of years (for very large or neglected piles). Regardless, you will end up with a dark, crumbly, highly nutritious amendment that resembles rich soil.

If some larger pieces, like sticks, remain in your finished compost, you can sift them out with a screen. Use a 1/2-inch (1.4-centimeter) screen if you intend to use your compost in potting mix or garden beds, and 1/4-inch (0.6 centimeter) screen for seed-starting mix. Rubbing the compost against the screen with a gloved hand will help things along.

Incorporate compost into new beds before planting, mix it into containers, scatter it over the lawn or use it in place of mulch. It will provide slow-release nutrients, fortify roots, and create rich, healthy soil that will support and protect your plants over time.

"Michael"

By Bob Garver

The big problem with "Michael," the new Michael Jackson biopic, is that it has the approval of the Jackson family. As such, we are going to get a very flattering portrait of possibly the single most controversial personality in the history of the music industry. The scandals that plagued his later years are an unignorable part of his legacy, no matter how much this movie tries to ignore them. Simply put: a movie with this much love for Michael Jackson, made by people who unconditionally love and want to protect Michael Jackson, is not going to be an interesting portrait of Michael Jackson.

The film follows Michael from his youth until 1988 – basically the first 30 years of his life. Growing up in Gary, Indiana, young Michael (Juliano Valdi) was essentially robbed of his childhood by his father Joe (Colman Domingo), who demanded that his musician children pursue fame at the expense of their happiness, and some would argue, sanity. The real Jackson family – so protective of Michael's image – apparently has no problem with Joe being portrayed as a monster. Valdi does an excellent job singing, dancing, emoting, and overall playing a young Michael. Maybe if the whole movie was built around Michael when he was this young, it wouldn't need to bother giving us a shortchanged version of his adult years.

Of course, Michael does grow up to be played by Jaafar Jackson, son of Jermaine Jackson and Michael's real-life nephew. Well, you can't say the resemblance isn't there, even if Michael stopped resembling himself after a certain point. Seriously though, Jaafar is fine. He's obviously putting every effort into what he surely knows is the role of a lifetime. Is he as talented a musician as his uncle? No, but then Michael wouldn't be the one-of-a-kind performer he was if he could be easily emulated – even by members of his own family.

The movie knows it can't get a musical performance to match Michael's stage presence, so it keeps the musical sequences... not exactly "to a minimum," but they're never as thorough as fans probably want them to be. I'll put it this way: I never thought that Michael could take the pop world by storm based on the songs and dances we get in this movie. Nor do I see audiences demanding "cult" screenings of this movie that emphasize the music in the years to come.

Come to think of it, the dull musical sequences are as big a problem with "Michael" as the toothless storytelling. I'm just less mad about them because I can see that people – namely Jaafar – are really trying. They just fall short because of their chopiness. But the musical numbers are the selling point of this movie, since I think audiences know in advance that the biography stuff is hardly hard-hitting. Maybe this movie should have taken the "jukebox musical" route of just being a glorified concert of epic performances to celebrate Michael's style. Jaafar probably couldn't have carried the whole thing himself, but taking on a few numbers could have lent authenticity to compliment a necessary cast of career professionals.

But no, "Michael" had to take the dialogue-heavy biopic route and it falls flat on its face. Not only does the movie cut out Michael's crazy, scandalous later years, but it doesn't handle the years we do see particularly well. Surely Michael had more going on than just being a man-child who liked toys and animals and whose worst deed was failing to stand up to his tyrannical father. I'd have a hard time believing that anybody is this wholesome, let alone the obviously-disturbed Michael Jackson. This movie would have you believe that Michael lived like an angel to match having the voice of one. It's bad, but ironically not the cool Michael Jackson brand of "Bad."

Grade: C-

"Michael" is rated PG-13 for some thematic material, language, and smoking. Its running time is 127 minutes.

'Michael' Opens with $97 Million at Box Office

LOS ANGELES (CNS) - Michael Jackson ruled the box office this weekend the way he once ruled the music charts, as the biopic "Michael" opened with $97 million to lead all films in North America, according to industry estimates released Sunday.

Helmed by "Training Day" and "The Equalizer" director Antoine Fuqua, "Michael" stars Jaafar Jeremiah Jackson -- Michael Jackson's nephew and the son of former Jackson 5 member Jermaine Jackson -- in the title role. It deals with Jackson's upbringing under strict father Joe Jackson, his childhood stardom with The Jackson 5 and eventual superstardom in the late 1970s and '80s as a solo artist.

Due to language in a legal settlement, the movie does not make reference to the multiple allegations of child sexual abuse levied against Jackson, who died in 2009.

Second place in this weekend's box office ranking went to "The Super Mario Galaxy Movie," which made $21.2 million after spending its first three weeks in the No. 1 spot, Comscore reported.

"Project Hail Mary" took third place with $13.2 million Friday through Sunday in its sixth weekend in theaters.

'Lee Cronin's The Mummy was fourth with $5.6 million in its second weekend, followed by "The Drama," which made $2.6 million in its fourth week.

Rounding out the top 10 releases were "Hoppers" ($1.9 million), "You, Me & Tuscany" ($1.5 million), "Over Your Dead Body" ($1.4 million), "Mother Mary" ($1.2 million) and "American Youngboy" ($1.19 million).

This weekend's overall three-day box office haul was estimated at $152.5 million. The year-to-date total is $2.57 billion -- up 14.3% from the figure at this time last year, according to Comscore.

A Spiced Nuts and Seeds Recipe From Linda McCartney

By LINDA McCARTNEY, with PAUL, MARY and STELLA McCARTNEY Voracious

This recipe is excerpted from the cookbook "Linda McCartney's Family Kitchen." Linda was ahead of her time on plant-based eating in the '80s and '90s — today, it is much easier to follow a plant-forward life-style than when she wrote her first cookbooks.

Now, all the ingredients you need for tasty, healthy plant-based meals are more easily available in stores. Farmers' markets and farm shares make it possible to eat locally and seasonally, and as more and more people embrace plant-based eating, the range of plant-based and vegan alternatives is growing fast.

Nuts are such a useful food and are key in a plant-based diet. They are rich in essential monounsaturated fats and high in protein. Add them to salads or bakes, or just enjoy them as a nutritious snack. To make them even more irresistible, these are roasted with some mixed seeds and coated with spices and herbs (seeds such as flax, sesame, pumpkin and hemp add nutrients and flavor to dishes.)

Spiced Nuts and Seeds Servings: 2 to 3

Ingredients

1 cup mixed nuts, such as pecans, Brazils, hazelnuts, almonds, cashews

6 tablespoons mixed seeds, such as pumpkin, sunflower

1 teaspoon maple syrup

1 tablespoon soy sauce or tamari

2 teaspoons finely chopped fresh rosemary leaves

1 teaspoon ground cumin

½ teaspoon sweet smoked paprika

Directions

Preheat the oven to 400°F.

Spread the nuts and seeds out on a baking tray and roast for 5–7 minutes until they are a shade darker and aromatic, taking care not to burn them. Remove them from the oven and set aside.

Meanwhile, mix the maple syrup, soy sauce or tamari, rosemary, cumin and paprika in a bowl. Pour this mixture over the hot roasted nuts and seeds and toss together until evenly coated.

Allow to cool a little, then serve, or leave to cool completely and store in an airtight jar.

- 2 tbsp seasoned rice vinegar
- 1 tbsp mayo
- 1 tbsp diced cilantro
- 1 tbsp diced basil

To Make

Combine all ingredients in a bowl and mix. Eat immediately or chill and eat later. Serve with grilled meats, pulled pork, or by itself as a side to any dish.

I can hear you thinking already. Oh, come on, is this another garden recipe and what in the heck is pineapple slaw. Lucky for you, I am here to answer your questions and make cooking easier.

First question, yes and no. I did grow the cabbage in my yard, but I did not grow the pineapple. Though you totally can grow pineapple in your yard in Southern California. I do not. I don't have the space or patience they require.

Second question, pineapple

MilVet volunteer, Lee Cooper, attended his first meeting last December and has continued to return ever since. Cooper has friends and family who are veterans and says he will give back any way he can.

The care MilVet provides includes a food and necessities pantry, a veterans service officer to help veterans access services from the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs, an emergency veterans assistance program and much more.

"I've never been in the military, but I just feel really good about helping them," Cooper said. "I'm here at every event. They (troops) do everything for us, so we want to do what we can for them."

On Thursday, April 23, MilVet hosted a Military Care Package event, where volunteers assembled boxes for deployed troops. Hilden estimates that over the last 10 years, they've helped thousands and have shipped about 10,000 boxes to soldiers.

The care packages include a list of the soldier's favorite candy, chips, cookies, and any other toiletry items they may need.

Tania Garcia participated in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps (ROTC) while in school and her husband is currently in law enforcement. She attended the event representing Wells Fargo. "It's important for us to come together," Garcia said. "This is a great organization. I hope more people in the community would volunteer."

MilVet is always accepting volunteers and donations. Its biggest event is approaching — the Sundresses and Cowboy Boots 2026 Benefit Concert May 29 — from 6 to 10 p.m. at the Bel Vino Winery in Temecula Valley.

"Anyone can volunteer as much or as little as they want," Hilden said that anyone, everyone is welcome to come and support their cause.

D.A. Says Singer D4vd Met Celeste Rivas Hernandez When She Was 11 Years Old

LOS ANGELES (CNS) - Disturbing details of a 14-year-old girl's death and dismemberment, allegedly at the hands of singer D4vd, who met the teen when she was 11, continue to reverberate Thursday, after a prosecution court brief revealed that the "Romantic Homicide" singer bought a body bag and two chain saws before leaving her remains in the trunk of his Tesla and going on tour.

In a graphic brief filed Wednesday, prosecutors wrote the defendant took "horrible" steps to destroy the body of Celeste Rivas Hernandez, using a "chain saw and perhaps other tools" to remove her limbs.

Attorneys for D4vd, whose real name is David Anthony Burke, implored Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge Charlaine F. Olmedo to seal the prosecution's court document to prevent its public release, but Olmedo refused the request.

Olmedo scheduled a preliminary hearing in the case for May 26, while a status hearing was set for May 12. The preliminary hearing had tentatively been scheduled to begin Friday but was postponed at the request of the defense, over the objection of Deputy District Attorney Beth Silverman.

The 21-year-old is charged with capital murder in the death of Celeste whose remains were found Sept. 8, 2025, in the front trunk of the Tesla registered to the singer. The body was decomposed and dismembered, with the head and torso in one bag and her severed limbs in another, authorities said.

D4vd -- pronounced "David"

-- was charged April 20 with murder, continuous sexual abuse of a child under age 14 and mutilation of human remains.

Through his attorneys, D4vd has pleaded not guilty to the charges.

Prosecutors said they believe Celeste was killed by D4vd in a Hollywood Hills home on April 23, 2025.

In the newly filed court document, prosecutors alleged that Burke "purchased tools to carry out his plot to dismember and dispose of the victim's body," including ordering a shovel, two chain saws, a body bag, heavy-duty laundry bags and a blue inflatable pool to be delivered to his home under a fake name.

"Moreover, defendant took horrible measures to destroy and discard the victim's body. After placing her body into the blue inflatable pool to prevent her blood from spilling onto his garage floor, defendant used a chain saw and perhaps other tools to cut off her limbs. Small blue plastic fragments were found embedded in the victim's remains, which were collected by the Los Angeles County Medical Examiner's Department," according to the filing.

The filing alleges that Burke "amputated her left ring and pinky fingers because her ring finger contained a tattoo of his name," and her fingers have not been recovered.

Los Angeles police detectives served a search warrant last Sept. 16 at his home and found "evidence consistent with the dismemberment of the victim's body in the inflatable pool, which contained multiple linear cuts," according to the filing.

The filing alleges that several biological samples, which tested positive for blood, were collected within the garage area. DNA analysis determined that various samples matched the victim's unique genetic profile.

Last Wednesday, the Los Angeles County medical examiner's office released the long-sealed autopsy report on Celeste's death. The examination concluded that the teen died of "multiple penetrating injuries" with an object or objects.

The autopsy was performed on Sept. 10, 2025, two days after the girl's body was found. The manner and cause of death were determined Dec. 9, 2025, but the results had been ordered sealed by a judge while police and the District Attorney's Office built their case.

Celeste's body was found just days after what would have been her 15th birthday.

The murder charge against D4vd includes the special circumstance allegations of lying in wait, murder for financial gain and killing a witness in a criminal investigation. The District Attorney's Office is expected to decide later whether to seek the death penalty against Burke.

District Attorney Nathan Hochman has said the lying in wait allegation stems from D4vd's invitation to Celeste to come to his Hollywood Hills home on April 23, 2025, after which she was never seen again, while the financial gain allegation stems from the singer's effort to maintain his lucrative music career, which was being threatened by his alleged sexual relationship with the underage girl, Hochman said. Celeste was considered the key witness in that investigation, leading to the allegation of murdering a witness, he said.

According to the prosecution's brief, Burke and the girl met in January 2022 when she was 11 years old and they began a "sexual relationship" in November 2023 when she was 13 and he was 18, and that "text exchanges between the victim and defendant contain references to sex, pregnancy, abortion and use of the Plan B emergency contraceptive."

"There are also explicit photographs documenting and corroborating their sexual relationship," the prosecution alleged, noting that the two "broke up" in November 2024 but continued to communicate and that "text messages suggest they also continued to have sexual relations."

The prosecution alleges in the filing that the girl likely died April 23, 2025, and that the two had "engaged in a lengthy argument described in detail in their text messages" the night before that "reveal the victim's jealousy over defendant's relationships with other women, as defendant led her to believe they had a future together."

The teen "became extremely upset and threatened to disclose damaging information about her relationship with the defendant to end his career and destroy his life," according to the filing, which noted that his first studio album was set to be released a few days later.

Burke allegedly sent an Uber to bring the girl from her Lake Elsinore home to his residence and then sent text messages to her inquiring where she was after the Uber dropped her off, the prosecution alleges.

The prosecution contends in the brief that it was "part of defendant's premeditated plan to cover up the murder, as she was already dead by this time."

"Knowing he had to silence the victim before she ruined his music career as she had threatened, very soon after her arrival at his home, defendant stabbed the victim to death multiple times and stood by while she bled out. At no time did he call law enforcement or 911 or take her to an emergency room to save her life. Despite knowing she was dead and her family was trying to find her, the evidence will show defendant lied and claimed he didn't know where she was," according to the filing.

D4vd was arrested April 16 by Los Angeles Police Department officers. His attorneys issued a statement at the time denying the singer killed Celeste.

"Let us be clear, the actual evidence in this case will show that David Burke did not murder Celeste Rivas Hernandez, and he was not the cause of her death," defense attorneys Blair Berk, Marilyn Bednarski, and Regina Peter said. "There has been no indictment returned by any grand jury in this case and no criminal complaint filed. David has only been detained under suspicion."

Probationer Who Caused Fatal Head-on Wreck in Winchester While Drunk Sentenced

MURRIETA (CNS) - A 27-year-old probationer who caused a head-on wreck while driving under the influence, killing a woman and seriously injuring a man in Winchester, was sentenced Friday to 20 years to life in state prison.

Willie Eddie Salazar of Wildomar caused the death of 32-year-old Sahtarria Anderson of Menifee in 2022.

In February, a Murrieta jury convicted Salazar of second-degree murder, felony driving under the influence and DUI resulting in great bodily injury.

During a hearing at the Southwest Justice Center in Murrieta Friday, Riverside County Superior Court Judge Johnnetta Anderson imposed the sentence required under state law on the defendant.

According to the California

Highway Patrol, on the night of April 29, 2022, the defendant was driving his Honda Civic the wrong way -- going westbound in the eastbound lanes of Domenigoni Parkway -- when he approached a Chevrolet Malibu driven by Anderson's friend, identified only as a 31-year-old Hemet man.

Anderson was in the right front passenger seat of the four-door sedan, which was near Patterson Avenue when the two vehicles reached the same point.

"The Honda and Chevrolet were involved in a head-on crash," CHP Officer Jason Montez said at the time, adding that it was uncertain exactly how fast each car was traveling.

Paramedics arrived minutes later and treated the defendant and two victims, all of whom were taken to Inland Valley Medical

Center in Wildomar.

Anderson succumbed to her injuries the following day. Her friend, who suffered major injuries, was hospitalized for an unspecified period but ultimately recovered.

Salazar, also seriously hurt, was hospitalized for more than a week before being booked into jail.

Court records indicated that, in February 2022, he admitted a misdemeanor DUI, receiving a month-long jail sentence and a 36-month term of probation, with a requirement that he attend classes on the dangers of drinking and driving.

It was unclear whether he enrolled in the program. Under California law, if a DUI offender is convicted of driving while intoxicated, he or she can be charged with murder for causing a death directly tied to a subsequent DUI collision.

Court documents showed Salazar additionally had a misdemeanor conviction for domestic violence.

voters show some form of identification at the polls, according to a 2025 report by the National Conference of State Legislatures.

"This is an initiative that's incredibly popular amongst Democrats and Republicans," GOP state Sen. Tony Strickland of Huntington Beach told CalMatters. "I think the only way we don't get this passed is if we get (outspent). So we're working very hard with an on-the-ground campaign apparatus."

Strickland and others who have helped lead the campaign attribute the initiative's rapid certification to Julie Luckey, mother of tech billionaire Palmer Luckey who helped seed the majority of the $10 million the campaign committee has raised in the past year.

Voting rights groups say the initiative will suppress turnout among eligible voters who don't have the documents on hand, many of whom are disproportionately poor and people of color.

Opponents, including the state's most powerful labor unions, plan to campaign heavily against it.

Celeste had been reported missing by her mother in 2024, when the girl was just 13. Her mother previously told reporters her daughter had a boyfriend named David. D4vd has a tattoo on one of his fingers matching the one reading "Shhh" that the medical examiner revealed previously was on Rivas' index finger.

The victim's dismembered body was found in the front trunk of Burke's Tesla Model X on Sept. 8, 2025, which had been towed three days earlier while parked about 400 feet from Burke's home in the Hollywood Hills, according to the prosecution's court filing.

"Surveillance video and other evidence confirm defendant was the last person to drive the vehicle on July 29, 2025, before he left Los Angeles on a concert tour," according to the document.

Last week, a prosecutor told a judge that "a significant amount of child pornography" was contained on an iPhone owned by the singer.

Defense attorneys asked that prosecutors turn over as much "basic discovery" as they can as quickly as possible.

If voters approve it, they would be required to show a government-issued ID each time they go to the polls, while mail-in ballots would need the last-four digits of an ID, such as a driver's license. Currently, voters only need to provide an ID and Social Security number when they register to vote. Thirty-six states require or recommend Voter fraud is rare in California. However, claims of fraud and concerns about election integrity have risen since President Donald Trump touted false claims that the 2020 election was stolen.

Californians broadly support voter identification at the polls but are split along ideological lines when given specific details about the ballot measure, according to a 2026 poll from the UC Berkeley Institute of Government Studies. When told the measure is meant to combat voter fraud and that it could suppress eligible votes, support dipped to 37%.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property.
You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property.
You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on this property.

Please be advised that the trustee may require entity or trust bidders at this trustee's sale to provide information, documentation and/or certification of the vesting instructions and the data required to be reported pursuant to FinCEN regulations effective for transfers of residential real property to covered transferees on or after March 1, 2026. The required information must be provided to the trustee before a trustee's deed upon sale will be issued for covered transfers. Additional information regarding these regulations and the required transferee information and certifications can be found at <https://www.federalregister.gov/documents/2024/08/29/2024-19198/antimoneylaunderingregulationsforresidentialrealestatetransfers> and https://www.fincen.gov/refaqs#d_5

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (866)-960-8299 or visit this Internet Web site <https://www.altisource.com/loginpage.aspx> using the file number assigned to this case 2025-01825-CAREV. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.

trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you

One Tech Tip: Logging on at a Cafe?

PRIVACY AND SECURITY GUIDELINES FOR REMOTE WORKERS

By KELVIN CHAN AP Business Writer

For digital nomads, logging on to work from a cafe, co-working space, hotel lobby or airport lounge is a way of life.

Remote working has been made possible by reliable high speed internet and turbocharged by the pandemic. For some remote workers, that includes working from somewhere other than their home, perhaps because their company doesn't have a physical location in their area, or because they don't have an ideal home office setup.

Working in public, however, doesn't come without privacy and security risks. Here's a quick reminder of precautions to take:

Read the rulebook

Hybrid or fully remote working is the norm for many jobs, so it's a good idea to check for guidance from your employer on what's expected when working away from the office.

Many companies and organizations have internal guidelines including best practices for working in public, or even offer privacy and confidentiality training for staff.

Some discourage working in crowded public places like coffee shops because of data privacy risks. The British government spells it out in guidance for staff working with classified documents. "These environments can present additional risks, including being more freely accessible to people without the appropriate clearance and need-to-know."

If you're planning to travel and work, some employers might also have rules forbidding staff from working from certain countries.

Think visually

Cafes and co-working spaces are often busy with strangers, most of whom will be minding their own business. But it's still a good idea not to leave yourself exposed.

Try to find a secluded place to sit to prevent others from seeing what's on your screen, even if it's by accident. It's harder for someone to "shoulder surf" if you've got your back to a wall.

To make it even harder for prying eyes, get a screen privacy filter. This is a thin film that has tiny louvers to prevent anyone from seeing your screen when looking at it from an angle.

Be wary of the Wi-Fi

It's so tempting to log on to that free Wi-Fi network in the airport lounge or hotel lobby so you can check your email. But cybersecurity experts advise against it because the risks are high.

Avoid a public Wi-Fi network that doesn't need a password, because any data sent over it is vulnerable to theft or manipulation, the National Security Agency warns.

Even if a Wi-Fi network requires a password, that doesn't mean the data will be encrypted, the NSA says in a cybersecurity tip sheet.

The agency warns about a number of cybersecurity risks involving public Wi-Fi. One possible danger is a rogue network that tricks people into joining.

"A malicious actor can set up a fake access point, also known as an evil twin, to mimic the nearby expected public Wi-Fi, resulting in that actor having access to all data sent over the network," the NSA says.

Instead, use a mobile hotspot, which is more secure because it uses your cell-phone signal to create a mini wireless network. Most iPhones or Android phones can do this.

For even more security, use a VPN, or virtual private network. This is software that encrypts data traffic and routes it through private tunnels to secure servers to prevent anyone from being able to read it. Companies usually provide them for staff. If not, you can sign up for one yourself.

Don't forget the obvious measures

There are other common-sense measures you can take in public.

Beware of your surroundings. Sitting in a public place with a laptop in plain sight could make it an attractive target

Insect Fair

This "brings different groups out too, like if you like insects, then you might like plants!" Julian added.

Information booths demonstrated the distinct attributes of the various species, including mosquitoes, beetles, and termites. Plant vendors offered tips on starting a bug collection. UCR experts were available to answer attendees' specific questions.

"These are all of our people — right here," Julian said.

At one of the 10 booths, UCR entomology professors and grad students assisted visitors who held and learned about Madagascar Hissing Cockroaches. Yes, really!

The Madagascar Hissing Cockroach-es are wingless and about 2-4 inches long. They live three to five years, and the hissing sound is made by pressing air through their abdominal breathing holes.

"One of the important things about this is education," research associate Greg Kund said, "People come here to become familiar with different insects."

Kund is in the urban entomology department at UCR, which includes cockroaches, termites, and bedbugs — insects commonly found in urban settings.

One of the most popular experiences at the fair was the ticketed "Touch a Bug" event, where ticket holders actually cradled millipedes, tarantulas, praying mantises, and more. Yes, really!

"It always draws a lot of attention," Tiffany Wheeler of the arts and cultural affairs division said. "It's a very popular event."

Wheeler disclosed that the "Touch a Bug" event is so popular that all 1,200 tickets sold out by 12:15 p.m.

The event also invites artistic creativity; this year's fair theme is the honeypot ant. "Riverside Arts Council is doing an art exhibition in the library," Wheeler explained. The event held a poetry contest where participants were required to pen their prose about ants. The selected winners received a certificate and the opportunity to read their work on stage.

The fair cajoled insect haters to realize most urban insects — even some of the wilder ones — are just as interesting and friendly as any four-legged friend. Hmmm. Really? Some who were scared or uneasy originally were observed fearlessly getting back in line to hold the same bug over and over again, perhaps deciding crawly critters weren't that bad.

To learn more about entomology and test your courage to hold a bug, UCR is celebrating the 111th year of entomology at UCR on UCR's campus on May 29. It will include a bug fest from 4 to 6 p.m. and will be celebrating the century-plus of research, discovery, and education of entomology at UCR.
